JURORS EXCUSED WHILE ELLIS TELLS OF SIGNING CONFESSION

BALLOONIST WRITES OF SUFFERING IN CANADIAN WILDS

POLICE CAPTURE FIVE ROBBERS, ONE OF WHOM IS SHOT

RED-HAIRED MAN TAKEN IN AN EXCITING CHASE AFTER STORE HOLDUP

Runs Into Detective Chief, Who Thinks He Is Much-Wanted Man—Negro Dance Hall Proprietor Shoots Holdup Man—Veteran Patrolmen Catch Two Negroes.

Policemen, assisted by detectives, including Chief Hannegan, citizens, a private watchman and a workhouse guard, last night made effective war on highwaymen and burglars, capturing four robbers and one burglar.

A red-haired highwayman, believed to have figured in numerous recent holdups, was shot through the brim of the hat and captured, and his confederate, who escaped, is believed to have been wounded.

One of two robbers, whose faces were blackened with grease paint, was shot by the proprietor of a negro dance hall.

Two negro highwaymen were captured single-handed by a veteran patrolman after they had held up two men in the Page Boulevard Police District.

A burglar was taken prisoner by a private watchman after a fight when the watchman caught him trying to break into a store.

Several shots were fired at two policemen as they chased a pair of highwaymen at Cardinal and Bell avenues.

A storekeeper was clubbed on the head with a revolver because he lowered his hands after having been ordered by robbers to keep them up.

Two highwaymen who held up a grocery and meat market at Prairie avenue and North Market streets at 8 o'clock last night, ran into a hornet's nest of policemen and others, and one of them was captured and another is believed to have been wounded. The latter man escaped.

The captive, who got a bullet hole through his hat brim during the fusillade of shooting that accompanied the attempt of himself and companion to escape, is believed by detectives to be the same red-haired man who recently perpetrated robberies at the Grand Opera House, and the Gibson & Lohn Dressing and Dyeing Co., in which several thousand dollars were taken.

Woman Calls for Help.

The robbers, after entering the store of Donnelly & Pennington, on the northwest corner of Prairie and North Market, herded proprietors, clerks and a dozen customers, including women and children, into a rear storeroom, and were rifling the two cash registers when a woman customer, who had just left the store, looked back and saw the holdup. She ran down the street, screaming for help.

Patrolmen Hogan and Burgess, walking their beat a block away, responded. They stepped into the store with drawn revolvers, and called: "Stick 'em up."

The robbers, however, sprang into the rear room, into which the policemen could not shoot for danger of hitting the people there. The robbers forced Jerome Donnelly, one of the proprietors, to unlock a rear door and let them out. Then they ran west, climbing over three fences, the policemen shooting at them.

It happened that John Fanning, a workhouse guard, was standing at the southern end of an alley toward which the robbers ran, and he also fired as the fugitives came into view.

Detective Chief Appears.

Meantime two special officers a block and a half west heard the shooting and closed in from that side. Almost simultaneously, Chief of Detectives Hannegan came along Prairie avenue in his automobile, accompanied by his son, Robert, and a chauffeur. All three were armed. They blocked the north end of the alley, and it was to them that the red-haired man, who saw himself trapped, surrendered. The second robber, however, managed to cut across lots, and escaped. However, blood was found at Vandeventer and St. Ferdinand avenues, a block and a half away, from which the police believed the escaped robber was hit.

The captive gave his name as John McGuire, 27 years old, of 4142 South Broadway, which is a vacant lot just north of the city workhouse. When he surrendered, he wore spectacles, which he had put on after leaving the store. He also had a green cap in his pocket. He was identified immediately by those in the store as one of the robbers. When questioned, he would only repeat: "I am an innocent man."

Firing Attracts Crowd.

The robbers took about $200 from the cash register. In McGuire's pocket was found $44, of which $11 was in small change.

The noise of the firing attracted hundreds of people. The Cass avenue car barns are a block south, and dozens of carmen flocked to the scene. When the robbers fled from the store, pursued by the policemen, the customers, released from the storeroom, ran on to the streets, many of the women screaming.

Chief Hannegan, after examining "McGuire," said he was certain he was the man sought in connection with the theater and fur company thefts. The prisoner refused to talk.

Two men, answering the description of the red-haired robber and his partner entered the grocery of Sol Goodman, Cardinal and Franklin avenues, at 7:15 o'clock and took $75 from the cash register and $7.15 from Grant Hamilton, 915 Cardinal avenue, a negro customer.

Policemen Fired on.

Running from the store, the robbers separated, while Goodman came to the door and began to shout for the police. One of the robbers went north in Cardinal avenue and turned east into Bell avenue. As he did, he observed Policemen Lane and Hassen coming west in Belle in response to Goodman's cries.

The robber still carried his revolver in his hand and fired two shots at the policemen. He then darted across the street and on to a vacant lot, the policemen firing four shots each at him. He escaped, however, as did his companion, who ran in a different direction from the store.

Fifteen minutes earlier the same pair took $55 from the cash register in the grocery store of Patrick McDonough at 3135 Thomas street at 7 p. m., compelling McDonough to hold up his hands. He grew tired and lowered them a trifle. This caused one of the robbers to strike him in the face, felling him. The robbers then ran out. McDonough later identified McGuire as one of the robbers.

Red-Haired Man in Other Hold-ups.

It was on Nov. 28 that two men held up the assistant manager of the Grand Opera House, a large vaudeville theater, at 512 Market street, while the show was in progress and forced him to open the safe, from which they took $4800. One of the robbers was red-headed, and wore a velour hat.

Five robbers, led by a red-haired man held up the office of the Gibbins & Lohn Dressing and Dyeing Co., a fur concern, 1328 South King's highway, on the afternoon of Dec. 4, and took $10,000 of payroll mon-

HYDE TO TAKE OATH AS GOVERNOR AT 1 P. M. TOMORROW

Thousands Expected From All Parts of State for Ceremony, Which Will Take Place Under Capitol Dome.

ADDRESS TO FOLLOW SALUTE OF 17 GUNS

Reception to Be at Mansion in Evening—Dancing Will Be Held at Capitol Because of Large Crowd.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 8.—Arthur Mastick Hyde of Trenton at 1 o'clock Monday will be installed as the thirty-fifth Governor of Missouri and the second Republican Governor in 50 years since the reconstruction days following the Civil War. Elaborate ceremonies for the inauguration have been completed by a committee of members of the Senate and House co-operating with a committee of citizens of Jefferson City.

Ignoring the custom which has grown up through many years that the incoming Governor shall not enter the executive mansion until after his inauguration, Gov. and Mrs. Gardner have invited Mr. and Mrs. Hyde and their small daughter, Caroline, to become their guests at the mansion tomorrow until the Gardners retire immediately after the inauguration.

Shortly before 1 o'clock, Monday, Governor and Mrs. Gardner will escort the Governor-elect and Mrs. Hyde from the mansion to the Capitol, where the inaugural ceremony will be conducted in the first floor corridor. After the inauguration, the Governor-elect and Mrs. Hyde will return to the mansion, accompanied only by their daughter, while Governor and Mrs. Gardner will go to the home of former Senator Sam. B. Cook in the outskirts of Jefferson City for a short visit before going to their home in St. Louis, which has been closed most of the time during Gardner's four years in office.

Ceremony at Top of Stairs.

At the north of the large circular rotunda beneath the Capitol dome there lead from the first floor to the second two gracefully winding stairways, which meet at the top directly in front of the entrance to the reception room of the Governor's suite of offices. At the top of these stairways the oath will be administered by Chief Justice Walker of the Supreme Court, and the new Governor will deliver his inaugural address from the same place, his audience being in the rotunda and in the second and third floor galleries.

Gov. Gardner and Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. Hyde will be seated on the top landing of the stairway.

The inaugural address will follow immediately after the taking of the oath, allowing time only for the firing of the Governor's salute of 17 guns from a battery of two 75s by the student officers' training corps of the State University of Columbia. The guns will be pointed across the Missouri River toward the hills of Callaway County and far enough from the Capitol to avoid the breaking of windows by the concussion.

Public Reception in Evening.

In the afternoon Gov. and Mrs. Hyde will entertain the Colonels of the Governor's military staff at the Executive Mansion, and in the evening there will be a public reception at the Mansion. While the affair at the Mansion always is termed the inaugural reception and ball, there will be little, if any, dancing there because of the enormous crowd which always attends and makes dancing almost impossible. Instead, the dancing will be in the rotunda of the Capitol. It is the expectation that many thousands of persons will come to Jefferson City from all parts of Missouri for the inauguration. Arrangements have been made for special trains to bring them and for them to return to their homes the same night, as Jefferson City has not sufficient hotel accommodations for such a crowd.

LIEUT. HINTON'S LETTER TO WIFE TELLS OF FOUR DAYS FIGHT FOR LIFE IN WOODS

Two Carrier Pigeons and Moss Formed the Food of Three Naval Lieutenants in That Time.

OLDEST MAN OFFERED TO SACRIFICE HIMSELF

He Was Made to Travel in His Underwear Because "He Would Have to Travel Hard or Freeze."

LIEUT. WALTER C. HINTON

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Out of the silent, frozen wilderness of Canada there has come the first authentic narrative of the adventures, the sufferings and the rescue, almost dead, of the three United States navy balloonists, whose fragile air vessel, storm-buffeted beyond control, landed near James Bay, Ont., on Tuesday, Dec. 14. That narrative the Post-Dispatch presents herewith.

It is in the form of two letters written by Lieut. Walter Hinton, one of the three daring officers who made up the balloon's crew.

This is the first time any of the men themselves has spoken. Hitherto only disjointed, fragmentary messages have reached the outer world. And coming from Hinton the narrative has all the greater authority because he was the actual, though not the nominal leader.

Letters to Wife and to Friend.

One letter is to Hinton's wife, who is rejoicing beyond words in their cottage near the Rockaway Air Station. The other is to his friend, Peter Talbot, a fellow-aviator who, with Mrs. Talbot, shares the Hinton home.

Hinton's story is not a formal, stilted report to his service chiefs, but an intimate, colorful tale told to those he loves best.

To his wife, in the missive written the very moment he and his companions—Lieut. Louis A. Kloor and Lieut. Stephen Farrell—reached the haven of Moose Factory after four days of wandering, Hinton gave the stirring account of the great adventure, in which all three proved themselves heroes, and in which one was ready to offer himself up as a sacrifice so that the others might live.

To his chum, "Tal," because the air is "Tal's" element, too, Hinton, who was one of the pilots of U. S. N. N C-4 which in 1919 made the first trans-Atlantic flight, set forth most of the technical details of the balloon voyage, although he revealed to Talbot, as well as to his wife, some of the hardships he and his fellow-officers underwent.

Here is Lieut. Hinton's letter to his wife:

BY LIEUT. WALTER HINTON.

"MOOSE FACTORY, Hudson Bay, Dec. 21, 1920.

"Dear Addie:

"I can imagine how pleased you will be to get this and how you must have suffered thinking we might be lost. We were lost for a time and these are a circumstances:

"We were in a terrific storm that night and could not see the ground and figured our safest place was in the air until we could locate ourselves.

"We were in the air over 25 hours and averaged about 33 miles an hour.

"At about 2 p. m., Tuesday, while at an altitude of 6500 feet and all our ballast expended, which included thermos bottles, carpet, lining of the basket and drag rope, and everything we could throw out to stay up, we heard a dog bark.

"We immediately started valving because we figured where there are dogs there must be life.

"We couldn't see the ground until we were almost on top of it and found ourselves landing in a dense forest.

"We started to walk and arrived here four days later. We had to eat during that time two carrier pigeons and moss from the ground.

"I lost my flying suit, could not sleep nights for fear I would freeze and never wake up.

"I didn't fear death, but felt so sorry for you, and my only hope was that you would some day find out what had really happened and how much I really thought and felt for you.

"Mr. Farrell fell from exhaustion several times. Wanted us to cut his throat and take his body for food and asked us to go on and let him die, but we decided to stick and die together. I was the only one that did not express my feelings and kept them cheered up.

Hinton Refused to Worry.

The third day, after Farrell had offered up a prayer and was apologizing for his sins, I smiled to the kid and said, "Just think what all you will have to tell your little kids some day, Kloor." Farrell said: "For God's sake, Hinton, what shall we do?' I said, 'You heard a dog bark, didn't you?' 'Yes.' 'Well, we are following a stream aren't we?' 'Yes.' 'Why, I haven't even started to take it serious yet. But if you don't stop your damn foolishness, brace up and keep your troubles to yourself, it will be serious.'

"Wait till you hear them sing my praise. I am given the credit for pulling the party through.

"Well we are about 250 miles from railroad, nine days' travel by dog sled; weather zero to 40 below; 1600 miles by dog sled and rail to New York.

"The first available transportation will be next Monday, as we are having snowshoes made, duffels, mittens, etc., for the trip. They won't let us leave and take a chance of freezing to death. Figuring nine days behind a dog team and four days by rail we may arrive in New York by Jan. 10 or 12. We travel all day, set up camp at night, which will be a tent. The Indians take us through and they are awfully clever. A white man is a tin god with them. We hardly have to lace our shoes. They cook, pitch tent, build large fires, and care for us as though we were babies, so we are as safe as can be.

Eight White Men There.

"There are about eight white men in this Indian settlement. The Indians trap bear, both grizzly and polar, mink, silver, red and white fox, seals and all fur-bearing animals.

"That's what this place is, a post belonging to a company called the Hudson Bay Co., that buys the Indians' furs and gives them provisions.

"It is most interesting up here and if it weren't for your worrying I would be content, but I am almost crazy thinking of how you must be suffering.

"Tell Tal to see that the paymaster wires us money as per our telegram to the C. O. and it will be at the railroad station by the time we get there.

"Will be home just as soon as possible. Lots of love as ever,

"WALTER."

Lieut. Hinton's friend, Peter Talbot, who, like Mrs. Hinton, had never accepted the possibility that the balloonists might be lost, was, of course, almost as overjoyed as she was when he received a letter from "Hint."

Particularly was he pleased at the calm way in which Hinton set forth the technical details—the altitudes, the speeds, the wind currents, and so on—of the voyage, just as he would had the two been talking as one airman to another.

Hinton's Letter to Friend.

"Here is Lieut. Hinton's letter to Talbot:

"HUDSON BAY COMPANY,
"MOOSE FACTORY, Dec. 22, 1920.

"Dear Tal: Just a few lines to give you the dope and what it's all about. We struck a deuce of a blow that Monday night and got into a

INQUIRY INTO PRICE GOVERNMENT PAID FOR COAL ORDERED

Action for Profiteering May Be Taken Against Firms That Supplied Fuel for Departments.

SCORE OF CONCERNS LISTED FOR SCRUTINY

Acting Attorney-General Says Prosecutions Will Be Pressed to Limit if Indications Are Borne Out.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Inquiry will be begun at once into the prices charged the Government for coal last year, acting Attorney-General Nebeker announced today upon receipt of the findings of the Senate Committee on Reconstruction which has been investigating the sale of fuel to the Government during the recent shortage.

Prices asked of Government departments for coal as set forth in the committee's report, the acting Attorney-General said, appeared to warrant and "even require" investigation by the Department of Justice. Prosecutions will be instituted and pressed to the limit, he added, should the facts developed by the investigation bear out the evidence submitted by the committee.

Nebeker said that action would lie under the Lever act for profiteering. Names of more than a score of concerns who had supplied coal to the Government were listed by the committee, he added, but would not be announced, pending an invstigation.

A decline in the price of retail coal was said to be indicated in reports reaching the coal investigating committee today from Chambers of Commerce and municipal authorities in various parts of the country.

LOWDEN TO BECOME FARMER

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 8.—Gov. Lowden will retire from office tomorrow. On the eve of his retirement Gov. Lowden declared he would devote his entire time and energy to the development of his fine farm lands in Illinois and in Arkansas. "I hope to make my Southern farm the finest plantation in the South," he said. "I am retiring from public office knowing that I have done my duty to the best of my ability and I shall work as a farmer just as I have worked as Governor of Illinois."

It is doubtful, say members of his official family, if the Governor would accept a post in President-elect Harding's Cabinet if offered one, and almost certain that he would not accept a foreign assignment, a position for which he has often been mentioned.

HEARING ON QUESTION OF ITS ADMISSION TO CONTINUE TOMORROW

Issue Raised Early in Trial of Alleged Slayer of Former Fiancee When State Calls City Jailer.

JUDGE RULES STATE MUST DISPROVE INTIMIDATION

Prisoner Tells the Court He Was Struck and Otherwise Abused While in the Hands of the Police and That Various Promises Were Made to Him.

Albert Ellis, 21 years old, of 4605 Sacramento avenue, told yesterday afternoon before Judge Hartmann, but in the absence of the jury which is trying him for murder in the first degree, his version of the circumstances under which he signed his confession of the murder of his former fiancee, Edna Ellis, 18, of 1833 North Garrison avenue. The girl was slashed to death with a razor the night of Nov. 4, in a vacant lot near her home.

Ellis signed the confession early Sunday morning, Nov. 7, after long-continued questioning. He repudiated it a few days later, after having retained counsel. His lawyer, William Maffitt Bates, is now demanding the exclusion from the evidence of the confession, and of testimony about subsequent statements in which Ellis repeated various details of the confession. Without such testimony, the State, which is demanding the death penalty, would be dependent wholly on circumstantial evidence.

State Calls City Jailer.

The State, yesterday morning, called John M. McCully, city jailer, to testify to a conversation in which Ellis repeated the essential details of the confession. Bates objected to this testimony, and the jury was sent out while McCully outlined his testimony to the Judge. Judge Hartmann, at the opening of the afternoon session, announced that he would admit McCully's testimony unless the defense could show that the statement to McCully was not made voluntarily.

In the endeavor to make such a showing, Bates called Ellis to the stand, the jury still being absent, and questioned him both about the formal confession to the police, and the later statement to the jailer. Ellis asserted that he was struck and otherwise abused while in the hands of the police and that various promises were made to him. He said he was still in fear when he talked with McCully, although McCully used no intimidation and made him no promises. At one point, he denied that he had made or signed any confession.

Judge Hartmann said:

"The Court is satisfied that Ellis was under the influence of fear when he made his second statement, and that if there was such fear at the time of the first confession, it continued at the time of the second statement. It is up to the State to offset the charge made, that the prisoner was intimidated."

Defendant Is Questioned.

The Circuit Attorney then questioned Ellis, taking him over the entire time he had described, and trying particularly to get him to name any individual, among the police officials questioning him, who had mistreated him. Ellis repeated his charges of blows and abuse, but would not charge any individual with any particular act of abuse, though his various questioners were brought before him for identification.

Crowd Not So Large.

At the adjournment of court, shortly before 5 p. m., Judge Hartmann said the same line of inquiry would be continued tomorrow and that the question of statements made to newspaper reporters would be gone into with the purpose of learning whether any of these statements was made under circumstances indicating that it was voluntary. This means that the jury, which will be confined today in the jury quarters of the Municipal Courts building, will still be kept out of the courtroom tomorrow morning.

The courtroom and corridor crowd yesterday, the second day of testimony in the trial, was not so large as that of Friday. A police Sergeant and 12 patrolmen kept the corridor gathering in line before the courtroom door, and admitted a person whenever one went out. The courtroom was not cleared at the noon recess, as was done Friday, and a number of young women remained, engaging the negro janitor to go out and buy sandwiches, fruit and milk chocolate for them, that they might not risk losing their seats. Late in the afternoon part of the corridor line was admitted to standing space in the courtroom. Mrs. Hartmann, the Judge's wife, was in the courtroom. The crowd, as on the previous day, consisted largely of young people.

Jailer McCully was called as a witness just as assistant Circuit Attorney O'Brien, his arms filled with law books, entered from an anteroom. Circuit Attorney Sidener remarked to reporters that he was going to lay the groundwork for the presentation of the confession to the jury.

"Did you have a conversation with Ellis in the jail?" O'Brien asked McCully, after the witness had told of having the prisoner in his custody and of being present when an alienist examined the prisoner.

Grounds of Objection.

Bates objected on the ground that any statement made by Ellis to McCully was not voluntary, that it was part of an enforced examination, and that the State had not shown that the condition of duress surrounding the defendant when he made his written confession to the police had been removed.

Judge Hartmann then ordered the jury excused and McCully proceeded to outline his testimony to the Court. He said he approached Ellis' cell several hours after the departure of the alienist, and asked the prisoner if he wanted to talk. He said he told Ellis he did not have to say anything about the case if he did not wish to.

McCully's Statement.

"He told me," McCully continued, "that he thought a great deal of the girl, and that they had fallen out. He said that he had become jealous, and decided to kill her and himself. He said he waited for her that night, and followed her after she left the street car (the Cass line, at Glasgow avenue and North Market street). He said that he took hold of the sleeve of her coat and said to her: 'What do you mean by saying that you are going to have somebody get me?'

"He said she pulled away from him and ran, and that he pursued her and drew a razor. He said he struck her and knocked her down, and that while she was lying on the ground he began slashing her with a razor. He said that when he pulled the razor and began slashing, she cried, 'Oh, Al, you've cut me.'

"I asked him why he had done it.

NAVAL BILL TO BE BASED ON PLAN FOR SLOW REDUCTION

Chairman Kelley Would Complete 1916 Program, but Keeps Disarmament of All Nations in View.

40 PER CENT CUT IN 1922 BUDGET FAVORED

Believes $100,000,000 Is Enough to Complete Ships Now Being Built—Hearing on Bill Tomorrow.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Gradual completion of the 1916 naval building program, but with the view to proportionate disarmament of the nations, is the general plan upon which Representative Kelley of Michigan, chairman of the Subcommittee on Naval Appropriations, contemplates framing the annual navy appropriation bill, for the fiscal year 1922. He favors approximately a 40 per cent reduction in the estimates for building ships next year.

Kelley outlined his views to President-elect Harding during a long conference at Marion last week. While stating that he favored proceeding with the navy bill along lines he recommended then, he was careful to disclaim any intention of setting forth Senator Harding's position in the matter.

Hearings will be opened Monday, the first to be held on this measure with Admiral Koontz, chief of naval operations, as the first witness. He will be asked to testify on the general plans for the navy next year.

Explaining his ideas about the bill, Kelley said:

"I think the policy probably will be to continue the building program of 1916 on the basis of what has been done without rushing or crowding the work. It will be just a normal healthy building for next year.

$184,000,000 for New Ships.

"The navy is asking for $184,000,000 for new ships alone—something more than 30, including six battle cruisers, 10 battleships and 10 scout cruisers.

"They are spending now about $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 a month as the work is going forward. I do not believe it will be necessary to carry forward the work any more rapidly than now. About $100,000,000 might be enough at the present rate of speed.

"The other big item is the pay of the navy. That will depend on the number of men that we appropriate for in the coming year. We will have first to see about the number of ships we will have to carry and the number of men required. I rather hope that we can find a good working program with 100,000 men. There are now 120,000.

"The men ought to be experienced. There are lots of boys in the navy now. The navy would be a lot more efficient with experienced men than with 120,000 men, many being raw recruits. The policy might well be to sift out the men. If we have a lot of boys it would be just as well to let the boys go and enlist older men.

"There will never be absolute disarmament; there may be a reduction of armaments. There probably will be. I told Senator Harding that in any discussion of the reduction of armament I couldn't see how we could avoid building these ships—building for the purpose of considering reduction of armament. It would cost as much now to discontinue the building as it would to finish it. Therefore, these weapons may as well be considered as being already in the navy."

Would Keep New Vessels.

Kelley said he would favor a proportionate disarmament under a proposition to do away with the oldest vessels and keep the new ones. They would be at the head of the list for retention.

"Reduction," he said, "should be made off the bottom, of the old ships and the old guns. Every nation will keep its new weapons. With these fine new ships practically finished no nation would ask us to sink them and keep the old. We would not ask Japan or England to scrap their new vessels. There isn't any reason why any nation should be dominant on the sea. We don't want to be." Kelley pointed out that England's alliance with Japan was made in the old days against Germany.

"England," he continued, "never could enter into an alliance with Japan against the United States. If she did it would destroy the British Empire. Australia is more anti-Japanese than California. Western Canada is more anti-Japanese than is California."

Sherman for Reduction in Navy.

Sherman favors a reduction in general naval construction if disarmament on land is found impossible at this time.

The opinion was expressed by many Senators tonight that a majority will be found for the Lenroot proposition to fix the minimum of the American army at 150,000. He will offer this suggestion as an amendment to the new resolution which stops all recruiting until the size of the army is reduced to 175,000 men. Lenroot would carry it 25,000 men beyond that point.

The general desire for lessened governmental expenditures and a reduction in military and naval establishments has become so great that the adoption of the Learoot amendment in the Senate is predicted.

The fixing of the American army at 150,000 would be 130,000 less than the 280,000 figure at which Secretary Baker now is aiming, and which is the maximum authorized under the recent army reorganization act. It is held that this would be a commendable step in the direction of reducing military armaments.

Those senators who are supporting the Borah resolution for limitation of naval construction programs continue to express the utmost confidence of its adoption when a vote is reached. They declare that sentiment for this resolution daily is growing stronger and say there is no possibility it will be shunted aside without action, or that it will be rejected when brought to a conclusion.

The matter of holding a session of the foreign relations committee was taken up today. Chairman Lodge may be able to attend Monday but that is uncertain. He is not yet recovered from the bronchial trouble with which he has been suffering. It is assumed that at the latest there will be a meeting early next week. It is agreed that final action shall be deferred until Lodge can be present at the meeting.

HARDING SAID TO SUPPORT NAVY'S BUILDING PROGRAM

Policy to Maintain Strong Sea Power Pending Disarmament Discussed With House Committee Head.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, O., Jan. 8.—A naval policy to keep the United States one of the strongest sea Powers in the world until a binding disarmament agreement can be reached, was discussed today by President-elect Harding and Representative Butler of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Naval Committee.

Afterward it was indicated that although a final decision must await developments, the present attitude of Senator Harding pointed to a continuation during his administration of the fleet construction program now in progress. Coupled with this program, however, would be a material curtailment in the number of civilian employes of the Navy Department and various economies in the land station under navy jurisdiction.

Harding long has favored an efficient navy as the first line of American defense and he is understood to feel that a big navy policy might be continued practically if steps are taken to curtail the strength of the army along the lines he approved yesterday in conference with Chairman Kahn of the House Military Committee.

Adequate Naval Reserve.

He also favors strongly the reserve system for both army and navy, and is understood to have indicated to Chairman Butler that an adequate naval reserve should be considered one of the requisites to national defense.

The whole question of the navy hinges, however, on what progress may be found possible in the movement for a general reduction of armament throughout the world. Butler, who is inclined to place little faith in the proposal, expects to develop in committee hearings, beginning next week, all the information available on the probable consequences of disarmament. This information he will turn over to Harding.

"I am determined to know," said the committee chairman, in a statement tonight, "what the other nations of the world sincerely desire in the way of an agreement to limit armament, and especially that of the sea."

Suggest World Conference.

The chairman called Harding's attention to the provision of the naval appropriation bill of 1916 requesting the President to make a canvass of world sentiment in regard to disarmament. He recommended that the new administration take advantake of this authorization and seek an exchange of international question quite separate from the plan for an association of nations.

Another of President-elect Harding's callers today was Daniel G. Reid, New York manufacturer and financier, who talked over the general financial situation and gave his opinion particularly on the problem of getting money systems back to a sound basis. Reid also held a long conference with Harry M. Daugherty, Harding's close political adviser, and said in a statement that he expected greater financial stability to result from the policies of the next administration.

Opposes Piecemeal Measures.

B. R. Inmant of Indianapolis, manager of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce, presented to Senator Harding the results of a comprehensive study made by his organization into financial conditions generally. He advised that there be no attempts to remedy the situation by piecemeal measures, but that farmers, manufacturers and all other groups be prevailed upon to take their share of after-war depression rather than to try each for himself to seize whatever special protection he can.

Late today the Ohio members of the electoral college came to Marion and paid a call of courtesy to Mr. Harding.

Although no definite date has been announced, it is expected here that the President-elect will leave Marion in about two weeks on his Southern trip. It generally is understood that most of the vacation will be spent in Florida, and that a house boat trip across the Everglades is one of the features in contemplation.

Mrs. Harding will leave here several days in advance of the Senator and will spend some time in Washington and New York shopping and attending to other personal errands preparatory to becoming mistress of the White House. Later she will join the vacation party in Florida.

The President-elect and his wife do not plan to return to Marion prior to the inauguration.

Hardings to Take Cruise on Senator Frelinghuysen's Yacht.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 8.—Senator Frelinghuysen's yacht, the Victoria, on which President-elect Harding and Mrs. Harding are expected to cruise in Florida waters soon, was in port today preparing for the trip. The Harding party probably will board the yacht at St. Augustine, Fla., and a full golfing equipment has been placed on the vessel for the use of the President-elect.

has made arrangement for motion pictures of the inaugural ceremony and of Senators and Representatives on the steps of the capitol. There will be bands from St. Louis and St. Joseph to provide music at the capitol during the day.

Lieutenant-Governor-elect Lloyd of St. Louis will be installed in the Senate chamber at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Following the ceremony there will be addresses in the Senate by former Gov. Herbert S. Hadley, now of Boulder, Colo.; Mrs. A. H. Brueggeman of St. Louis, a member of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee; Miss Alma Sasse of Brunswick, former chairman of the Republican Women's State Committee; Albert L. Reeves of Kansas City, Charles D. Morris of St. Joseph, former Judge Henry Lamm of Sedalia, Mayor Kiel of St. Louis, E. E. E. McJimsey of Springfield and Henry M. Beardsley of Kansas City.

In connection with the inauguration a special women's meeting has been arranged by the Republican State Committee in the hall of the House of Representatives. It will follow the inaugural ceremony.

The speakers will be Mrs. Brueggeman, Miss Sasse, Mrs. H. H. McCleur of Kansas City, and Mrs. Frank Sheldon of Kansas City. Miss Gertrude Gipson of Trenton will sing.

St. Louis Police Detail for Governor's Inaugural Named.

A detail of 31 policemen and detectives from the St. Louis department will leave tomorrow morning for Jefferson City for the inauguration ceremonies there in the afternoon and night. They will return Tuesday.

The men selected were named in requests of Chief O'Brien in a letter from Hiram Lloyd, Lieutenant-Governor elect, and State Senator Peter Anderson. The list, as submitted, was approved by the Police Board and the men notified yesterday of their selection.

The detail will be in charge of Lieut. Charles Loepker, Deer Street District, and includes Sergt. William Henry of the same district, who in the Easton-Taylor Trust Co. holdup was shot in the fight with the robber who killed one policeman and was himself killed; Adolph Amrhein, assistant secretary to the Chief; Patrolmen Lon Pulliam, Ora W. Morgan, Clarence Tyndell, Alex. L. Buchert, Samuel Stewart, George Drecksage, John Womack, William Hagemeyer, William Teepe, Henry Hollman, Edward Schrewing and William Buchannon and Detectives Ben Heckel, James Smythe, James Wilson, Leonard Ising, Joseph Linder, David Kemp, Edward Behnken, James Vasey, Elias Hoagland, George Rohlfing, Robert Agee, Andrew Aylward, Barney Griffin, Edward Dowd, Ben Steimel and Ambrose Malone.

SPECIAL INAUGURATION TRAIN

Travelers Can Utilize Coaches During Stay at Capital.

A special Missouri Pacific train for St. Louisans attending the inauguration of Governor-elect Hyde will leave Union Station tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. for Jefferson City. The train will consist of from three to eight sleepers, a chair car, a baggage car and a diner. The train will be held at Jefferson City all day and will be open during that time to the passengers. The diner will also serve all meals. The train will leave Jefferson City for St. Louis at 1 a. m. Tuesday.

DRAIN PIPE BLOCKED BY EEL

When Street Commissioner Barklage of St. Charles went to investigate a complaint that the sewer at the northeast corner of Clark street and Benton avenue was not being properly drained, yesterday morning, he discovered that an eel had taken up residence in the drain pipe and was blocking the passage of water from the flush-tank. The eel was nine inches long and one and a half inches in diameter, and when curled up completely closed the four-inch pipe.

The eel was removed and placed in a glass jar in the commissioner's office.

INQUIRY PLANNED BY CONGRESS INTO FARMERS' LOBBY

Two Committees Next Week Will Seek to Find Out Their Backing Following Alleged Coercion.

CHARGE THEY FOLLOW LABOR PLAN OF 1916

Federation Officers Promise to Involve Certain Corporations in Defeat of Muscle Shoals Appropriation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—An investigation generally of the farmers' lobby is being planned by Congressmen who resent what they term "threats of political extermination" unless they vote for measures the farmers are demanding. They charged today that farmers are "holding a watch on Congress as labor did in 1916" to obtain the Adamson law.

Two committees of the House plan next week to try to find out the backing of farm organizations. The Graham committee has tentatively set Monday morning for examination of President J. S. Howard of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who charged in letters to members that "influence" of large corporations defeated an appropriation for the Muscle Shoals Nitrate plant. The Banking and Currency Committee will quiz members of the federation. They have called upon Benjamin C. Marsh of the Farmers' National Council, who has been before congressional committees frequently, to furnish a statement as to the source of the financial backing of his organization. If the information is not forthcoming, other steps will be taken which may lead to efforts to obtain a general inquiry. Antagonism between organizations was indicated yesterday when Marsh was before the Banking and Currency Committee. When asked for a statement of his backing he suggested that the committee make inquiries also of the officers of the Farm Bureau Federation.

Graham Opposes Methods.

Chairman Graham of the War Investigating Committee said today that he is a friend of the farmer, but does not approve of some of the methods that are being used.

"No element," he said, "whether the farming class or whoever they may be, has any right to attempt to intimidate members of Congress by threats of political extermination to coerce them to do certain things in a legislative way.

"I do not think this man Howard represents the farmers of the country and do not believe that the agricultural interests of the country will be served by the plan he proposes. I think he represents a bunch of lobbyists here at Washington.

I am going to find out whom he represents, what he gets and by what authority he writes letters like the one he sent members of Congress on the Muscle Shoals proposition. There is no difference in this method of approaching Congress and the method that was adopted at the time of the Adamson measure. This letter was given to every member at a time when the farmers thought there would be a vote on this proposition, and that was what was done in the case of the Adamson law.

To Involve Corporations.

"I am the friend of the farmer and am in favor of all legislation that is fair and is not class legislation.

Officials of the Farm Bureau Federation conferred with Graham this morning on the letter.

They promise, when the hearing is held, to name "certain large corporations," whose influence, they claimed, brought about defeat of the Muscle Shoals appropriation. In the mail last night appeared a bulletin opposing the project. It was sent out by the Press Service Co. of 25 West Forty-third street, New York City, as "Nitrate Bulletin No. 3."

Ellis on Stand in Absence of Jury Gives His Version of Circumstances Under Which He Confessed

Jurors in Ellis Case May Take Walk Today, but Can't Attend Church

THE jury trying Albert Ellis for murder in the first degree is being kept together throughout the trial, the 12 jurors sleeping in a special room on the second floor of the Municipal Courts building, Fourteenth and Market streets, and taking their meals at a restaurant on Clark avenue. The law provides that jurors in a murder trial may not be separated.

The jury was assembled Friday morning and has been together since. Judge Hartmann, in whose court the case is being tried, suggested to deputy sheriffs in charge of the jury that the jurors be taken for a walk today, and this may be done. The route was not announced, for fear of interference by persons with ulterior motives. There is no chance of the jurors going to church, one reason being that the sermon might bear on the Ellis case.

Yesterday afternoon, when the jury was excluded from the courtroom, the jurors spent most of their time playing cards in the recreation room next to their sleeping quarters. Cots are provided for them. If newspapers are furnished the jurors, all articles bearing on the trial are first removed.

and he replied that it was because she was a pure girl. He said that when he ran away he lost his razor, and that was why he had not killed himself. He said that when he left the lot, he went home and remained up until 10 o'clock, and that when he retired he was unable to sleep. He said he remained at home all the next day (Friday, Nov. 5) and that evening went to his girl's house and played cards. The following day he was arrested.

"I told him," the jailer said, "that he would better keep his mouth shut while he was in the jail, or they (meaning apparently the other prisoners) would break his neck."

McCully said no intimidation or promise, of any character, was connected with the prisoner's statement to him.

Ellis was then called, and replying to his lawyer's questions, said he was 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighed 122 to 132 pounds. When the State objected to this as not pertinent, Attorney Bates declared, "When 200-pound Gerk (Police Lieutenant Gerk) smashes this kid, I want the record to show it."

Ellis said he had been arrested twice on charges of gambling with dice and had been fined once. On Friday evening, Nov. 5, he said, a policeman called at his home and took him to the Dayton Street Station, where he was questioned for a half hour about his acquaintance with Edna Ellis. After he was released, he said, he went to call on a young woman.

Saturday morning, Nov. 6, he said, he went downtown to electrical workers' union headquarters, and when he returned home, found policemen waiting for him. He said he was questioned about a ring which Edna had returned to him, and that he at first said he had lost the ring. Later, at the Dayton Street Station, he said, he told the police that he sold the ring to a man named Cummings.

Testifies He Denied Killing.

"Mrs. Ellis was called in and was asked if she could identify a razor," Ellis related. "She said she could not.

"The police stripped me at one time, and I did not get my shoes back at all while I was at the station. They kept asking me if I murdered Edna, and they took me to an undertaking establishment and showed me the body, and repeated, 'Did you kill this girl?' I told them I did not.

"They took my shoes away from me and when we returned to Dayton Street Station they asked me more questions and put me back in the cell for half an hour. Then they brought me back to the office and questioned me more. 'I am innocent of this crime,' I told them. 'We'll do a whole lot for you, treat us right and we will treat you right,' they said. I don't know which one said it.

"They asked me where I was that Thursday (Nov. 4). I told them I was at Cummings' filling station helping them put on an automobile top. I went home about 5:30 o'clock. My father asked me to go to the saloon and get him some beer. My mother asked me to get a bottle of catsup. I got these and ate supper and afterward half-soled my sister's shoes.

"I got through with that about 8:15. Then I finished a Christmas gift for my girl and went to bed between 9:30 and 10 o'clock.

"The next morning I left the house at 8 o'clock and met Walter Swoboda and we looked for employment.

"After I told them all this and they wouldn't believe me I told them to get my father, (meaning his stepfather, Ernest Kalthaler.) They said they asked him about this and he told them I was lying and was no account and to throw me in the back alley. They wouldn't get him down to prove this to me.

"Then I was in my cell 15 minutes more. They called me a liar and kept on saying 'Treat us right and we'll treat you right.' I refused. It would be telling a lie.

"I was in my cell until about 11 p. m., when a new police shift came on. They made me take off all my clothes again. They asked if those were the clothes I wore when I murdered Edna, and I told them I didn't murder her; that they were the clothes I wore that night, and that I had other clothes at home.

Alleges He Was Beaten.

"There were two desk lights that hurt my eyes. I couldn't look at them, but they made me. They punched me every time I said no, and beat me with rubber hose.

"'Why don't you tell us you did it?' they said, and promised that if I would say so, they would get me out on bond before Sunday evening. When I tried to sleep, they wouldn't let me, but threw police sticks at me."

Continuing his recital of what took place at the police station, Ellis said policemen, in addition to hitting him with clubs, pounded him with a piece of rubber hose. They frequently dragged him from his cell, he said, and repeated time and again, "Did you kill Edna Ellis?"

Denies Making Confession.

"How long did they keep it up?" asked Bates.

"All night long," replied Ellis.

"Did you ever make a confession?"

"I did not."

Assistant Circuit Attorney O'Brien then objected to a continuation of the examination on the ground that if Ellis denied having made the confession there was no necessity for the examination.

"We propose to show that the police made the confession and forced Ellis to sign it," said Bates.

O'Brien objected.

"Did you sign a document at the police station?" Bates asked Ellis.

"I do not remember," said Ellis.

"Why don't you remember?" asked Bates.

Judge Hartmann sustained an objection to this question, but permitted Bates to continue the examination, telling the attorneys that the inquiry was being conducted for the benefit of the Court and reminding them that the jury was absent.

He said the police repeatedly assured him they would help him make a confession if he would plead guilty, and that they called a stenographer and asked him if he wanted to make a confession of the crime, and that he was forced to say yes.

Then they took him to the scene of the crime, he declared and there he said he was questioned and beaten into admissions of affirmative questions as to his presence in the lot with Edna Ellis, the commission of the crime and disposition of the weapon used. He declared the police asked him such questions as, "And you ran this way," "And you ran that way?" and kicked and beat him when he did not respond in the affirmative.

Tells of Police Threat.

He said they took him to a brick pile and tried to make him state he had stumbled over it, and when he hesitated to answer yes, threatened to hit him with a brick, and that they took him to a sewer in search of a handkerchief, where spectators became so threatening that the police took him back to the station.

He declared he never told them where to find a razor or any articles used in commission of the crime. He said he was questioned incessantly at the police station and kept without food and not allowed to sleep, even after being removed to Central Police Station holdover. He admitted signing "something" to avert "other beatings" at the hands of the police, and said his stepfather and uncle, who were at Central station when he was taken there, had been threatened with imprisonment by Chief of Police O'Brien, if they said Ellis was at home at the time of the murder.

Ellis said McCully did not introduce himself at their first conversation, and that he was in fear of him.

"Two women called at the jail," he said, "and asked me if I was going to plead guilty. I said yes. I didn't have any lawyer then. I learned that the women were trying to identify me in a killing at Normandy Grove last summer."

He said that Conductor Taylor of the Cass line, who testified against him earlier in the day, saw him at the police station and professed to be unable to identify him.

Testimony Further Delayed.

Ellis said, in reply to questions of Circuit Attorney Sidener, that McCully used no intimidation or promises, but he insisted that he was in fear of McCully.

The Circuit Attorney then asked that the jury be recalled and McCully's testimony be heard, but Judge Hartman made his remark indicating that he believed Ellis was influenced by fear in the talk with McCully.

The Circuit Attorney then recalled Ellis, who had left the stand, and started a more thorough questioning about the details over which he had gone. Ellis was asked why he sometimes went by his stepfather's name, Kalthaler, and said he did this to help his standing with the electrical workers' union.

Sidener took Ellis in hand to ask him just when and by whom he was in any way abused, beginning with a review of his testimony of attacks by the police. Ellis mentioned having seen Lieut. Darby O'Brien at the station when he was rearrested, and identified Capt. Johnson as having been at the Dayton Street Station. Sidener brought Ellis up to a late hour Saturday afternoon, Nov. 6, without any complaint on Ellis' part of abuse.

Identifies Policemen.

The Circuit Attorney proceeded to bring before Ellis, for identification, Lieut. Gerk, Lieut. Harry Maloney, Sergt. Martineau and Patrolman Whalen. He recognized them all, but would not directly accuse any of them of having struck him.

He said that, after he had declared to Lieut Gerk that he did not know who killed Edna, someone struck him with a rubber hose, knocking him from his chair. He could not say who struck him. He told of being struck in the face afterward, and when he was asked what part of the face, he replied, "All over."

The original, signed confession, made in the Dayton Street Station, was shown to Ellis, and he said the signature was not his. He said that later Sunday he signed "something" in the presence of Chief of Police O'Brien, doing so because he was afraid not to, as he said there were many men in the office asking him different questions. He admitted his signature to the supplementary confession, but said it was signed through fear.

Sidener asked Ellis if he did not tell his stepfather and uncle on Sunday, at the police station, that he killed Edna. Ellis replied that someone asked him a question to that effect in the presence of these relatives, but that he replied in the negative.

Didn't Remember Reporter.

He said a reporter visited him Sunday evening, Nov. 7, at the Dayton Street Station, and obtained his life history. He said the reporter gave him his name, but that he could not remember it. When the reporter who made this visit was brought before him, he was not sure of his identity.

At this point Attorney O'Brien broke in, saying to Judge Hartmann, "I have been notified by persons in the courtroom that Mr. Bates is giving Ellis the wigwag, and I have been watching that myself. Every time Ellis replied 'yes' Bates nodded his head one way and when the nod was in another way Ellis answered 'no.'" Bates denied giving his client any signals. A few moments afterward he asked the Court to have O'Brien change his seat for fear the latter's nearness to the witness box might frighten the prisoner.

The Circuit Attorney then asked Ellis if he had not told Chief of Detectives Hannegan that he committed the murder.

"Only through force," Ellis replied.

"What do you mean by 'force?'"

"I was beaten."

Says He Was Clubbed.

"When were clubs thrown at you?" Sidener asked Ellis.

"All night long Saturday," was the reply. "I don't know how many clubs were thrown or how often I was hit. I was beaten off and on by officers until I was taken to the city jail, which was Tuesday morning, I think. They used police clubs and broomsticks on me."

Ellis said the policemen who beat him with clubs poked their clubs through between the bars of his cell.

"Don't you know there are screens over those bars?" asked Sidener.

"There are not."

"Well, you had already told them all about it on Sunday, why did they beat you until Tuesday?"

"Because they wanted me to tell them more. I did not know it was Tuesday until another prisoner in the jail told me."

Ellis repeated that he was not coerced, intimidated nor offered immunity while at the jail. Then the adjournment until tomorrow was ordered.

Testimony of Conductor.

Edward R. Taylor of 3712 Garfield avenue, a Cass line conductor, testified earlier that he saw Albert Ellis standing at the northeast corner of Glasgow avenue and North Market street at about 7:25 o'clock the night of the murder, as he ran past the corner northbound, and saw him again, but at the northwest corner, as he returned southbound, about 8:25. He was on the car ahead of the one run by Henry G. Fuchs of 2833 Abner place, motorman, who testified Friday.

Taylor said he noticed Ellis particularly, as he thought at first that he was someone whom he knew. He said he wore a dark fedora hat, and had on "a sort of mackinaw." He said Ellis was leaning with one foot against a lamp post when he saw him the second time.

Taylor was not named as a witness on the indictment, though he identified Ellis at the Dayton street police station on the day of Ellis' confession. The introduction of his testimony was permitted over an objection by the defense.

At one point in the cross-examination of Taylor, when many spectators laughed aloud, Special Prosecutor O'Brien moved that the courtroom be cleared of those not directly interested in the trial. Judge Hartmann threatened to exclude anyone from the room who interrupted the proceedings.

Bates said he concurred in the motion but that he believed the witness had made himself so ridiculous that it was but natural for spectators to laugh. Judge Hartmann said that the laughter was not necessary and repeated his threat.

Laughter Follows Questioning.

Taylor had said that he positively identified Ellis on his first visit to the police station, and then had returned to the station.

"Why did you go back to the station?" Bates asked.

"To make sure," replied Taylor.

"Then you were not so positive the first time?"

"Yes, I was."

"Well, then you did not tell the truth when you said you returned to make sure?"

"It wasn't untrue."

Then the audience laughed.

Motorman Fuchs was recalled for further cross-examination, which did not materially alter the story he told Friday afternoon. His statement then was that he saw Albert Ellis follow Edna Ellis west on North Market street from Glasgow avenue at 8:30 p. m., Nov. 4. He fixed the time by the schedule of his run.

Claude McKeehan of 2605 Slattery street, a Cass line motorman, testified that, about a week before the murder, he got off his car at Glasgow and North Market, saw Albert Ellis and Edna Ellis standing there, and heard them qurreling. He said he noticed them particularly because Edna was a pretty girl.

He said he did not hear all that was said, but that Albert Ellis was urging the girl to accompany him, and that she said, "No, I'm through with you." At this, he said, Ellis said, "You can go to hell." He formed the impression that Ellis was very angry. He identified Ellis, and said a picture of Edna Ellis, printed in the Post-Dispatch, was that of the girl.

Woman Tells of Finding Body.

Mrs. Lena Carter of 1831A North Garrison avenue, a neighbor of Edna Ellis and her mother, Mrs. Marie Ellis, testified that Mrs Ellis called at her home about 7:30 a. m. Nov. 5, and said that Edna was missing. She called Mrs. Francis, another neighbor, and they looked about the neighborhood. They walked along the vacant lot, on the north side of North Market street, and noticed footprints leading up the terrace. They followed these prints and found Edna's body, lying about 10 feet back from the edge of the terrace. Mrs. Carter described the position of the body, with the hands clutched at the side of the cheek, and with the demolished canteen lying near the feet.

In cross-examining Mrs. Carter, Attorney Bates tried to show that the weeds on the lot were broken down only at the place where the body lay, and were upright all around, thus indicating that the struggle had occurred at some place other than where the body lay. Mrs. Carter said, in reply to other questions, that she had never heard Edna or her mother talk of Albert Ellis, or speak of fearing him, and that Edna's associates, so far as she had observed, were girls.

ELOPING COUPLE, FOUND IN ST. LOUIS, TAKEN TO CHICAGO

Warrants Issued in That City Charge Man With Deserting His Family and Grand Larceny.

BOTH SAY THEY WILL SUE FOR DIVORCES

Husband of Woman Says He Believes Wife of Her Admirer Is the Most Injured Party.

Pierre Paul Auther, 38 years old, chemical engineer, who has a wife and baby at Highland Park, Ill., and Mrs. Lillian Franzen, 28, wife of the chief decorator of the University of Wisconsin, at Madison, were taken from St. Louis to Chicago yesterday, warrants having been issued charging Auther with desertion of his family and grand larceny, based upon the assertion of Philip M. Franzen, the woman's husband, that Auther compelled him at the point of a revolver to give a check for $100 to pay expenses of flight with his wife.

Franzen has said that while he is eager to prosecute Auther, he is willing that the prisoner be turned over to the Highland Park authorities, believing that Mrs. Auther is the most injured party. Mrs. Auther has expressed willingness to forgive her husband and says she will even love him if he will give up Mrs. Franzen and return to her. Auther and Mrs. Franzen told the police here that they will seek divorces and be married.

Taken at Editor's Home.

Auther and Mrs. Franzen were arrested at 1:40 a. m. yesterday in the home of Frank W. Taylor Jr., managing editor of the St. Louis Star, at 709 Limit avenue, where they were being interviewed by Taylor and a reporter. They had been traced to the Pontiac Hotel through their baggage, which had been sent from Chicago and checked from Union Station to the hotel.

A Globe-Democrat reporter also had traced the baggage and learning that the couple had been taken from the hotel in a taxicab to the Taylor home informed the police and caused their arrest. When taken to Police Headquarters Auther and Mrs. Franzen said that they had intended to return to Chicago on the first train. They waived extradition.

Auther and Mrs. Franzen told the police here that they met for the first time about seven months ago at a social gathering and fell in love. Auther said that he wife had been "cranky." He said that he called at the Franzen home at 11 p. m. last Tuesday and informed Franzen that he was in love with Mrs. Franzen. Franzen showed no emotion, Auther said, talked over financial affairs with Mrs. Franzen and gave her a check for $100.

Denies Displaying Revolver.

Auther said that he had not displayed a revolver, as charged by Franzen, but admitted that he carried one in a holster beneath his coat at the time. He also denied having told Franzen that he and Mrs. Franzen had been married in Australia 13 years ago, as had been stated by Franzen to the police.

Mrs. Franzen said that she did not get along well with her husband, that he did not treat her well and that she intended to cling to Auther providing he succeeds in obtaining a divorce from his wife.

Auther Released On His Own Recognizance in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Pierre Paul Auther and Mrs. Phillip Franzen, who eloped from Madison, Wis., last Tuesday were brought back to Chicago today from St. Louis where they were arrested when it became known that there was a warrant for Auther, charging him with abandonment of his wife and baby at Highland Park, Ill., and another charging larceny of $100 from Mrs. Franzen's husband in Madison. He was released late tonight, however, upon his own recognizance.

Auther and Mrs. Franzen were accompanied from St. Louis by a detective. oBth reiterated their denials that Auther had threatened Franzen with a pistol and said the story they had told Franzen about having been married in Australia 13 years ago was made up on the spur of the moment so that Franzen would not feel so badly about his wife's running away with Auther.

RED CROSS ALLOTS $5,000,000 TO AILING CHILDREN OF EUROPE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The American Red Cross Executive Committee has appropriated $5,000,000 from the society's reserve fund to carry out its program of furnishing desperately needed medical assistance for children in Europe.

In making this announcement tonight, Dr. Livingston Farrand, chairman of the Central Committee, said the scope of the society's relief operations in Europe was being altered to be confined almost entirely to this work.

'Buyers' Strike' Given as Business Depression Cause in Replies to Questionnaire

Mississippi Valley Association Summarizes Answers From 3000 Persons—Speculation and Profiteering Also Cited.

A summary of answers to 3000 questionnaires sent out by the Mississippi Valley Association to determine the sentiment among members toward questions affecting business conditions, was made public yesterday at the offices of the association here.

It shows that the members, who are mostly bankers, manufacturers and merchants, believe that the present depression is due to the universal demand of the public for lower living costs, which has resulted in a general spontaneous "buyers' strike;" also that the law of supply and demand has little bearing on the situation; that no additional system of credits is needed, and that there has been too much speculation.

Some of the members admitted that there had been too much profiteering; others asserted that there had been too much talk about profiteering, and that the public had been led to expect a decline in the cost of commodities before a decline was warranted. Some said that wages would have to go down before prices decline, although no reference was made in that connection to the fact that prices advanced before wages increased.

Six Questions Propounded.

Six questions were propounded in the questionnaires, which were sent out to all cities between Chicago and New Orleans. The first question was: "Do you believe the individual and financial condition of business in the United States to be basically sound?"

The summary says the question was unanimously answered in the affirmative, and that criticism of the present condition is mainly due to a "state of mind."

The second question included two clauses: (a) "How do you account for the present depression in business; and (b) for the public's attitude toward business." Answers reflected a belief that the necessary deflation of wartime inflation had conducted the present situation to a degree. Many declared that wartime prices had been too high, and that the reaction had resulted in a general waiting for stabilization at normal levels. Some contended that reduction in prices had been too precipitate in certain cases. Profiteering was cited by others.

Many of the respondents said they believed the public had heard too much about profiteering. "The public has the unalterable idea," says the summary, "that abnormal profits were made during the war and is unduly suspicious of the present trend of affairs."

Question 3, "what additional system of credits should be inaugurated (if any) to release money when urgently needed in our agricultural and industrial centers?" was generally answered with the statement that the Federal Reserve System is satisfactory for long-term farm credits; also with specific recommendations for the establishment of farm loan banks and reopening of land banks.

Speculation Blamed.

The fourth question was: "Do you think present market conditions are predicated wholly upon the law of supply and demand, and if not, what else is responsible?" The consensus of opinion was that speculation had much to do with the situation; also, inflation and extravagance. In a few instances, it was charged that combinations had sought to bolster prices. Some agricultural interests declared that resumption of trading in grain in the exchanges had brought down values and injured them. Lack of adequate transportation facilities was emphasized.

Question 5 follows: "What kind of insidious and unfortunate propaganda have come to your attention that would lead the public to erroneous conclusions with regard to market conditions and business generally?" The analysis of the replies says the public is "rumor-ridden," and given to "loose thinking." Socialist criticisms of the business interests have been injurious in prejudicing the public against business, it says.

The sixth question was: "What sort of justified and constructive business propaganda should be given general publicity in these days of readjustment?" A variety of replies were received. Many slogans were suggested to get the public to buy. Among them were: "Get the people to believe in the fundamental honesty of business;" "Buy as usual;" "Stop buying and you stop business," and "Anything which discountenances the integrity of business must be stopped." Some suggested, however, that "business should be more honest with the public;" others advised that business propaganda should set forth that the "open shop" would help the situation. Many advocated furnishing the press with propaganda representing the business interests in a favorable light.

RED-HAIRED ROBBER CAUGHT IN CHASE AFTER HOLDUP OF GROCERY

ey. The president of the concern is Philip Fouke, a member of the Police Board.

William Brockman, grocer at 605 North Ewing avenue, who was held up and robbed of $62 in his store by two highwaymen last Thursday night, identified McGuire as one of the robbers.

Shot in Dance Hall Holdup.

William Wiber, 21 years old, of 2702 Stoddard street, who was wounded twice by shots fired by Joseph Davis, a negro, at 10:30 o'clock last night, following the holdup of a dance hall conducted by Davis, at 2602A Pine street, admitted to the police after his arrest that he was one of the two men who took part in the holdup. The faces of both the robbers were blackened with grease, so that they resembled negroes. The fact that Wiber was a white man was not discovered until he reached City Hospital No. 2, which is for negroes.

Davis' dance hall is on the second floor at the address on Pine street, and Davis was seated at the ticket office at the entrance to the hall at the head of the stairs. Davis said the two robbers walked up the stairs and both drew revolvers, commanding him to put up his hands. The robbers searched the cash drawer, taking $15, but failed to search Davis.

As the two men turned away, Davis, who said he put up only one of his hands, drew his revolver and began firing.

Crowd Joins in Chase.

Davis told the police that the second robber was the one who took the money and ran down the stairs in front of Wiber. The robbers ran to Jefferson avenue, then south to Lawton avenue, with Davis following close behind. More than 200 negroes who were in the dance hall, hearing the shots, rushed from the hall and joined in the chase.

Patrolmen Edward Dundon and John Bauer, who were walking south on Jefferson avenue from Olive street, heard the shots, and saw the men turn west into Lawton avenue. They also joined in the chase.

At Beaumont and Lawton Wiber became exhausted and fell to the street. When the patrolmen arrived he did not resist arrest. The patrolmen, mistaking him for a negro, took him to City Hospital No. 2, but when physicians began wiping the blood from his face the "blacking" came off also. Wiber then was transferred to the city hospital.

Wiber was wounded once through the left shoulder, and the other bullet struck him behind the right ear, but did not pierce the brain. Physicians said neither wound was serious, and he later was taken to the Laclede Avenue Station.

Served Penitentiary Term.

The police say Wiber admitted that he was released from the penitentiary at Jefferson City last September, after serving a five-year term for highway robbery from St. Louis County. He said he was a machinist, but had not been working since his release from prison.

He refused to tell the name of his accomplice, who escaped. He said they became acquainted last night, and that the stranger suggested the robbery of the dance hall.

Captures Two Negro Robbers.

Two negro robbers were captured at 10 o'clock last night by Patrolman William Bunting, 57 years old, of 1607 North Euclid avenue. The men gave their names as Henry Smith, 18, of 2210 Chestnut street, and Joseph Woods, 31, of Granite City, Ill., and confessed, the police said.

About 9:40 o'clock two negroes entered the home of John Morelock, 47 years old, 6210 Wells avenue, who lives alone, and after binding him with towels, beat him with a revolver and robbed him of $4.70.

A few minutes later two negroes robbed Charles F. Thiers, 20, of 3018 New Ashland avenue, a postal special delivery messenger, of $6.70, his flashlight and knife, near Plymouth and Hodiamont avenues.

Ehlers left his bicycle and went to Bartmer avenue on a Hodiamont car, where he informed Patrolman Bunting of what occurred. Bunting ran in the direction Ehlers said the negroes had gone and saw them walking west on Etzel avenue, near Delaware. They started to run when they saw him, but he drew his revolver and captured them.

At the Page boulevard station they were identified by Ehlers and Morelock as the negroes who robbed them, and Ehlers' knife and flashlight and $10.40 were found on them. They said they threw the revolver away when they saw the officer.

Watchman Captures Negro Robber.

Martin Ryan, a private watchman, captured a negro who was attempting to break into the rear of the clothing store of N. Weitzman & Sons, 704 North Main street, at 10 o'clock last night. The negro gave his name as Samuel Clark, 35 years old, 1127 North Fifteenth street.

Ryan heard a noise in the alley, and, detouring through an areaway from Lucas avenue, surprised the negro, who had broken a window and was attempting to force an entrance through iron bars with a wooden stake. He started to fight Ryan, who drew his revolver and threatened to shoot. Ryan turned the negro over to the police.

Movie Ball and Entertainment.

The St. Louis Film Board of Trade, composed of every film exchange in the city, in collaboration with the Missouri State Exhibitors' League, will be sponsors of a movie ball and entertainment at Arcadia Hall Friday night, Jan. 21. The convention of the Missouri Exhibitors' Association will be in session at that time. Among the players representing various film companies who have been invited to attend are Priscilla Dean, Carmel Meyers, Martha Mansfield, Eugene O'Brien, Katherine MacDonald, Pauline Frederick and Pearl White.

VILLARD RETURNS HOME; DETECTIVES TELL OF KIDNAPING

Editor Reported Suffering From Shock From Experience at Hands of Abductors in Chicago.

SAID TO HAVE BEEN ROBBED OF $500

Statement by Burns Agency Says Kidnapers Held Him 11 Days in Effort to Force Him to Write for Money.

Jacques Villard, crippled editor and language teacher, who returned yesterday to his home at 7206 Pershing avenue, University City, after a disappearance of 11 days, was said last night to be suffering so severely from the shock of an experience with kidnapers that he was unable to make a statement for publication.

The Burns Detective Agency, which was employed to search for him, issued a statement earlier in the day saying that Villard had been abducted from the Hotel La Salle in Chicago on the evening of Dec. 27, by a ruse, and held in a darkened room somewhere in that city until Friday night, when his abductors becoming apprehensive of detection, released him.

Reporters who called at the Villard home last night found a note on the door saying: "No reporters will be received." Nevertheless, a Post-Dispatch reporter managed to see Mrs. Villard, who said: "My husband is ill from his experience, and the doctor has forbidden him to talk about it." She said, however, that he had not been injured by his captors, so far as she had learned.

The detectives' statement was that Villard went to Chicago to engage an associate editor for the New Age, a combined English and Polish language newspaper which he edits here and prints in Chicago. There a man giving a Polish name answered an advertisement, and, while declining to accept the position, suggested the name of a cousin in New York, said the statement.

Carried Away in Auto.

"On the pretext of taking Villard to the railroad station," it continued, "the man carried him to an automobile (both Villard's legs are off above the knees) and took him to a house in the city, blindfolding him as the machine approached the place.

"He was held in a darkened room until last (Friday) night, when the first abductor and two companions took him to a part of the city known as Franklin Court, and lifted him out of the machine, giving him an automobile robe to keep him from freezing. He called for help, and several pedestrians, believing him to be drunk, ignored his appeals. Finally he got a taxicab, drove to the railroad station, called up the Burns agency, and departed for St. Louis accompanied by a detective.

"During his incarceration the men repeatedly tried to make him send to his wife for money, but he convinced them that she had none. Fearing then that his absence would alarm his wife, they made Villard write a note to her, saying that he was in New York, and had been detained. This was sent to a subscriber of Villard's in New York, who was asked to mail it there. The man did so.

Warned Wife Through Signature.

"Villard, however, seeing a chance to warn his wife, signed his name 'Jack,' which was not his custom. Mrs. Villard sensed something wrong, and notified the agency and the police.

"Villard was compelled by the men to sign a check for $700, but this was later returned to him."

It was stated, however, that Villard was robbed of all his money and jewelry, amounting to something less than $500. He was fairly well fed, and was not beaten, it was stated.

"Before Villard was released," the statement added, "he heard his captors discussing whether they should kill him. One argued that murder was too grave a crime to be involved in. The fact is that the penalty for kidnaping and murder are the same in Illinois."

In addition to editing his paper at his home, Villard also conducts a correspondence school in languages, mainly for the benefit of foreigners desiring to speak English.

WOMAN WHOM HAPPINESS AIDED TO LIFE OF 100 YEARS, DIES

Infirmities of Age Given as Cause of Demise of Mrs. Anna M. Steiger, Near Belleville.

Mrs. Anna Marie Steiger, who was 100 years old last Dec. 8, died at her home in Sugar Loaf Township, near Belleville, yesterday morning from the infirmities of age. She had often attributed her long life to her frugal habits and happy home life. She had been married twice.

The funeral will take place from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Phillip Herr, 70 years old, in Sugar Loaf Township, this morning, and interment will be in the Columbia Cemetery.

SEARCH FAILS TO REVEAL TRACE OF WILLIAM A. HART

Wife of Man Missing From Home in Sterling Apartments Since Tuesday Convinced of Foul Play.

SUSPECTS POKER PLAYING ASSOCIATES

Tells Police That Husband Had Previously Taken Diamonds From Her — Had Good Annual Income.

No trace of William A. Hart of the Sterling Apartments, 5316 Pershing avenue, who yesterday was reported by his wife as missing from home since Tuesday, was disclosed by the investigation of detectives of the Page Boulevard Station last night, and Mrs. Hart, who expressed the belief earlier in the day that her husband had been kidnaped, was more convinced than ever that he had met with foul play. Hart is 45 years old and a son of the late Augustus B. Hart, who resided at 19 Portland place, and by whose will Hart inherited an income of about $10,000 a year from his share of the estate in trust. He has an office in the Wainwright building, Seventh and Chestnut streets, where Mrs. Hart had been told her husband had not been since Monday.

Mrs. Hart told the detectives that her husband left home as usual Tuesday morning in his automobile, a Ford sedan, and since then she has had no word from him. She said that previously he had taken some diamonds from her, and that she suspected associates of his, with whom he had been playing poker, have something to do with his disappearance. She said she knew he had gambled in East St. Louis from time to time. They have two children, William D., 10 years old, and Edward D., 4.

Detectives at first visited all the hotels in the hope of locating Hart, but at the places where he is known it was said he had not been seen for more than a week.

Hart's father died suddenly at Atlantic City, N. J., in 1916, leaving an estate in excess of $1,000,000, consisting largely of downtown property. His mother died suddenly at Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1918, from poison said to have been taken by mistake.

Mrs. Hart said her husband had been in failing health for about two years.

NAVAL BALLOONIST'S STORY OF FIGHT FOR LIFE IN CANADIAN WILDS

blinding rain and snow storm. We made good a course N by W as a crow flies 820 miles from New York, but about 1500 or 1600 miles from New York by dog sled, and rail.

"We maintained an altitude of approximately 3000 feet, being driven, I imagine, S. W., at lower altitude than N. E. at upper altitude. We did not see a thing the remainder of the flight. The only place was Wells, N. Y., and once when we hung up in the Adironudak Mountains, crashing into trees, and nearly got sick before we got out.

"We kept going, seeing nothing, and after 25 hours' flight and every ounce of available ballast expended, including drag rope, lining out of the basket, etc., and when at an altitude of 6500 feet we heard a dog bark, the kid immediately chinned himself on the valve cord and made knots coming down.

"We saw what we thought was a house, but it turned out to be a haystack as we found out four days later. As we had no ballast whatever we hit the ground with a crash and porpoised a couple hundred feet or so, and then hung up on the side of some trees and stuck. We abandoned the balloon and started walking in the direction we heard the dog. We stuck it out for four days, ate two carrier pigeons between us between that time and ate moss, snow, etc.

Had to Travel Hard or Freeze.

"We had a box of matches, and would build a fire when Steve would give out and pass out, due to exhaustion. He wanted to commit suicide, and wanted us to leave him, but, of course, we couldn't see that. I carried his flying suit and the compass, and led the party. I discarded my suit to carry Steve, and at night Steve and Kloor had something to sleep in, and I did not. In the daytime I made him travel in his underwear so he had to travel hard or freeze.

"We finally found a creek, then dog and sleigh tracks on the river, then an Indian who tried to run away from us; we put up our hands and followed him to this place. We have to have some clothes made, and wear snowshoes, travel behind dog sled for nine or 10 days. We leave Monday, Dec. 27, and reach New York by the 10th or 12th of Jan.

"We are taking daily practice on snowshoes. The temperature here reaches from zero to 40 degrees below. The Indians are still looking for the balloon. They have made two attempts, but did not get far enough. They look upon us as being wonders for getting through.

"Kloor and Steve Farrell send their best. Give my best to the boys, Mrs. Talbot and Addie.

"WALTER."

Came Down Long Trail.

The letters of Lieut. Hinton to his wife and friend came down the long trail from Moose Factory, where the balloonists found shelter, to Mattice, the nearest hamlet on the Canadian National Railroad, and thence to Montreal and down to New York.

Although they were written Dec. 21, they did not reach Mattice until Jan. 3. Probably they were held at Moose Factory, the Hudson Bay Co.'s trading camp, for a few days before a "packet"—as a dog-hauled expedition bound for civilization is termed—started for Mattice. Normally, as the outside world has come to know within the week, it takes nine or ten days, under excellent conditions, to make the journey. The distance is well toward 200 miles, over rough country, with frequent natural obstacles to overcome.

Apparently the missives were brought down by a "packet" of Revillon Frees, the fur dealers, for they bear a large "R" near the brown Canadian stamps on which is shown King George's likeness. The envelopes bear the legend, "The Hudson Bay Co., Incorporated, A. D., 1670."

The letter to Mrs. Hinton, which was a special delivery, bore 13 cents worth of stamps; that to Talbot only 4 cents worth. This arrived a day later than the first.

Hinton wrote to his wife on a sheet of thin foolscap, in closely pencilled lines, covering one whole side of the sheet and three quarters of the other side.

His chirography is small and rather careful, though he didn't pay a whole lot of attention to punctuation and capitalization. It is needless to say he was not writing with any idea that his pencilled messages would ever be laid before the public.

Lieut. Kloor, one of Hinton's mates in the balloon, wrote some notes to New York also, but they were not of the importance and did not have the graphic qualities of Hinton's writings. Kloor, although actually in charge of the expedition, is the youngest of the three airmen, and, as Hinton's letters show, was called "The Kid."

Hinton, by reason of his greater experience, and perhaps because of his natural aptitude, was the real leader of the party. "Hinton of the NC-4," they call him throughout the navy. For many hours of the flight of that winged caravel across the Atlantic, it was his strong arm that struggled with the wheel.. He was one of the actual pilots.

His letters show the peril he and his mates were in from the beginning—crashing into trees in the Adirondacks, "porpoising" (which means striking the ground and bouncing again into the air) at the end of the flight, and at all times being at the mercy of the winds and storms at lofty altitude.

"It sounds just like Walter," said Hinten's wife and friends.

He was a "gob," originally, and won his way to a commission through sheer ability and technical knowledge. He is 32, has been in the navy for 12 years, and is considered one of the best seaplane pilots in the service. He has handled everything from the little old Curtiss "Flying Boats" to the gigantic N. C. ships. He is senior squadron commander at the Rockaway Station.

He stands 5 feet 10 inches, and weighs about 155 pounds. He has blue eyes and light brown hair, and is commonly called "Hint." He has been married four years.

Mrs. Hinton declares she never really was seriously worried about him. She is a slender, blue-eyed, brown haired girl of 22.

"Of course, it was a wonderful relief to get Walter's letter and to know exactly where he was,. and how he was feeling," she said tonight. "But I give you my word that never at any time since Walter sailed away did I think he was lost.

"Tal, here (Hinton's chum, Talbot) and Mrs. Tal have been equally confident. We four have been the best of friends for several years. We talked the thing over every day, of course, and many times a day, but always we agreed that we would not be seriously worried until spring. In fact, we were almost reconciled, until last Sunday, to the prospect of not hearing anything about Walter and the other boys until spring."

Farrell in Service 19 Years.

Lieut. Farrell, like Hinton, is married. He and his wife have two children and live at 1701 Woodbine street, Brooklyn. They are close friends of the Hintons. Farrell is the eldest of the three rescued airmen. He is 45, and is another example of a man who climbed from the ranks. He is 5 feet 9, weighs 190 pounds, and was star heavyweight boxer in his "gob" days. He has been 19 years in the service, and is senior line officer at Rockaway.

Lieut. Kloor, "the kid," will be 23 tomorrow. Like the others, he was a "gob," but quickly became an Ensign, and last May a Lieutenant. He is 5 feet 6, weighs 140, and is brown-haired and blue-eyed.

Steve suffered worst. The cold got to him more than to his companions. So did the enforced lack of food. Maybe his years told. But at all events there came a time when he felt he could go no further. This was during the days when the three were wandering blindly in the woods, eating their carrier pigeons and moss dug from under the snow.

It was then that Steve made his amazing offer—asked his comrades to accept him as a sacrifice. To Hinton and Kloor it was unthinkable, of course, that they should abandon their brother officer. Let him die? No! If there was any dying the three should die together. That was their agreement. That's U. S. Navy style.

PARTIES WATCHING FOR BALLOONISTS CHANGE BASE

Rumors That Naval Officers Are 30 Miles From Mattice—Light Snow Falls; Temperature 5 Above.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MATTICE, Ontario, Jan. 8.—The newspaper and moving picture contingent which has been watching at Cochrane since Wednesday for news of the Moose Factory mail packet, on which Lieuts. Kloor, Farrell and Hinton, the missing naval balloonists, are supposed to be making their way back to civilization, came here from Cochrane, 110 miles east, tonight.

Opinion was unanimous among them that, in view of the latest available information, the chances are nine out of ten that the mail packet is following the Missinabi trail. The tenth chance, as they see it, is that the Americans will break through at Clute over the Missinabi trail. The determining factor in the change of base was that W. B. Way, division superintendent of the Canadian National, acting on instructions from headquarters to put a car at the disposal of the airmen, came here with the newspaper special, and his presence insures that a locomotive can be obtained on short notice to take the party back to Cochrane should news be received that the balloonists are following that route.

Rumors were current tonight that the balloonists' party was only 30 miles from Mattice on the Missinabi trail.

A light snow was falling at midnight. The temperature was 5 degrees above zero.

Pray for Continued Good Weather.

Mattice, a railroad siding and Hudson Bay Trading Co. post, offers few of the comforts of Cochrane, with its 2500 inhabitants and weekly newspaper. At Cochrane the correspondents' car was attached to a steam pipe and linked up with the city's electric light station. Here candles are the only recourse when the car's storage batteries run out and a stove is depended on for heating. Immediately on arrival the party went into session to offer up prayers that the weather will continue mild.

Tomorrow will end two weeks during which the Moose Factory party is supposed to have been on the trail, and not a whisper has come through regarding it. Clark, the runner sent in Thursday night from here in charge of a party of three to herald their arrival, is expected out at any moment if the packet is 2 on the Missinabi trail. A provincial fire ranger, familiar with the country, and a fast traveler, can easily enough have gone in 50 miles and yet return tomorrow night. He guaranteed at least a half day's advance notice of the arrival of the packet.

Sled Dog Bites Correspondent.

B. B. Crossland, correspondent of a New York newspaper, set out yesterday with two runners. It was the second time he had been on snow shoes, and the first he had been out with sled dogs. The thong of one of his snow shoes became loose and he stopped to tie it. As he bent over the lead dog took a bite out of the nearest portion of the young man's anatomy. He returned to Clute this morning, but the dogs and one runner kept on in order to bring out advance news of the balloonists.

A representative of a press syndicate has gone in on the Missanibi trail in the hope of buying exclusive personal guarantees from the Americans. With the runners, royal Canadian mounted police and various other adventurous persons along the route, the lonely bush is getting as thickly populated as the Klondike during the gold rush. Weather conditions continue favorable for travel in the bush.

50 OFFERS OF HOMES FOR TWIN GIRLS

Publication of Item About Babies Brings Many Offers of Assistance.

Officers of the Children's Aid Society announced yesterday that, following the publication in Thursday's Post-Dispatch of a news item telling of the need of a home for twin girls, whose mother had died last week after their birth, more than 50 responses were received by the society from persons offering homes. This was the largest response the society has ever received in a single case.

It was an urgent case. The society will pay board and supply clothing for the children, and also will furnish medical attention, if any is needed. Many of those who wrote, however, were eager to adopt the children as their own. Some offered to take them on any terms. There were two long-distance calls.

Miss Herta Miller, placing-out secretary of the society, will investigate the offers and choose a home for the twins. They will not be placed for adoption for the present.

One letter received by the society from Herbert W. Cann of Hurst, Ill., was as follows:

"I saw the need of some help for those two little girls needing a home and am sending my check for $5 as a slight assistance to your work. I live alone, so, of course, I cannot offer any other way of helping. I have remembered you before; in fact, I frequently send a check to the aid of children's societies. The Post-Dispatch certainly gives the news."

300 EMPLOYES LAID OFF BY THE ALUMINUM ORE CO.

First Time Since 1907 That East Side Plant Employing 2000 Has Reduced Force.

The laying off of 300 employes, including 50 mechanics, last week by the East St. Louis plant of the Aluminum Ore Co., was made necessary by a decrease in business, R. F. Rucker, superintendent, yesterday said. The release of these employes has reduced the working force to about 2000.

Rucker said that this is the first time since 1907 that the plant had had to curtail its force. Those laid off were from all departments.

RABBIS TO DISCUSS RELIGION

Five St. Louis rabbis will each give a 10-minute discussion of modern tendencies in religion at Temple Israel, at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, under the auspices of the Council of Jewish Women.

The subtitles of the discourses will be as follows: "As Affecting Creed (Dogmas)," Rabbi A. E. Halpern; "As Affecting Cult (Forms)," Rabbi Samuel Thurman; "As Affecting Deeds (Social Service)," Rabbi Julian Miller; "As Affecting Interdenominational Religion (Union of Religions)," Rabbi Leon Harrison, and "As Affecting the Influence of Women in Religion," Rabbi Louis Witt. Mrs. David Kriegshaber will give two organ number, and J. Glenn Lee will have a tenor solo.

Statutes Proposed to Apply to All Cities of State of 25,000 or More to Be Almost Identical.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 8.—Four bills intended to revise the registration and elections laws as they apply to St. Louis, Kansas City and all other cities of more than 25,000 population and the primary law of the entire State will be presented to the Legislature as a result of a conference on elections laws called by Governor-elect Hyde, which practically concluded its work tonight. The measures were only blocked out, the details being assigned to individuals for completion.

The registration and primary bills will be completed by Joseph W. Jamison of St. Louis, attorney, retained by the Chamber of Commerce and the Missouri League of Women Voters. The city election law will be finished by Election Commissioner John E. Wilson and Attorneys Wentworth, Griffin and Charles Blackmar of Kansas City, the election law for the smaller cities being in the hands of Circuit Judge H. E. Shain, City Attorney W. R. Robertson and Prosecuting Attorney A. L. Shortridge of Sedalia.

Features of the two election laws are to be identical, except where changes will be required to fit the population of the smaller cities.

Blanket Ballot Favored.

A blanket ballot, prepared in blocks, checkbook fashion, with ballots and stubs alike bearing similar serial numbers, is provided for.

Judges and clerks would be selected by the election boards, free from suggestion by party committeemen, and must live in the wards containing the precincts in which they are to serve. The count would be made in the polling place, as at present, but a recount may be obtained when the election board makes the canvass, if two voters of a precinct make affidavit that there were circumstances in the precinct indicating fraud.

A central registration system, outlined to the conference by Chairman Glendy B. Arnold of the St. Louis Election Board, is to be adopted, with a few changes suggested by other conferees. It would provide that the first registration will be held in the various precincts, but instead of registering in poll books, as at present, each registrant would give his entire history, qualifications and so on, which would be written on a card, these cards would then constitute a card index to the voters of the cities. From them a ledger list, for a permanent record, would be made.

Card System Explained.

There cards would be kept at headquarters of the Election Board, where registrants would have to go to be transferred in the event of removal from one address to another. Before each election the Election Board would canvass the cards and strike out those of all who have died, removed from the city or otherwise become disqualified to vote, thus removing the dead registration. There would be no more precinct registrations after the first, new voters getting their names on the list by going to the Election Board's office.

Arnold said this system would save the city of St. Louis approximately $500,000 every four years by eliminating registration costs, besides lessening materially the opportunity for padding registrations.

The primary law as designed by Jamison would provide that candidates get their names upon the ballots by petition. Judges and clerks under it would be selected by the Election Board, from the precincts except where a sufficient number of properly qualified persons cannot be obtained, when they would be chosen from outside. It would provide for counting in the precinct polling places, as at present, for the same type of ballot as in the election, and contemplates a recount by the Election Board should two voters make affidavit that fraud had been committed.

Contests Provided For.

Opening of the ballot boxes in cases of contests also would be permitted.

A new system for selecting members of city, county and State committees would be provided. State committees would have 68 members each, two members from each State senatorial district. The city and county committees would be composed of two members each from the wards of the cities and the townships of the counties.

Few St. Louis legislators displayed any interest in the conference, Senator Henry W. Blodgett, Republican, being the only one to take an active interest. He formerly was an election commissioner of St. Louis.

The conferees were in doubt as to the attitude which the St. Louis legislators will display toward the measures, though most of announced that they favor election law reforms of one sort or another.

Women for the Measure.

It is understood that the women's organizations, of which 19 were represented in the conference, intend to make a statewide campaign to align behind the measures the sort of support which will put them over.

Senator Procter, Republican, and both Republican Representatives from Kansas City are pledged to support the ideas upon which the bills are based.

Jamison and the Kansas City delegation will continue detail work on the measures tomorrow and announced tonight that the agreements reached with regard to them will be laid before Governor-elect Hyde at once.

FOR RENT—In Olive Street musical district, 5 floors, loft and basement, suitable for furniture or piano store. Upper floors desirable for light manufacturing. Freight and passenger elevators. Will rent whole or part. Box Y-223, Post-Dispatch.

BRITISH PUBLISH 'WHITE BOOK' CHARGES OF IRISH-GERMAN PLOT FOR UPRISING IN 1916

Bernstorff's Message to Berlin Stated John Devoy Had Asked That Arms Be Shipped to Limerick for Easter Revolt.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Correspondence which passed between the German embassy at Washington and the Foreign Office at Berlin, in which the names of a number of Irish-Americans are mentioned to show active connection between leaders of the Sinn Fein and the German Government during the war, was issued by the Government today in the form of a "white paper."

After the arrival of Sir Roger Casement in Berlin in 1914 he sent messages through the Foreign Office in Berlin and the German embassy at Washington, according to these documents, to Judge Cohalan, John Devoy and others regarding his mission to Germany. This, it is decalred, finally led Count von Bernstorff, then German Ambassador to the United States, to send to the Foreign Office in February, 1916, a dispatch "surreptitiously attached to a message concerning the Lusitania," saying that Devoy had informed him of the uprising to begin in Ireland Easter Sunday and asking that arms be sent to Limerick Good Friday or Eastern Saturday. This was followed by correspondence arranging details of the assistance the Germans were to give.

The "white paper" makes reference to pamphlets on the subjects of Ireland and Germany, freedom of the seas and others, in the publication of which Kuno Meyer, then professor of Celtic languages at Liverpool, and Sir Roger Casement collaborated, and which were widely circulated in Germany and America in 1911-12.

Sir Roger, who was in America at the outbreak of the war, proceeded to Germany in 1914, maintaining communication with Devoy who, the paper says, remained as chief agent in America in the communications between Germany and the Sinn Fein.

Messages Marked "Most Secret."

Then follows textually some fifty communications marked for transmission by telegraph, by post and by hand, from the beginning of September, 1914, to the end of November, 1918, most of them from the German embassy at Washington to the foreign office at Berlin. Others were communications from the Berlin foreign office to the German embassy at Madrid and from Nauen to Mexico. Some of these were marked "most secret."

The paper concludes with appendices setting forth a memorandum on the organization of the Irish army, found in the possession of Eamonn de Valera when he was arrested, which is said to have been in his own handwriting, and a brief statement on Ireland's case before the "powers to be assembled in a peace conference."

A Berlin foreign office message, dated Aug. 17 (1915?) informed the German ambassador that "an agent will shortly arrive from Buenos Aires.

"You should at once communicate his wishes and support him in every way. He is instructed, after establishing communications, that the first steps to take would be to organize the smuggling of arms, etc., from South America and the United States into Ireland. An undertaking of this nature must not be made from Spain. In the second place the question arises of sending arms from Germany by the Moewe or a submarine in event of its being possible to fix the place and time for landing them in good time. There is no question whatever of landing German troops in Ireland."

Casement's Arrival Announced.

Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, then Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, informed the German embassy at Washington on Nov. 3, 1914, that "Casement has arrived. His proposals are being carefully gone into."

The same month Sir Roger, through the German embassy at Washington, sent word to Judge Cohalan at New York as follows:

"They are ignorant here of the purpose of my coming to Germany. Here everything is favorable; the authorities are helping warmly. Send messenger who has been fully informed verbally to Ireland immediately. He should be a native American citizen; otherwise his arrest is likely."

On Dec. 14, the "White Paper," indicates, the German embassy at Washington sent the following message to Sir Roger:

"There have been purchased for India 11,000 rifles and 4,000,000 cartridges. Devoy doesn't think it possible to ship them to Ireland. I am trying to buy rifles for Turkey in South America."

Other correspondence contained in the paper says that the Rev. J. T. Nicholson of Philadelphia "is ready to start for Germany," and that Joseph McGarrity of Philadelphia, J. P. Keating of Chicago and Jeremiah O'Leary of New York "can give particulars regarding persons suitable for carrying out sabotage in the United States and Canada."

COURTMARTIAL OF MAC SWINEY'S CHAPLAIN BEGUN

Charges Against Father Dominic Based on Letter Terming Dublin Killings 'Wonderful.'

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Jan. 8.—The statements "likely to cause disaffection to his majesty" in documents alleged to have been written by Father Dominic, chaplain to the late Lord Mayor MacSwiney or Cork, or to have been in possession of Father Dominic, were read at the opening here today of his trial by a field general courtmartial. He was chaplain of the republican guard and spiritual adviser to the late Lord Mayor during his confinement and at the time of his death in Brixton.

The charges against Father Dominick are based on certain passages in a notebook and in a letter, and it was declared in advance of the trial that the accused priest would maintain that the passages in the notebook were dictated to him by Lord Mayor MacSwiney in the presence of the Brixton prison authorities.

Documents First Evidence.

The reading of the documents constituted the first evidence submitted by the authorities at the trial. Father Dominic refused to recognize the court, but reserved the right to cross-examine witnesses and to make a statement after the close of the proceedings. The court entered a plea of not guilty for him.

The letter on which the first charge against Father Diminic is based is alleged to have been written Nov. 26 to a friend. This letter, which was superscribed "Franciscan Capuchin Friary, Cork," touches on the activities of the militant Sinn Feiners, execrates the crown forces and refers to the recent tragic Sunday in Dublin, when 14 British courtmartial officers were assassinated, as a "terrible but wonderful day."

Reference to Killings.

The letter asserts that "the boys got the leaders of the B. and T. (Black and Tan) reprisals," and goes on to say that the Cork Park shooting which followed the killing of the auxiliary officers was "ordered as a reprisal by Macready, Tudor and the remnant of the Reprisal Committee." (Gen. Sir Nevil Macready is military commander of Ireland and Gen. H. M. Tudor is commander of the Black and Tans, or auxiliary forces.)

The letter also declared that "it was decided, too, to assassinate Larry O'Neil (the name of the Lord Mayor of Dublin) that night."

The second charge is based on the memorandum alleged to have been found in Father Dominic's room at the Capuchin Friary in Dublin. It was headed, "Ireland an Invaded Nation," and began: "All the inhabitants of every nation are considered to be at war with the invader."

The reading of the documents created a sensation in the courtroom.

Text of Priest's Letter.

The letter says, in part:

"I have scarcely laid eyes on anyone since I met Sean once or twice the week of the funeral, and I met D. E. S. once during the lying-in state; I haven't been back in Cork since. The provincial heard about a note left by the military during a night raid, threatening to throw me into the Lee. This was left in the Sinn Fein club near our convent and he heard something from the military barracks which seemed to lead him to think they did intend to get rid of me. As a result he cleared me out of Cork on a holiday.

"He has given that I am aw 'resting.' I am fed up myself, as I would far prefer to be back in Cork and take any risk that is going with the rest of the boys.

"I haven't seen Fintanog yet. I don't like to try to get into direct touch with any important men just at present, as they have to be too careful, and it would not be fair to endanger them without grave reason.

"Terrible but Wonderful Day."

"Sunday was a terrible but wonderful day. The boys got the leaders of the B. and T. reprisals. Those who are getting a public funeral today in London were the people who ordered the reprisals and murders through the country, and some of them accompanied the reprisal gang in town. One of them was concerned in the torturing of poor little Kevin Barry.

"The action at Croke Park was ordered as a reprisal by Macready, Tudor and the remnant of the Reprisal Committee. There was no shooting by any civilian, nor was it necessary to provoke the B. and T.—they had their orders. It was decided, too, to assassinate Larry O'Neill that night, but the boys conveyed word to him and he spoiled Macready's game by asking protection for the Mansion House. The shooting of three on Monday morning was an act of revenge, pure and simple. They were subjected to severe treatment by another of the torturers of K. Barry.

"I don't know what is happening in Cork except what I see in the papers. The B. and T. and the crown forces generally are as mad there as here.

"There were six officers in all taken and court-martialed and sent 'Are aligh na Firinne.' One of them was Tom Hale's torturer and he squealed like a rat when caught."

The memorandum cited in the second charge, says:

"All the inhabitants of every nation unjustly invaded are bound to resist the invader. And the nation is considered to be at war with the invader. The war is a just war, and there is no question or hope of success at all. The war must be waged in the best way available. The mere fact of any army in the nation surrendering to force and might does not mean that they have not a just right to overthrow the unrighteous oppressing or invading army when occasion offers. We are at war with England and have been since 1171."

At the conclusion of the trial the court announced that the findings would be promulgated.

Father Dominic continually protested that the court had not the right to try him, maintaining that he should be tried by an ecclesiastical court, and, if found guilty, should be turned over to the civil court. Many of his objections to the admission of evidence were sustained.

Father Dominic was guarded throughout by a Sergeant with drawn revolver and two troopers.

CLAYTON NEWSPAPER MAN MISSING 3 DAYS

Wife Says Marvin Ferree Took $2500 With Him and Left Her Penniless.

Search is being made for Marvin Ferree, newspaper man and advertising solicitor, connected with the Clayton Watchman-Advocate, who has been missing since Wednesday, when he failed to keep an appointment with his wife at a downtown department store.

Ferree came here from Pittsburg several months ago. In September he took charge of the Clayton Sentinel, owned by State Senator Gardner. He had been with the Watchman-Advocate, owned by Fred Essen, since Dec. 16.

Mrs. Ferree, in reporting his disappearance, said that she took luncheon with him Wednesday downtown and he was to meet her at the department store waiting room at 4 o'clock. She waited until the store closed and then went to Thirteenth and Locust streets, where he had parked his coupe. It was gone. At Clayton she learned that he had taken out his sedan at 3 o'clock. She also learned that he had been at the Briscoe Motor Sales Co., 2925 Locust street, at 4 p. m., accompanied by another man.

Essen and John Hartnett, manager of the Watchman-Advocate, say that Ferree's work has been satisfactory and they know of no reason for his disappearance. Mrs. Ferree says that, although her husband's earnings were considerable and he carried $2500 with him, he left her penniless. She is in delicate health.

Suit was filed against Ferree at Clayton Dec. 24 by the Western Newspaper Union for an unpaid balance of $837.98 for supplies for the Sentinel. Ferree said at the time that Senator Gardner had guaranteed payment of all bills and the open accounts were turned over to him when Ferree left the Sentinel, and he could not understand why suit was filed against him.

Ferree is a son of William A. Ferree of Webster Groves, president of an advertising agency.

UNION ELECTRIC CUTS WAGES 8 PER CENT

Reduction Under Perpetual Agreement, Based on Living Cost, Accepted by Workers.

The wages paid to 1400 employes of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. and 150 employes of the St. Louis County Gas Co., have been reduced an average of 8 per cent, effective Jan 1, "due to a declining cost of living."

The reduction is according to the terms of a perpetual wage agreement between the companies and their employes, represented by the Employes' Mutual Benefit Association, entered into on May 22, 1911, which provides for wage adjustments every six months. A stipulation is that in such adjustments the cost of living shall be reckoned as approximately a two-thirds factor. The cost of living is to be measured by the Annalist Index Number of Cost of Living, which is a compilation of the wholesale price of 25 articles regarded as comprising the food budget of an average family. The other factor of wages are length and proficiency of service.

The employes have invoked the contract at six-month intervals and have obtained advances totaling an average of 84 per cent since May, 1918.

The invocation of the contract at this time was by the company.

The wage adjustment now made effective was recommended by a Board of Adjustment, comprising two employes selected by the Benefit Association, two persons selected by the company and a fifth named by the other four. The fifth member was an inspector of overhead lines. The finding of the Board of Adjustment was accepted by the general labor committee of the association in behalf of the employes and by the companies.

Louis H. Egan, who is president both of the Union company and the St. Louis County Gas Co., said that the decrease in the wages of Union employes would total about $200,000 a year.

Egan said that a declining consumption of power by industry due to the present business lull, the effect of which was not yet discernible, prevented him from saying whether the wage saving to the company was sufficient to affect domestic rates for electricity.

German Shipping Allotted to France.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Walker D. Hines, arbitrator in the distribution of German inland shipping under the peace treaty, has awarded France 13½ per cent of Germany's Rhine fleet. France is given 253,000 tons of barges and tugs, with a capacity of 24,000 horsepower. The award cannot be appealed.

NINE INJURED WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS TRUCK

Three U. R. Employes Seriously Hurt in Collision at Union and Maple.

Three workmen for the United Railways Co. were seriously injured and six others slightly bruised yesterday when a truck on which they were riding was overturned by an automobile driven by Oscar Voepel, 23 years old, of 3721 Arkansas avenue, a chauffeur for the Packard Motor Co., Twenty-second and Locust streets, at Union boulevard and Maple avenue.

The seriously injured were George Kerwin, 35 years old, of 9847 South Broadway, fractured ribs and internal injuries; Charles Hoppe, 34, of 7719 Minnesota avenue, fractured right arm and internal hurts, and Joseph Ligibel, 118 South Thirteenth street, scalp wounds and bruises. The first two were taken to St. John's Hospital.

Voepel was arrested. The truck containing the workmen was being driven east in Maple avenue and the automobile south in Union boulevard.

Oscar Tope, 57 years old, living at the Pacific Hotel, Ninth and Market streets, suffered a fractured leg and internal injuries at noon yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by an unidentified man at Thirteenth and Locust streets. The man drove away after the accident without stopping to ascertain the extent of Tope's injuries. Tope was taken to the city hospital.

DECREASE IN NUMBER OF AUTOS STOLEN IN ST. LOUIS

Police Figures Show 788 Machines Taken in 1920, or 456 Fewer Than in 1919.

A special drive started in 1918 by Chief of Detectives Hannegan, when he was appointed Chief of Detectives, against automobile thieves, in which Hannegan increased the details of men assigned to this work, has resulted in a steady decrease in thefts of this kind, until the year just ended showed 788 automobiles stolen, or 456 fewer than in 1919, and 1453 fewer than in 1918. The percentage of recovered cars increased in about the same proportion that thefts decreased.

In a series of reports compiled by request of Hannegan and submitted to him yesterday, the figures on automobile thefts and a review of the work of detectives at the five outlying bureaus are presented, and show that property and cash of a total value of approximately $250,000, stolen in 1920, had been recovered and restored to owners

The figures on automobile thefts follow: 1918—2241 stolen, 1396 recovered, 845 still missing; 1919—1244 stolen, 957 recovered, 287 missing; 1920—788 stolen, 641 recovered, 147 missing.

In addition to the above results, 32 automobiles stolen in other cities were recovered last year.

The work against automobile thieves, which was supervised largely by Hannegan in person, has thus reduced thefts from about six cars to an average of about two cars a day.

The reappointment of A. G. Mungenast as secretary of the Junior Chamber of Commerce was made at a special meeting of the board of directors. Harry J. Kruz, assistant secretary; Harry S. Gleick, counsel, and Karl D. Oppenheimer, auditor, were reappointed for 1921.

PRE-WAR SHOE PRICES BY FALL PREDICTED

Texas Guest at Banquet of Local Shoe Men Says Retailers Are Steadily Lowering Prices.

The St. Louis Shoe Wholesalers and Manufacturers' Association gave a banquet last night at the Jefferson Hotel for more than 300 retail shoe merchants from various States of the Southwest, who stopped in St. Louis on their way to Milwaukee to attend the annual convention of the National Shoe Retailers' Association.

In telling of the shoe industry here several of the local manufacturers who spoke at the banquet declared that the shoe producers and wholesalers had never experienced so large a volume of business as in 1920. Wholesalers and manufacturers here sold approximately $180,000,000 worth of shoes last year, which is believed to be the largest output of shoes of any city in the world, the visiting retailers were told.

Among the guests at the banquet was W. E. Buckley, president of the Buckley Shoe Co. of Houston, Tex., who said that retailers in the Southwest were very optimistic regarding future business conditions. He said that many persons were of the opinion that retail prices were not coming down. He declared the shoe retailers were steadily reducing prices, and predicted that prices would be at a pre-war level by fall.

Following the banquet the retailers departed for Milwaukee, accompanied by more than 100 members of the local Wholesalers and Manufacturers' Association. The St. Louis shoe men will have a $60,000 exhibit at the convention, which is expected to be the largest and most elaborate display there.

DISCOVERY OF SCULPTURED HEAD IN AFRICAN TEMPLE REPORTED

Rome Hears That Experts Believe It to Be That of "Venus of Cyrene.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 8.—The Stefani Agency quotes press dispatches from Northern Africa as saying that Government employes have discovered in the ruins of a temple in old Cyrenaica a wonderfully sculptured head which experts believe to be that of the Venus of Cyrene.

Cyrenaica, in ancient geography, was a country of Northern Africa, lying between the Mediterranean on the north, Marmarica on the east, the desert on the south and Syrtis Major on the west. The town of Cyrene, lying 10 miles from the Mediterranean, was founded about the year 631 B. C., and was the seat of Greek learning and culture. The modern Grennah on its site contains many antiques. Available records do not mention a "Venus of Cyrene."

Indian Dies in Tacoma at 110.

By the Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 8.—Charles Soticam, member of the Puyallup tribe of Indians, died today at the age of 110. He was a cousin of Chief Seattle, after whom the city of Seattle was named.

$1,250,000 FOR AIR MAIL CUT OUT OF POSTOFFICE BILL

Appropriation Measure Carrying $572,500,000 Passed the House After Two Days' Consideration.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The postoffice appropriation bill carrying approximately $572,500,000, was passed today by the House after $1,250,000 for the air mail service during the coming year had been stricken out. Virtually no other change was made in the bill, as reported.

The bill which now goes to the Senate carries approximately $63,000,000 more than was available to the Postoffice Department during the current fiscal year, and is the largest of any of the four appropriation measures passed by the House at this session. The bill was disposed of in less than two days.

USINESS MAN OF ANSAS CITY FOUND SLAIN IN YARD

lice Believe O. V. Dodge Was Killed by Robbers When He Went Out to Investigate Noise.

DY IN DRIVEWAY IN NIGHT CLOTHES

o Revolvers Found; Man's Weapon Cocked, but Had Not Been Fired; Neighbors Heard Auto Starting.

the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 8.—tectives set out tonight in an ef- rt to clear up the killing of O. V. dge, vice president of the Midland fe Insurance Co., whose body was und in his yard early today with bullet wound in his temple.

After an all-day investigation po- e officials and the C unty Coron- expressed the belief that Dodge d been shot to death by robbers ho attempted to break into the dge home. Chief of Detectives helan declared robbery undoubted- was the motive for the killing. He d his men were working on leads hich might prove to be important.

Two Revolvers Found.

Dodge's body was found by a ilkman early today in the drive- ay at his home, clad in a night- irt, an overcoat and slippers. His volver, hammer cocked, and with ells unexploded, lay some distance om where Dodge fell. Within two et of his right hand lay another volver with one empty cartridge. Detectives hope that identification the owner of the latter revolver ay lead to clearing up the case. It d not belong to Dodge, members his family said.

Miss Elizabeth Dodge, 22 years d, a daughter of the dead man, d his granddaughter were asleep the house, and knew nothing of e shooting until this morning. hey said they heard no disturb- ce about the house, and did not ar a shot fired in the night.

Detectives said Dodge apparently d heard prowlers outside the use shortly after he retired. He ew on his overcoat and slippers thout waking the other members the family, and went out in search the prowlers, and was shot down fore he could use his own weapon, circumstances indicated.

Shot Heard by Neighbors.

Miss Dodge said she left her fa- er in his room shortly before mid- ght, ready to retire.

A shot was heard about 1 o'clock two neighbors. Mrs. W. R. cques, who lives opposite the dge home, said she heard a shot, d later a motor car engine start arby. William S. Dickason, gen- l manager of a lumber company, o lives next door to the Dodge me, said he was awakened by at he believed was a pistol shot. e went to the window, but saw thing, he said.

Dodge was 61 years old. His wife d several years ago.

In addition to being vice president the Midland Life Insurance Co. dge was a director of the Traders' ational Bank, a director of the duce Exchange, secretary of the cky Tiger Combination Gold Min- g Co., and director of many local stitutions.

Miss Dodge is president of the nior League of this city. That ganization last fall was so aroused the murder of one of its members, iss Florence Barton, that it offered 00 for the arrest and conviction of slayer. Dennis Chester is be- g held in jail in connection with s Barton's death.

Harding to Be Officially Elected President Feb. 9

Meeting of Electors in States Tomorrow and Canvass by Senate and House Yet to Be Taken.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—While Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge were chosen for President and Vice President of the United States in the November general elections, they have not yet been officially elected, and will not be until Feb. 9.

Two important steps remain to be taken to complete their election. One, the meeting of the Electoral College, takes place Monday, while the final step will be taken on Wednesday, Feb. 9, at a joint meeting of the Senate and House of Representatives when the certificates of the vote of each state are opened in the presence of the entire Congress and duly counted.

At the conclusion of this ceremony, Vice President Marshall will officially declare Mr. Harding and Mr. Coolidge to have been elected.

Electors Meet Monday.

The people, as is well known, did not vote directly for Harding or Cox and their running mates in the November election, but for electors of the various parties. The successful electors of each State comprise the electoral college. They are equal in number to the Senators and Representatives from each State in Congress as provided by the Constitution.

They are required by law to meet in their respective State capitals on the second Monday in January after the presidential election to cast their votes for President and Vice President in accordance with the wishes of the voters who elected them.

The electoral college, therefore, will be in session in 48 State capitals Monday. The electors organize by electing one of their number as chairman and choosing a secretary. If any of the electors have died since the November election, the remaining electors of the State may select someone to fill the vacancy. After organization the balloting begins, first for President and then for Vice President on separate ballots. Each elector votes for the candidate for whom he was elected to vote.

Three Certificates Prepared.

When the ballots are counted three certificates are prepared and duly signed in each State. One is sent to a Judge of the United States District Court of the electors' State; one is sent by mail and another by messenger, usually by one of the electors selected for the purpose, to the President of the United States Senate.

These certificates in accordance with the Constitution, will be opened by the Vice President as President of the Senate in the presence of Congress.

The final ceremony of the election will take place in the Chamber of the House of Representatives on Wednesday, Feb. 9. In a close presidential race, such as that between Tilden and Hayes, the counting of these returns becomes a serious matter and attracts wide attention.

All of the bills regard women equally with men, making them equally qualified for election officials and members of party committees.

ARTISTS' GUILD PLAYERS TO GIVE TWO DUNSANY PLAYS

"King Argimenes and The Unknown Warrior" and "The Glittering Gate" to Be Presented This Week.

Two of Lord Dunsany's plays will be given at the Artists' Guild Theater, Union boulevard and Kensington avenue, by the Artists' Guild Players tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings under the direction of Joseph Solari. On Friday night the players will go to Columbia, Mo., at the invitation of the Dramatic Arts Club of the University of Missouri, to play in the university auditorium. "King Argimenes and the Unknown Warrior," in two acts, and "The Glittering Gate," a one-act play, will be given on the four evenings. The plays will be open to the public and tickets are on sale at 1111 Olive street.

Neither of the plays has ever been seen in St. Louis before and permission to present them was given the Guild Players by Lord Dunsany.

The two acts of "King Argimenes" are set in a slave field and a throne room, the first depicting the King in base servitude after the loss of his throne. His discovery of the sword of an ancient warrior inspires him to leadership again, and he regains his high estate. Two songs, one a "tear chant," have been composed for the play by Ernest R. Kroeger. In "The Glittering Gate" there are only two characters, both of whom are dead burglars trying to force the locks of the gate of heaven.

FIRST OF SERIES OF HEALTH LECTURES THIS AFTERNOON

Dr. George Dock to Be First Speaker in Popular Course at W. U. Medical School.

The first of a series of 10 free popular Sunday afternoon lectures on health topics by members of the faculty of the Washington University Medical School, will be given in the school auditorium, Euclid and Scott avenues, at 3:30 p. m. today.

Dr. George Dock, professor of medicine, will be the speaker, and his theme will be "Health and Disease; the Significance of Symptoms."

Dr. Dock and later speakers in the course, will endeavor to present facts with which the general public should be acquainted. The aim, throughout the course, will be to present matters in a popular form, approaching the subjects from the point of view of the person with no special medical knowledge, and emphasizing hygiene rather than pathology, the means of preventing disease rather than the means of curing disease.

NEW COURT TO BE ASKED FOR

The Board of Religious Organizations decided Friday to ask the Legislature to enact a law providing for a Court of Domestic Relations in St. Louis. An appropriation was made to cover the expenses of a campaign to pass the bill. An attorney will be employed to draft the bill and attend to the legal phases of the campaign. Mr. Charles J. Passmore, chairman of the Social Legislation Committee of the board, will be in charge of the bill.

A Domestic Relations Court would have jurisdiction over all problems relating to family welfare; such as desertion and nonsupport, delinquency, juvenile, delinquency, divorce and illegitimate children. According to present plans the bill will follow in the main the bill under which the Cincinnati Domestic Relations Court was established.

Minute Men to Tell Presbyterians of Needs of Four Colleges.

Minute men speakers, of whom there are to be several hundred, will make their first speeches today in Southern Presbyterian churches throughout the State in the interest of the United Educational Campaign, which seeks to raise $500,000 for Westminster and Synodical colleges, Fulton, Mo., the School of the Ozarks at Hollister, and the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky.

Chairmen of the minute men from each presbytery in Missouri met yesterday at headquarters, 209 Commonwealth Trust Building, and planned for a thorough campaign of brief speeches presenting the need of the colleges to various church gatherings.

ST. LOUIS SUBTREASURY OFFICIALLY CLOSED

Remaining Cash on Hand, Amounting to $30,000, Turned Over to Reserve Bank.

The last official business transaction of the United States subtreasury in the Postoffice Building at Ninth and Olive streets took place at noon yesterday when $30,000, the remaining cash on hand, was turned over to agents of the Federal Reserve Bank of this city. With this transaction the subtreasury officially went out of business in accordance with an act of Congress, passed last May, in which it was provided that the nine subtreasuries in the United States be closed. The others were at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, San Francisco, Cincinnati and Chicago.

The Secretary of the Treasury has made provision pursuant to authority conferred by the act to transfer the duties and functions of the former subtreasuries to the Treasurer of the United States and the mints and assay offices, and will utilize the Federal Reserve Banks as depositories or fiscal agents to perform the functions of the former subtreasuries, which amounted in the main to handling exchanges of United States paper currency and coin, and as depositories for United States bonds and securities.

After a few readjustments, the local Federal Reserve Bank will take charge of the quarters formerly occupied by the Subtreasury as a depository for United States bonds and securities, and will employ about 100 persons. The 25 persons employed by the former subtreasury will be retained, temporarily at least, by the Federal Reserve Bank.

The local subtreasury was established Aug. 6, 1846, with an initial supply of money amounting to $5000. As has been told more than $135,000,000 has been on deposit there at one time—this was about two years ago.

In the last 25 years the subtreasury has disbursed at least $8,250,000,000, according to Francis J. Maginn, who has been cashier there for 26 years. He said the institution handled an average of $350,000,000 a year in the last 15 years.

When the order came to close the subtreasury the amount on hand was above $80,000,000, and this was packed in canvas sacks and hauled through the streets in automobile trucks to Union Station in the last 60 days for shipment to the Denver and San Francisco mints, without mishap or the loss of a cent in checking and handling. As much as $5,000,000 in gold coin was handled thus in one day. Altogether there were about 35 truck loads of gold and silver coin transported under a moderate-sized guard in this manner.

THE CRIME OF THE AGE

Is the selling of Spectacles and Eyeglasses by incompetent opticians who call themselves doctors and others. None of these men are physicians. Ask them for their license to practice medicine in Missouri.

NOTHING IS MORE PRECIOUS THAN EYESIGHT

I AM a physician, oculist and optician and have practiced for many years in St. Louis. If your eyes are diseased I will care for them, and should glasses be needed, I will prescribe and make them correctly, and the total cost for treatment and glasses will not exceed the price of a pair of glasses that may do irreparable injury to your eyes. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. I am both oculist and optician. The privilege of communicating with any of my thousands of patrons is extended to any who care to do so.

NETWORK ROAD SYSTEM INDORSED BY ENGINEERS

Highway Builders Believe Connecting Lines Would Get Best Results From Bond Money.

Resolutions indorsing the plan of J. M. Malang, State Superintendent of Highways, for the construction of a connected road system out of the $60,000,000 bond issue were adopted by the Highway Engineers' Association of Missouri at the closing session of the association yesterday at the Planters Hotel. The plan, which has been described in the Post-Dispatch, is for a system of five main trunk lines, with secondary roads running into each county. It is said, in the resolution, to be designed to get the best results possible from the expenditure of the bond fund.

Other resolutions favored the elimination of grade crossings, described as taking an unnecessary toll of lives, and indorsed the State Highway Commission in its present form. The commission has given good service, the resolution sets forth. A resolution also commends A. W. Graham, State Highway Engineer, for his work. The McArthur bill, H. R. 14905, giving Federal aid to states for road work is indorsed with the recommendation that all road engineers write to their Congressmen urging its passage.

C. E. Swank of Charleston, Mo., civil engineer, was elected president of the association. A. V. Ely of Hannibal was elected vice president and C. W. Brown, secretary-treasurer. Kansas City was chosen for the next convention.

Harry B. Hawes spoke at the afternoon session yesterday on "The New Era," predicting a vast benefit to the State from the construction of roads provided for in the bond issue. The morning session was devoted to technical addresses on paving methods by W. W. Horner of the St. Louis Board of Public Service and by A. B. Meyer, who spoke on "Rock and Gravel Roads."

Horner spoke on "The Practical Design and Construction of Various Types of Permanent paving." Some of these types, asphalt, brick, wood block or concrete, he declared, will be necessary parts of the $60,000,000 road system in the metropolitan districts. The average maximum life of any pavement, he said, is 15 years, when maintenance is kept up. It has been found that supposedly city types of pavement are also suited to county roads, Horner declared.

BILL TO DO AWAY WITH PROSECUTING ATTORNEY PLANNED

Measure to Be Drawn at Instance of City Officials—Provides for Transfer of Work to Circuit Attorney.

STEP TAKEN TO END DUAL AUTHORITY

Bill Would Provide That Democratic Incumbent Shall Serve Out Term Ending Jan. 1, 1923.

A bill to abolish the office of Prosecuting Attorney and have his duties taken over by the Circuit Attorney will be drawn up for introduction in the State Legislature by Harry Rosskopf, special counsel for the City of St. Louis, at Jefferson City. This was decided on at a conference yesterday between Rosskopf, City Counselor Daues and Comptroller Nolte. The proposition is favored by Circuit Attorney Sidener.

Two reasons for wanting the proposed bill passed were advanced by Daues, one being that the elimination of the office of Prosecuting Attorney would save the city $5000 a year and the other being a desire to eliminate dual authority. Daues said there always had been a conflict of opinion between the Prosecuting Attorney and Circuit Attorney concerning what constituted a misdemeanor or felony and that as a result of the controversy the public had become confused.

In order to avoid a charge that the proposed measure has political significance it will provide that the change take place Jan. 1, 1923, when Prosecuting Attorney Oakley goes out of office. He is a Democrat and was appointed by Gov. Gardner to fill the unexpired term of Sidener when the latter was elected Circuit Attorney.

A similar bill was introduced in 1913 at the request of former Circuit Attorney Harvey but it failed of passage. At that time Republican politicians criticised the bill as having been inspired by Democrats.

PLAN TO 'SELL ST. LOUIS' TO CONVENTION DELEGATES

Convention, Publicity and Tourist Bureau to Organize Force of Speakers.

A force of speakers is to be organized by the St. Louis Convention, Publicity and Tourist Bureau to make short talks before all civic and commercial organizations on the good points of St. Louis and to educate St. Louisans in regard to the importance of tourists to the city.

The Sales Managers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce also had adopted a program "to sell St. Louis to visiting delegates and salesmen attending conventions here," and will begin its campaign with a smoker and entertainment at the Planters Hotel Wednesday evening to the delegates who will be in attendance at the convention of the Mississippi Valley Hardware and Implement Dealers' Association.

Harden H. Fitts, chairman of the Sales Managers' Bureau, will preside. Paul V. Bunn, secretary of the chamber, will welcome the delegates to St. Louis on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, and Paul W. Brown, president and publisher of "America at Work," will make the selling talk of the evening. He will discuss St. Louis from the standpoint of its industrial, recreational and health facilities, and its importance as a center of distribution, both domestic and foreign. The St. Louis Overseas Quartet will sing.

"FINANCIAL SANITY" OF NATION AVERTS FEAR OF COLLAPSE

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—"The nation has recovered its financial sanity and is not troubled so much with either extreme of pessimism or optimism," said W. P. G. Harding, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, in an address published here today.

Governor Harding said that any danger of a general collapse has passed and that the worst undoubtedly is over.

"The country generally has recovered its normal state," he said. "We are no longer afraid. We are not indulging in the old idea of extravagance, living beyond our means. Nor are we troubled so much as we were a few weeks ago with that other extreme of over-pessimism, where people get down in the dumps and they cannot see any daylight, cannot see any hope, see nothing but gloom and darkness."

Governor Harding said there were signs that the extreme depression which has occurred in some industries is nearing the end.

"The industrial and economic future of this country," he added, "depends now more than anything else perhaps, upon our foreign trade."

CONCERT AT WEBSTER GROVES

The Jessie L. Gaynor Choral Club, formerly the Chaminade Club, will give its winter concert on the evening of Jan. 25 at the Armory in Webster Groves with Leo C. Miller as conductor.

Michel Gusikoff, concertmaster of the Symphony Orchestra, will be the soloist, and Miss Ruth Harris will sing an incidental solo.

ST. LOUISANS TO BE HEARD THURSDAY ON SPECULATION BILL

House Agriculture Committee Has Four Plans Before It to Stop Dealing in Futures.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Schedules for hearings on the proposed regulation of futures transactions on exchanges in agricultural products by eliminating speculation, were announced today by the House Agriculture Committee. The hearings will close next Saturday when the committee will proceed to draft a measure to be reported to Congress.

Representatives of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange will be heard Monday, Pacific Coast Cotton Exchange representatives Tuesday, and Representatives of the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday. South Dakota bankers, representatives of the Minneapolis Clearing House Association and the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange will be heard Thursday.

Four bills are pending before the committee to eliminate speculation in future dealings on exchanges of farm products. Two purpose to bar future speculative transactions from inter-state commerce and the other two would impose a prohibitive tax. Two of the measures deal specifically with future transactions in grain, and two with cotton.

Defenders of the present future exchanges have told the committee that elimination of all speculation would hamper business and be detrimental to the producers. Proponents of the regulatory measures have replied that exchanges were intended as the common meeting places of legitimate sellers and buyers of farm products, whereas the "speculator" has intruded himself and "manipulated the market to the detriment of both the producers and consumers." Speculative "short selling" has been particularly denounced before the committee.

ETHEL BARRYMORE WORSE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—Announcement was made today by Dr. Oliver Holt, who is in attendance at the bedside of Miss Ethel Barrymore, that the tour of the actress would need to be abandoned owing to the serious turn her illness has taken, precluding any traveling. Her two children are with her at her hotel here.

Her local engagement has been halted by an attack of inflammatory rheumatism. At first her early recovery was hoped for. She had been appearing in the play, "Declasse."

Dynamiter Sentenced to Death.

ROCKVILLE, Md., Jan. 8.—Guy V. Thompson was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury tonight for the murder of James Bolton and two children of his housekeeper by dynamiting the Bolton farmhouse near Germantown, on Nov. 18, last. He was sentenced to be hanged.

SHAW'S GARDEN ORCHID SHOW OPENS TODAY

Display of About 1000 Blooming Plants Made in Natural Environment Reproduction.

The annual showing of orchids at the Missouri Botanical Garden will be opened to the public today.

By reason of gift by the late D. S. Brown of Kirkwood, of his slipper orchids, regarded as the finest private collection in America, the Garden's collection now has rank with the rarest in America and in England, the latter the home of orchid culture. Admission to the show is free. The garden is reached by the Vandeventer car, south.

The usual showing of orchids at the garden has been in pots upon stages in the fashion that other flowers are displayed. The distinctive feature of this year's show is the display of about 1000 plants in a reproduction of their natural environment.

Orchids fall into two classes—ephiphyte, or those which grow upon the trunks of trees in tropical countries and feed upon the moisture in the air, and terrestrial, or those which grow in the ground, the most familiar of the latter type being the moccasin flower, a native to North America.

Arranged After Nature Pattern.

About a dozen trees have been cut at the garden and set up in the floral display house. The epiphyte orchids have been taken from their pots and attached to the trees in the fashion of their natural growth. Beneath the trees are the terrestrial orchids, also blooming as they bloom in their native habitats. The purpose of this showing is to convey to the spectator more forcibly the manner of their growing.

One of the conspicuous plants of the Cattleya, or common commercial, variety of orchid to be seen in the show is the Brasso-Cattleya, the largest of the mauve orchids and which is distinguished for a large fringed lip. In this connection G. H. Pring, horticulturist at the garden, comments that the commercial orchid is becoming rarer, due to a restriction placed by the Federal Government upon their importation, because of the belief that they bring in plant-destroying insects. Pring declares that experience at the garden does not bear out this assumption.

Another of the orchids in the show, which includes about 200 varieties, is the D. S. Brown orchid, which was raised from a seed at the garden, a rare accomplishment, and one requiring six years to bring the plant to bloom. As indicated, the orchid, a yellow brown of the slipper variety, was named for the donor of the garden's rare slipper collection.

Star of Bethlehem Orchid.

Another in the display, the Star of Bethlehem, so named because of its star shape and white wax petals, has a curious history. The first flower upon its discovery in Madagascar, came into the possession of Darwin, author of "The Origin of Species." The striking characteristic of the bloom is a nectar tube over a foot long. Noting this, Darwin declared that it indicated to him the presence of an undiscovered insect with a proboscis of equal length. His theory was that only an insect with a proboscis of equal length to the nectar cup could accomplish the cross-pullination necessary for continuation of life of the plant. He supported this theory by inserting a knitting needle into the nectar cup. Upon withdrawal it was found that the needle was pollen-coated. Shortly after Darwin's statement was made, an entymologist discovered a moth in Madagascar with a proboscis equalling in length the depth of the orchid's nectar tube.

The orchid show will continue for about six weeks.

"LILAC DOMINO" WELL SUNG AT PERSHING

Dan Marble Assists His Old Friend Roger Gray on the Comedy End.

The new Pershing Theater Opera Company opened its third week yesterday and last night, with its most ambitious musical undertaking thus far, "The Lilac Domino." Andreas Dippel's production of this operetta, the score of which was credited to Charles Cuvillier, was seen in St. Louis five seasons ago.

In the plentiful comedy of the play Roger Gray, chief funmaker of the Pershing group, was seconded by Dan Marble, who was his able coadjutor in the days when the Pershing was the Park. Matt Hanley, a veteran of the same happy period, gave an enjoyable rendering of the part of a gipsy fiddler, who must have been a Teutonic gipsy.

"The Lilac Domino" contains songs of high musical quality, so blended into the dialogue as to lift the production out of the class of musical comedy into that of comic opera. The recurrent "Lilac Domino" song is rich in melody, and its first rendering is made a pageant of costume.

There is a plot, based on the theory that a domino is a disguise. The scene in which three financially embarrassed men throw dice to see which shall woo the wealthy Georgine, and the later scene, when Georgine, who has learned of this occurrence, hurls the dice at them, have a suggestion of grand opera. The scene is Nice in carnival time.

Maude Walton and Henry Antrim handled the chief singing roles very well. No important digression was made from the score until the last act, when there were some interpolations. Ellen Best, Louis La Valle and Barbour Halliday had other leading roles.

ENROLLMENT AT WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY HAS REACHED 3833

Latest Figures Show Gain of 698 Over 1919-20—Prof. A. S. Langsdorf to Lecture.

Figures on enrollment at Washington University, compiled the past week, show it to be 3833, not including the student body in the Training School for Nurses at Barnes Hospital. This is a gain of 698 over the 1919-20 enrollment. It is also shown that the freshmen students come from 165 high schools, 25 of which are outside the territory from which students are reasonably expected.

Analysis of the enrollment for extension courses shows that 12½ per cent of them are college graduates, 25 per cent are of the rank of juniors in college, and 60 per cent can meet entrance requirements of the university.

Prof. Alexander S. Langsdorf, who relinquished the post of professor of electrical engineering at Washington University a year ago to enter upon an industrial career, has been elected by the university board lecturer on electrical engineering for the current school year.

BIBLES FOR ST. LOUIS HOTELS

Gideons Obtain 2000 More for City's Hostelries.

The St. Louis camp of Gideons has obtained at approximately pre-war prices 2000 Bibles for hotel guest rooms in St. Louis and vicinity. About 4000 have already been placed in the Statler, Jefferson, Planters, Marquette, American, Laclede, Union Station, Majestic, Warwick, Astor and others.

The hotels that are to receive the new consignment are the Claridge, the New Edison, the Marion-Roe, the St. Regis, the Belcher, the Laclede Annex and the Grand Central. The last mentioned is a hotel for negroes and is the first one of that sort supplied by the Gideons with Bibles. G. W. McFadden is president of St. Louis camp.

AUTO SCHOOL AT "Y" GROWING

1100 Students Enrolled in the Day and Night Classes in Last Year.

With 1100 students enrolled during the past year and every department busy, the St. Louis Y. M. C. A. Automobile School, Grand and Franklin avenues, is rapidly gaining in enrollment, according to Paul B. Cann, educational director of Central "Y," in a report issued yesterday.

Day and night classes have been established and a staff thoroughly trained in theory and practice are giving their full time to instruction. More than 30,000 square feet of floor space is occupied by the best of modern equipment. There are no educational requirements for admission except the ability to read and write the English language.

Thorough courses are offered in automobile mechanics, electrical equipment, battery rebuilding, vulcanizing, welding and cutting, machine shop work, mechanical drafting, lathe work, architectural drawing and mathematics. Students may enter at any time.

MOVE TO ABOLISH GAME COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE

St. Louis Interests Would Have Official for Each Branch of Work Appointed.

Various interests are seeking to have the State Fish and Game Commissioner's office abolished under the administration of Governor-elect Hyde, who will be inaugurated tomorrow, and to have the work of the office and conservation in general administered through a nonpartisan State Conservation Commission, which would appoint paid commissioners to supervise the branches of the work. They seek to have such a commission control the forests of the State and such places as the proposed State parks, and to work for reforestation.

Among the interests are the State Fish and Game League, composed of lovers of wild life and water life, of which Herbert Taylor of St. Louis is secretary; the Missouri Audubon Society, of which Hermann von Schrenk, a St. Louisan, is president; the St. Louis Bird Club, of which Dr. Robert Terry is president, and F. L. Rand, an advertising man, with offices in the Arcade Building.

Rand, who has been active for some time in the interest of conservation and the protection of birds, game and fish, says he is working for all the unorganized conservation and wild life forces, which outnumber the organized forces 100 to one.

Officials of these societies and Rand wrote to Hyde about a week ago, asking an appointment for a committee representing them to visit him and present their case. They have received no answer yet. They asked him to defer the appointment of a Fish and Game Commissioner and to support proposed legislation to be introduced in the present session of the Legislature, perhaps, for the appointment of a State Conservation Commission.

No Candidates in View.

The societies have no candidate in view for the positions on the commission or for the chairmanship, and will not have, but seek to have the work removed from the realm of political patronage. Among other effects of the proposed commission would be the abolition of the position of State Forester.

The commission sought would have five or seven members, preferably five, in order not to become unwieldy by virtue of size. The present Game Commissioner receives $3000 a year and it is suggested the salary of the officials of the State Conservation Commission should be more than this.

About 12 or 15 states now have conservation or similar commissions in charge of the forests, wild life, fish and general conservation work, according to Rand. Among these states are New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Alabama, Louisiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Connecticut and New York. The bird sanctuary in Louisiana has become famous.

New York Plan Cited.

The plan of the New York State Forestry and Conservation Department is cited by the protagonists of the plan as a good example, although there is no board of commissioners in this plan. The New York organization consists of the commissioner, a deputy commissioner, a secretary and counsel. The deputy has a stenographer, purchasing agent, auditor and assistants. The secretary has an assistant, a cashier and assistants and three confidential agents.

The Division of Lands and Forests has a superintendent and an assistant superintendent. Under the former are an examiner of State lands, a land clerk, a surveyor, four foresters, four nursery foremen, an auditor and three stenographers, and under the latter are five district rangers and two chief inspectors.

The Division of Waters is headed by a division engineer, who has an assistant in charge of water supply and sewage, another caring for waterpower, storage and drainage, and an inspector looking after docks and dams. There is also a field and office force.

Then there is a Division of Fish and Game, under the Chief Protector. In this department is a deputy chief, a superintendent of marine fisheries, a superintendent of inland fisheries and other employes.

Organization of Other Branches.

Other branches have the Fish Culturist, stereopticon operator and 12 hatchery foremen; the license clerk, the superintendent of game farms, two importation agents, and a record and penalty clerk. Other states have similar schemes.

Discussing the proposal for such a commission in Missouri, Rand said, "The great body of conservationists, lovers of wild life and scenic beauty of every sort, both organized and unorganized, in Missouri, has for a long time been hoping for an ideal State conservation commission to take over all this work.

"The recent article in the Post-Dispatch 'Just a Minute' column by Conservation Commissioner Barber of Missouri brings squarely home to us Missourians the immense cost we are paying in both resources and prestige by trailing along behind the procession of states that have already enacted similar legislation placing the maintenance and management of the state's natural resources in the hands of a non-political board and by means of a director or commissioner of conservation appointed on the basis of efficiency alone and directly responsible to such a board."

Science Teachers to Meet Here.

The Central Association of Science and Mathematics Teachers which recently held its convention in Chicago, has selected St. Louis for its next convention, to be held Nov. 25-26. Prof Alfred Davis of St. Louis, who attended the convention, was active in advocating St. Louis for the 1921 convention.

HUDSON

Hudson and Essex Lead the New Competition

(A Statement by the Hudson Motor Car Company and Essex Motors)

Selective buying again rules the automobile market.

Inability to secure delivery of his first choice no longer forces the buyer to accept a less wanted car.

The return of competition to a basis of merit is welcomed by Hudson and Essex in common with all builders of established reputation.

They have not regarded competition on the basis of ability to deliver as at all a good thing for the motor industry. That situation invited many to plunge into automobile manufacture and exploit the quick profits seizable from unprecedented demand.

A Situation That Was Inevitable

Now once more the task of supplying the motor car demand devolves upon the builders, whose organization, experience and product have proved their fitness to survive through years of competition that recognized none's right to live except by superior merit.

We could not, in candor, urge that Hudson and Essex alone are deserving of consideration to the exclusion of all other cars.

We know there are other thoroughly good cars, some even that can well wear the name of great cars, and we acknowledge the ability, application and loyalty to ideals which alone could have produced them.

Yet today, more than 100,000 Hudson Super-Sixes are in service. It is, and has been for five years, the largest selling fine car in the world. Consider if its title to leadership were less deserved if the flaw would not have appeared in five years.

The Same Men Also Build Essex

And Essex shares this prestige. Not merely because Hudson builds the Essex, and therefore pre-pledges to it all the experience and knowledge gained in building the Super-Six. Rather because the Essex, not content with this endorsement, has established its own place with such famous records as four times breaking the transcontinental record with four different cars, and in establishing the world's 50-hour endurance mark. And nearly 50,000 owners also know and acclaim its worth.

As We Get It, the Only Draft Minor Leagues Will Endorse Is a New York Draft

Major and Minor League Meetings Open Tomorrow

Baseball Magnates Will Seek to Reach Agreement on Plans to Govern Sport.

JOINT SESSION WEDNESDAY

President Johnson Says Larger Circuits Will Not Insist on the Draft.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Numerous conferences between baseball club owners and managers who are gathering here for the three meetings next week when the major and the minor leagues will attempt to reach an agreement under which both will operate, today kept the air filled with rumors concerning action which might be taken when the sessions open, but the only official action was the opening of the major league schedule committee meeting.

While no official announcement concerning the work of this committee was made, it was said that the two leagues virtually had agreed to open their playing seasons on Wednesday, April 13, and to play the usual season of 154 games. The committee, consisting of President Ban Johnson of the American League, William Harridge, his secretary; President John Heydler of the National League and Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburg club, did not expect to finish its work before Monday. The National League representatives proposed April 13 as the opening date, and President Johnson, it was said, probably would give his approval.

Minors Well Represented.

Most of the magnates who reached here today were representatives of minor leagues. The minors meet Monday, the majors will hold separate meetings Tuesday, and Wednesday representatives of all leagues in organized baseball will hold a joint meeting to act on plans for the government of baseball which have been decided on by the different organizations in the Monday and Tuesday sessions.

M. H. Sexton, president of the National Association of Minor Leagues, said tonight that he would demand that action be taken against baseball players who have played during the past winter on the same teams with members of the Chicago White Sox who were indicted by the Cook County grand jury for alleged complicity in the "throwing" of games in the 1919 world series. Six members of organized baseball teams have been playing winter ball on Pacific Coast on the same team with Fred McMullin, one of the men indicted, he said.

Wants Players Disciplined.

"Two of these men are from the Texas League, two from the Pacific Coast League, one from the Western and one from a major league," said Sexton. "It is not good for organized baseball for its representatives to associate publicly with men who have been indicted for alleged dishonesty, and I think these men should be severely disciplined."

Most of the minor league club owners here today represented the faction led by George Maines of the Michigan-Ontario League, which has opposed many of the preliminary suggestions for an agreement between the majors and minors.

Maines tonight reiterated previous statements that he did not think the minors would stand for an agreement which placed them under the supervision of the baseball Commissioner unless they were assured that no Commissioner not meeting with their approval could be chosen. They were not opposed to Judge Landis, it was said, but felt they must be assured that any successor to him would meet with their approval.

President Johnson of the American League tonight said that there would be no difficulty over the reported opposition of some minor leagues to the draft, so far as the majors were concerned.

"The majors obtain very few good men through the draft, and I think most of the club owners will not insist that it be restored," said Johnson.

ST. TERESAS WIN FROM ST. MARKS IN PARISH LEAGUE SOCCER FINAL

In a spirited contest, yesterday, at Fairground Park, the St. Teresas defeated St. Marks, thereby winning the city championship of the Municipal Parochial School Soccer League. The score was 2 to 1 in favor of St. Teresas. Two extra periods were required to decide the winner.

Four minutes before the whistle blew, "Monk" Riley of St. Teresas, banged one through the uprights and all thought the game over; but after the ball was centered again, "Chicky" Ryan of St. Marks, shot a clean one past Goalie Ward, to tie the score.

Five minutes rest was allowed and hostilities were resumed. Leslie Schulze scored later, winning the championship for St. Teresas.

The lineups:

St. Teresas (2).	Position.	St. Marks (1).
Ward	Goal	Holden

Third League to Join Hands With Labor Federation

Proposed Outlaw Organization Is Also Considering Employment of Negroes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—George Herman Lawson, president of the recently incorporated Continental Baseball Association, was here today inspecting park sites for the league clubs, which he hopes to install in or near this city.

He said that during his present trip, which will take him as far South as Richmond, he expects to place the State franchises for New York, New Jersey and Maryland.

The promoter and executive of the new "outlaw" league said that three of the eight franchises for the eight-club league had been granted as follows: Indiana, with the State club playing at Indianapolis; Massachusetts, playing at Boston; Ontario, playing at Toronto. The New Jersey State franchise was practically clinched for Camden, Lawson stated.

In connection with the New Jersey and Massachusetts franchises Lawson stated that he was strongly considering the installation of negro or Cuban clubs. He pointed out that the negro population of Boston and Philadelphia formed a large percentage of the city population and that there were 100 negro baseball players in this country who equaled in playing skill the best average of the major leagues and who, although they are citizens of the country, were barred from playing in either the major or minor leagues under present conditions.

Wants Only State Teams.

After the new league is established, he said he favored the plan of recruiting new players entirely within the limits of the state represented by the club.

The New York State franchise is reported to be held under option by a syndicate of local theatrical men whose identity will be disclosed at the first schedule meeting of the league to be held in this city on Jan. 31.

Lawson intimated that the Continental League would sign desirable players without regard to their former league affiliations.

There will be no salary limit or limit on the number of players a club can carry and the contracts will have no reserve clause. A player will be signed for one full playing season and at the end of this contract will become a free agent again.

Would Joint Labor Union.

Application has been made, according to Lawson, for an American Federation of Labor charter for each club, the players thus becoming unionized and on a par with organized skilled labor.

The president of the new league said that while the Continental League had been incorporated less than two weeks, 50 per cent of the franchises had been placed, $75,000 subscribed, several prominent players signed and arrangements made with umpires for the coming season. He refused to give the names of the players signed, but said that they were from big league clubs and that others were in line for berths in the new circuit.

Gibbons-Greb Bout Off.

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 8.—Edward Kane, manager of Tommy Gibbons, light-heavyweight boxer, tonight stated that the match between Gibbons and Harry Greb of Pittsburg, carded for Madison Square Garden on Jan. 31, had been called off. Greb refused to meet Gibbons at the weight, 170 pounds. Both men are contenders for Jack Dempsey's crown. Gibbons fights Chuck Wiggins of Indianapolis here on Tuesday night.

Six-Inch Knockout Punch a Myth—Champion Leonard

Lightweight King Declares He Never Yet Knocked Out an Opponent With Short-Distance Blow and Thinks No Other Fighter Ever Did—Tells Secrets of Fistic Craft.

By Robert Edgren.

"Study is the thing that makes a successful fighter nowadays," said Lightweight Champion Benny Leonard.

We were sitting in a room at the New York Athletic Club talking over Benny's career.

"Yes," Benny went on, "the day of the boy with a strong back and a thick skull has gone by. You have to be a student to get to the top and stay there. I'm champion and any other lightweight could make a fortune by beating me, yet nothing can induce the best of them to meet me in the ring. I'm in a funny position as a champion without a contender for his title. Tendler, Jackson and the others know I can beat them, but they don't know why. They think it's because I have an awful 'kick.' They think I'm bigger and stronger than I am. They don't realize that I can beat them because I'm a better student.

"When I began fighting as a boy I used my legs at first instead of my brain, and I was called a 'feather duster boxer' because I only danced around and tapped. But I began to study, and I knocked out Mandot. I met Welsh three times. I learned a lot fighting Welsh. The third time I knew enough to beat him and win the title. I've gone on studying ever since.

"You have to study three things to be a first-class fighter, First, your opponent's mind and habit of thought; second, your own metal control of timing and movement, and last, physiology."

Here Benny Leonard stopped and thought for a moment, while I wondered where he got his supply of language, which was rather novel for a fighting man.

"I learned about the importance of understanding physiology while I was in the army," said Benny. "While I was boxing instructor at Camp Upton Lieutenant Smith was instructor in Jiu Jitsu, which he learned in Japan. We worked together and he taught me Jiu Jitsu. I learned a lot of things about the nerves and the vital organs.

How Jiu Jitsu Men Do It.

"Do you know what a knockout is? It's simply a shock to the nerve, carried to the brain. There are three knockout points on the head, each where nerves lie near the surface. For instance, a straight blow on the end of the chin isn't a good knockout punch. But hit a man on either side of the chin, an inch or so back, or above the eye tooth, and you deliver a shock to the nerve connecting with the brain. The nerve telegraphs the brain that you're knocked out, and down you go. A Jiu Jitsu expert can put a man out by digging at certain nerves with his thumb.

Leonard's Favorite Blow.

"One of my favorites is the blow that started Welsh to defeat. It's a body blow, delivered with a lifting twist. Sam Langford was a master of that lifting punch. It can be a short blow and not very hard, but it must lift or it's no good. A lifting blow drives the intestines up against the heart, causing a weakening shock. The effect is only temporary, and isn't dangerous.

"Men on whom I have used that blow thought I was hitting a terrific punch, because it felt that way. But I wasn't. I never considered it anything but a weakening blow that would make an opponent leave an opening for a knockout punch and render him too slow to block it.

"If I haven't had a chance to study an opponent before a fight I study him as well as I can in the early rounds. First his mental limits and then his physical power. I see how quickly he can think, how quick he is to defend and how quick to lead or counter. Then I look for his weak spot. A funny thing, some fellows you can't hurt with the standard knockout punches. I remember one welterweight I knocked out almost by accident, and learned something by it. I won't tell his name because it would be a tip off of his weak spot to other fighters. I hit him with every punch I had. His body was covered with muscles that made a solar plexus punch useless.

"I couldn't catch him relaxed. He didn't seem to feel a punch on the chin or behind the ear. I accidentally caught him on the temple and he dropped. Now when I box a tough fellow whose nerves don't respond to the usual treatment, I tap around the skull until I find where I can hit him to make him dizzy.

Italian Opponents Hardest to Knock Out; Britons Usually Weak in Body

"Another thing I size up in a fighter is the matter of heredity. Different weak spots are characteristic of different races. The English for instance, often have bad teeth. You see a man with bad teeth in the ring, and you may be fairly sure his body is his weak spot.

"I've found the Italians the hardest to knock out. They can fight all the time and not tire. Their vitality is astonishing.

"Fellows like Johnny Dundee and Jack Sharkey are tireless and can stand an immense amount of work without going stale. That's because their ancestors for a thousand years back have been workers and have lived on plain food and little of it. A loaf of bread was a feast to those birds.

"Now for myself: I study myself most of all, because, after all, it's my machine that does the work. Every blow I use I've practiced thousands and thousands of times, studying every detail of delivery. I've put as much study into the delivering of a lifting right-hand body punch as a man would need to learn Greek. I follow every inch of the blow and try to improve it in detail."

"See here," said Leonard, suddenly jumping up and into boxing pose. "I deliver the blow like this. I have been feinting so my opponent doesn't see my position. My hand drops back to here and starts forward, my wrist turning and the knuckles driving upward at the finish. At the same time, my body goes forward, my head is turned a little, which makes my body swing behind the blow and takes my chin out of the danger line. My leg straightens and my knee turns in, and as I come up on my right toe my ankle turns out so that I'm in a pigeon-toed position. I've done that slowly thousands of times, until I do it mechanically every time I use that blow. It gives the greatest possible driving power with the proper speed and snap. A blow that shocks has to be a snappy blow, not a big push.

Six-Inch Punch a Myth.

"Now about those 'six-inch punches' they say I use. I've heard hundreds of people talk about my knocking fellows out with a six-inch punch, the way they used to say Bob Fitzsimmons did. I never knocked anybody out with a short punch. I don't believe any other fighter ever did.

"What I do is just this. I fool the eye. The speed of your arms in feinting counts. I feint rapidly with my arms well advanced, and suddenly I strike. The feinting in intended to fool my opponent so he won't know when my real blow starts, and, if it fools him, it fools the spectators, too. You see me feinting and hitting, and what your eye catches is the general effect, because my arms are moving as fast as I can move them.

"You don't know that when I struck the blow my elbow was drawn farther back that one time, and instead of striking six inches or a foot, I really drove my fist two feet or more. They say Dempsey uses short punches. Dempsey takes twice as long a drive as he seems to take, and, as for Carpentier, I watched him beating Levinsky, and he puts the punch into the finish of a blow that travels a yard or more.

"Aren't you giving away your trade secrets?" I asked Benny.

"Why, no," laughed the champion. "Some of my rivals will read this, and if they think they understand it they may get courage enough to give me a fight."

Supreme Court Will Decide if Baseball Is 'Commerce' or 'Sport'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.

IS professional baseball "trade or commerce" in a legal sense, or "sport" and immune from anti-trust laws?

The Supreme Court will solve the problem under a writ of error granted today by the District Court of Appeals, which will send the controversy between the Baltimore Federal League club and organized ball to the highest tribunal. A $900,000 damage suit by the Baltimore club against the American and National Leagues, resting on charges of alleged monopoly by the big leaguers is involved.

It was brought in the District Court here under anti-trust laws, and the Court classified baseball as "trade or commerce," a jury granting a verdict of $264,000. The Appellate Court, on the other hand, viewed baseball as "sport" and set aside the verdict.

KILBANE SAYS HE WILL DEMAND $50,000 FOR NEW YORK TITLE BOUT

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—Johnny Kilbane, champion featherweight boxer, was asked by Tex Rickard, New York promoter, in a telegram today to name his terms for a bout at Madison Square Garden with either Andy Chaney or Charley Beecher, Kilbane announced tonight. Kilbane said he would go to New York in a few days to reply to Rickard in person.

"But," he said, "I will put my terms at $50,000 and not a cent less."

Ohio Club Engages Bowden.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—George L. Bowden of Boston, one of the 19 professionals selected to represent America in the international golf matches at St. Andrews, Scotland, next June, has been engaged as club professional at the Hamilton County Golf Club, it was announced today. He will report here on April 1. Bowden is now the professional at the Commonwealth Country Club, Chestnut Hills, Boston, Mass.

Browns' Departure South Depends on Games With Cards

If Series Is Arranged for Early Dates, Pitchers Will Go to Bogalusa Feb. 21.

That Bogalusa, La., is making a strong bid to get the permanent patronage of the St. Louis Browns is evident from the report of "Bob" Quinn, secretary of the club, who returned from a tour of Southern training camp sites yesterday. While down South Quinn wired his selection of Bogalusa for the coming season, but the town and its officials are desirous of making the selection not only unanimous, but permanent.

Quinn, upon his return yesterday, related that he was surprised at the accommodations afforded by this comparatively unheard-of city.

Quinn stated:

"I took the offer of this place as a joke, at first, but I changed my mind when I arrived there. This is an ideal locality—a town of about 18,000 persons with a big lumber industry as an excuse for its existance. It has nice streets and fine residences, while its hotels and Y. M. C. A. will stand comparison with any I have ever seen. I think our players will be tickled with the place. The hotel maintains a nine-hole golf course and there are bungalows for the married ones.

Dances Planned for Players.

"Mayor Sullivan negotiated with us and he did everything possible. There are picture shows in the city and it has been arranged that the hotel and the local clubs will give at least two dances weekly to help entertain the players. Mayor Sullivan is eager to make the club like it so that they will return in subsequent years.

"There are two ball parks, one for the whites and one for the blacks; but the negro park seems the best arranged and we may possibly utilize that. If we find the prejudice against the location is not too strong, we will do our practicing at the colored club's park."

It is possible that the team's pitchers will start for Bogalusa about Feb. 21. The date of reporting for spring training will depend entirely on the arrangements still to be made for the spring series. It is expected that the hurlers will be on the ground at the training camp about Feb. 21.

FOHL DUE TOMORROW TO CLOSE TRAINING DATES; WILL GO TO CHICAGO

Lee Fohl, the Browns' new manager, is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow to officially sign his contract for the 1921 campaign. Fohl will come to St. Louis from his home in Cleveland. The Browns' 1921 leader will not remain here long, as he is scheduled to depart tomorrow night for Chicago in company with Business Manager Bob Quinn.

It is expected that the date for the Browns' departure to Bogulusa, La., for spring training will be decided upon when Fohl arrives here.

When asked whether he expected to make any trades at Chicago, Quinn said:

"About all you will be able to find there is trouble. No one wants to trade ball players."

Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals is due back from a tour of the South today. He also will attend the big baseball confab at Chicago. President Sam Breadon of the Knot-Holers also will go to the Windy City.

GIANTS OFFER RICKEY $250,000 FOR HORNSBY

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 8.—Information received here late today from Orange, Tex., confirms the report that the St. Louis Cardinals have recently received an offer of $250,000 for Roger Hornsby.

ORANGE, Tex., Jan. 8.—Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who passed through here late today en route to his home following a hunting trip, declared that it was Judge McQuaid, speaking for the New York Giants that officially offered $250,000 for Rogers Hornsby, star shortstop of the St. Louis team.

Cardinals Buy Catcher.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Jan. 8.—Paul Eiffert, catcher for the Sioux City Western League team for the past two seasons, has been sold to the St. Louis Nationals. Eiffert was formerly a star football player on the Morningside eleven.

SPORT SALAD by L. C. Davis

THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT.

THIS is the house that Jack built.
This is man who lived in the shack,
And had to hustle to raise the "jack"
To pay the rent of the tenement
Plus frequent raises of 10 per cent,
And just when he'd laid in his winter's coal,
Which put him considerably in the hole,
Was notified he must pull his freight,
Vamoose, skedaddle and e'en vacate
Aforesaid tenement, house or shack
Which had been sold by aforesaid Jack,
And take his lares and household gods
But leave the curtains and curtain rods
That go with the house that Jack built.

IRISH CONFETTI.

It is said that a method for making bricks out of straw has been discovered. They might do all right for building purposes, but they wouldn't be much good in a free-for-all. Too light.

However, people who live in straw houses shouldn't throw bricks.

A HIGH BALL.

Fifty thousand bucks is the amount to be spent for the inaugural ball in Washington. Indicating that those who dance must settle with the fiddler as of yore.

However, inasmuch the people have to pay the fiddler it looks like an income tax receipt should serve as the equivalent to an invitation to said party.

Not that anybody begrudges Brer Harding a nice little coming out (or maybe we should say coming in) party, but economy is the watchword.

ON THE HIP.

HE slipped upon the icy track,
And made a convolution,
Then hit the sidewalk with a whack
And broke his resolution.

HOW COME?

Jack Dempsey has been sued by a negro for $700 for alleged services rendered. Jack may draw the color line, but making it stick is something else again.

Freddie Welsh is on his way back, but the road is rocky and full of pitfalls. However, the exercise will do him good.

The failure of some of the strongest men of France to lift Johnny Coulon off his feet is not so wonderful when you consider that Sir Thomas Lipton has been trying for years to lift the America Cup without being able to budge it. And, incidentally, it has cost him quite a budget.

A CLOSE RACE.

The Smiths lead the New York City Directory with 52 columns. The Cohens are a bang-up second with 48.

Among the various recipes we notice "Stuffed Prunes for Holidays." What would happen if you ate them on a working day?

KEEN KUTTERS WIN TWO SOCCER GAMES IN ONE; BELL PHONES DEFEATED

Butler Bros. won, 4 to 2, from the Bell Phones and the Keen Kutter took a doubleheader from the Edens, in yesterday's Fairground Municipal Soccer League contests.

The Edens' double defeat was accomplished in a single contest, each half counting as a separate game. The arrangement was the result of a postponed game between these teams scheduled on Dec. 18. In the first half the Keen Kutters scored 2 goals to the enemy's 0. In the second the Keen Kutter forwards slipped one through a few minutes before the end of the battle.

The lineups and summaries follow:

Butler (4).		Bell Telephone (2).
Dalsasso	Goal	Minneman
Larkin	Fullback	Dwyer
Sweeten	Fullback	Kleekamp
Cross	Halfback	Harrison
Whalen	Halfback	Auld
Mahaney	Halfback	Sturm
Kaage	Forward	Dagger
Menke	Forward	Byrne
Fischer	Forward	Auld
Dahman	Forward	Manion
Becker	Forward	Dickey

Goals—Byrnes, Auld, Whalen, Mahaney, Fischer 2. Time of halves—30 m. Referee—Byrne.

Keen Kutter (2-1).		Eden Seminary (0-0).
Humpert	Goal	Schluemer
Maguire	Fullback	Wehrli
Watkins	Fullback	Mensendeck
Sprintz	Halfback	Mehl
Lange	Halfback	Schneider
Weber	Halfback	Maurer
Hitchcock	Forward	Gabler
Bochmicek	Forward	Bloesch
Cody	Forward	Neuman
Stahlhuth	Forward	Schulz
Drew	Forward	Mory

Goals—Hitchcock 2, Drew 1. Times of halves—30 m. Referee—Wall. Each half counted as a full game. First half 2—0; second half 1—0, both in favor of Keen Kutters.

Skating Meet Next Month.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—International skating championships will be held at Lake Placid on Feb. 10, 11 and 12, it was announced here today. Entries have been received from virtually all the leading skaters in this country and Canada. In addition to the championship fixtures, the meet will be featured this year by special acrobatic and fancy contests.

Davis Cup Team Likely to Face Australia Again

Antipodean Tennis Stars Favored to Win Right to Play U. S. in 1921.

By Davison Obear.

Now that the Davis Cup title is held by the United States a question of interest arises: "How long will the trophy remain in this country?" A close study of international matches and the ability of the leading foreign stars of today bears out the belief that the international cup is likely to remain for the next two or three years, at least.

Tilden and Johnston are both under the age of 30. The national champion is just attaining the peak of his career, while the Californian, more experienced, should retain his present ability for several seasons. Williams is slowly returning to his pre-war game and his defeat of Parke in England makes him a 1921 Davis Cup possibility. Washburn and Garland, the other members of the team last year, will be available again. Other first 10 men, such as C. J. Griffin, Willis Davis and Nat W. Niles will be given a trial.

Next summer America will have to oppose only one nation, the challenger, which will probably be either Great Britain or Australia. Eleven countries have signified their intention of entering the Davis Cup play. They are as follows: United States, Great Britain, France, Australia, Belgium, Canada, South Africa, Japan, Spain, Holland and India. Italy, Switzerland and Norway have tennis organizations and may be represented, also.

Formal entry for the 1921 matches must be made by March 1, and it is quite probable that as many as 10 nations will actually compete.

May Oppose Australians Again.

As evidenced in the last two English championships and Davis Cup matches the Anzacs, Brookes and Patterson are superior to players of England and other European countries. These men are likely to represent Australia again this year.

Algernon Kingscote and the veteran J. C. Parke are the top ranking stars of England. These men are hard to beat, and with such available substitutes as F. G. Lowe, Roper-Barrett and Turnbull they should produce a formidable team. However, as far as the United States is concerned, there is not so much cause for worry. Last summer Tilden disposed of Kingscote and Parke. Williams defeated Parke and Johnston broke even with Parke and won from Kingscote.

After seeing Tilden and Johnston in action, A. Wallis Meyers, the noted English critic, said that he believed there were a least 10 men in the United States equal to Parke and Kingscote.

France is expected to enter a team which is likely to surprise the other countries in the preliminary matches. Gobert, Laurentz, Decugis and Brugnon constituted the team last year and at least two of them will play again. Andre Gobert is champion of France and also captured the world's covered court event in 1920. He is 6 feet 2½ inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. Like some leading American stars Gobert prefers the net game. He has the style of a finished player somewhat similar to Wilding and Larned.

Frenchman No Match for U. S. Stars.

Gobert lost to Johnston, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3, last year in one Davis Cup match, while Laurentz succumbed to Tilden in a closely played four set match. The reserve Frenchmen, Decugis and Brugnon, are not quite as good as Chuck Garland and other Americans of equal rank.

The South Africans will also be heard from. Louis Raymond, who led the Davis Cup team of his country, has good possibilities. He won the Olympic Games tennis championship by defeating the Japanese tsar, Kumagae, in the final round. Norton, another South African player, is about the equal of Decugis of France. Winslow, the youngest of the team, is a chop stroke artist. He lost to Kumagae in straight sets, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2, in the semifinals at the Olympic Games, but he had previously won from F. G. Lowe, the Englishman, in the fourth round.

Japan expects to enter a team this season and it will consist of three well-known players. Of the three Kumagae is probably the best, with Shimidzu a close second, followed by Kashio who is not quite in the class of the first two. Kumagae and Kashio have been living in New York for the past few seasons, while Shimidzu has resided in Calcutta, India, where he held the championship for several years. Kumagae was placed fourth in the 1920 national ranking which position speaks for itself and the former champion of India was the finalist in the English championship. Kashio was No. 51 in the United States ranking just announced.

After invading foreign territory in 1920 the American players returned for their own championship and the two men, Johnston and Tilden, who bore the brunt of the battles abroad, proved themselves to be the best in the world by meeting in the final round of this tournament.

Able to defeat the leading stars of Europe on their own courts, the Americans can feel reasonably sure of victory in the Davis Cup matches of 1921 and probably in the two years that follow.

KENRICK FIVE MEETS CLAYTON TOMORROW

Kenrick High School's basketball quintet, champions last year in St. Louis High School circles, will meet the Clayton team, 1920 County title holders, at the Clayton gymnasium. Later in the season the quintets will meet in a second clash, at the Kenrick stranghold. Next Saturday Kenrick will tackle the strong high school team from Nashville, Ill., which this year defeated the Sparta five by four points.

Soldier Rivals of Dempsey to Meet in Coliseum Bout

Homer Smith and Captain Bob Roper to Furnish Feature Tuesday Night.

LEARNED GAME IN ARMY

Roper Twice Has Defeated Bob Martin and Owns Victory Over Bill Brennan.

By John E. Wray.

"Arms and the Man" will be the little drama enacted at the Coliseum Tuesday night, with Homer Smith and Capt. Bob Roper, former soldiers, cast in the roles of fistic principals. Both men got their pugilistic training in the profession of arms; and, having graduated, are pursuing their fortunes by plying the kindred trade of fists.

Although Bob Martin, inter-allied champion, is supposed to be the leading military and militant factor in heavyweight circles, the fact remains that of late Roper, for one, and perhaps Smith for another, have been making greater strides forward than has the protege of Jimmy Bronson. Roper has twice given Martin an official beating, and it is understood that the cause of Martin's present retirement is "staleness," superinduced by Roper's treatment at Boston some weeks ago.

Roper is somewhat better known than Smith, and his record perhaps needs no further reference than that already made. It suffices to say that he has taken on everybody that has consented to oppose him. He owns a victory over Bill Brennan, who held Dempsey for over 11 rounds. Roper thinks so little of Brennan that he has consented to box him less than one week after his engagement here with Smith.

Smith Met Dempsey Too Soon.

The latter is a fighter who first gained wide publicity in 1918 when he opposed Jack Dempsey. Jack was then coming out of the West with a reputation to make. Smith was Jack's first opponent in the Middle West. Smith was green as a gourd at that time and was an easy prey for the lightning slugger from the coast.

Since that time, however, Smith has come steadily forward. He is no mean morsel of a man, this Smith. He stands 6 feet 2 inches high, weighs about 198 pounds stripped, has a reach of 80 inches and is 25 years old—he says.

Furthermore, he is a person of some intellectual parts, proving that there is something in his name, Homer, after all. Smith handles his own affairs and supports no manager. He talks like a university graduate and bears the ear-marks of at least superficial culture, not to be gained in any ring environment.

Like Capt. Bob Roper, he, too, is matched to fight Bill Brennan. Their date is Feb. 22 at Philadelphia, and, according to Homer's statement, the winner will get another chance at Dempsey, both having been former victims of the champion, with this difference—that it happened to Brennan twice.

Smith has a long list of fights in the last two years since he was released from army duty, among his victims being Bartley Madden, Willie Meehan—who boasts two decisions over Jack Dempsey—Chuck Wiggins, Bob Devere, Hugh Walker, Terry Keller and others. His record contains 28 knockouts.

Richardson vs. Mike O'Donnell.

Of almost equal interest next Tuesday will be the contest in the semiwindup at the Coliseum between Mike O'Donnell and the Class A dreadnaught, Howard Richardson, the Bonne Terre battleship. Richard carries the heaviest artillery noted in these parts for many campaigns. If he lands, something drops.

Richardson is making his second campaign in this city. Some seasons ago he appeared at the Future City Athletic Club on Pine street and electrified the fans by winning nine straight victories on knockouts.

Then along came Bobby Anderson and trimmed him. Richardson went back to the mines, where he stayed and grew; only recently he emerged. In his bout with Young Haney, a few days ago, he showed he had gained in strength and power and today he is a formidable welterweight.

O'Donnell, who meets him, is not only a hitter, but a fast and willing mixer. It is almost a certainty that before the eight rounds are up one of them will have to be helped to his corner.

Kewpie Callender to Show.

Another fistic card of local interest this week will be the meeting Friday at the South Broadway Athletic Club of Kewpie Callender of Minneapolis and Jimmy Murphy, in the South Broadway Athletic Club's main event.

It will be Callendar's first appearance in a contest here, although he has been working out at the Business Men's Gymnasium for several days.

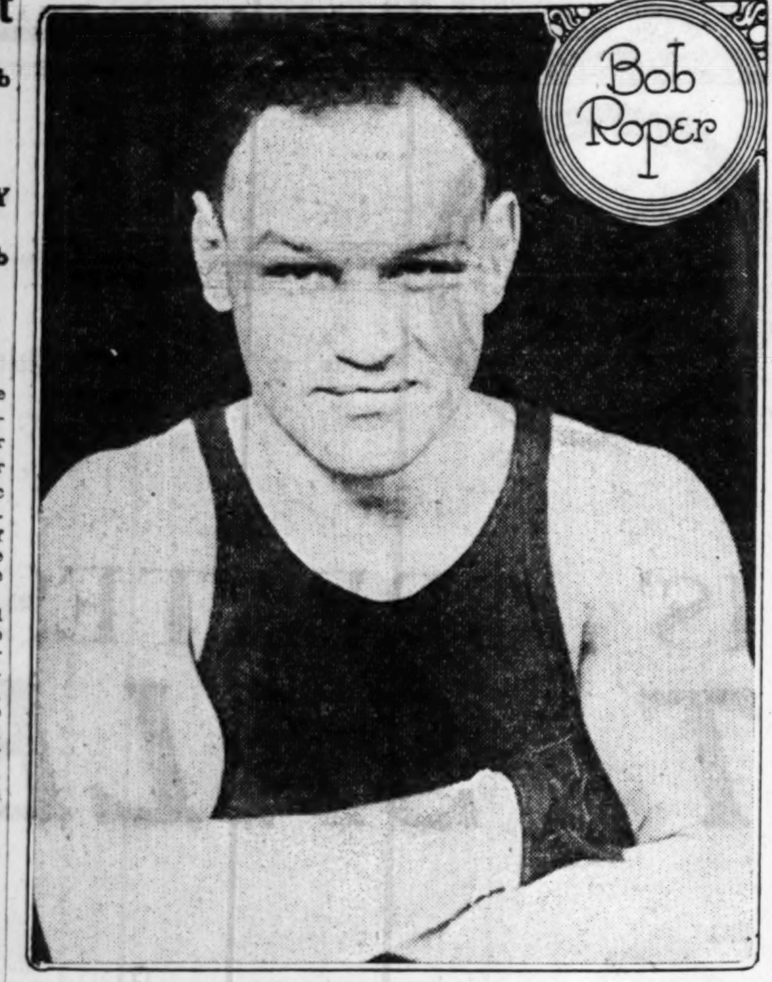
Kewpie is a promising-looking young man, but he will have to show something more than promise to beat the aggressive Jimmy, who showed in his last bout here with Frankie Mason that he is still "there."

HOPPE AND PETERSON TO PLAY HERE JAN. 21-22

Willie Hoppe, the world's 18.2 balkline champion, and C. C. Peterson, local star, will play their exhibition series at Peterson's parlor in this city, Jan. 21 and 22, according to a telegram received yesterday by R. H. Krembs, Peterson's local manager. When Peterson was here for the holidays he said the pair probably would be here the last week of the month, but this date has evidently been pushed ahead.

In the exhibitions at 18.2 this year, Hoppe will be sent against the four leading amateurs of the city. A tournament is at present being held to decide this quartet of players,

Former Army Captain Who Is to Battle Homer Smith Here, Tuesday



Bob Martin, interallied ring champion, is rapidly being eclipsed by Capt. Bob Roper in the race to put an army heavyweight in the field against Jack Dempsey for the heivyweight title. Of the several army fighters in the field, Roper now appears to be about the leading candidate over Gene Tunney, Bob Martin, Homer Smith and others.

Roper has been taking on all the good light heavyweights of the country; and while he has not shown a convincing knockout punch, he has managed to shade some very good boxers and to come close to beating other good ones like Harry Greb.

Martin was rather fortunate that he did not meet either of the principals in next Tuesday's Coliseum bout, both of whom are army stars, but neither of whom was sent abroad during the world war.

It was so much less off his competitive first world's army title.

Both Smith and Roper are improving fighters and Roper, not so long ago, defeated Martin in a 12-round setto in Boston. Roper enlisted in the army in 1912 at the age of 18. He served several years in the Philippines at the time Gen. Pershing was in the field. He participated in several important battles during his stay in the Philippines. At the end of his term he enlisted in the recruiting branch of Uncle Sam's department in Florida and remained there until the war broke out, when he volunteered for line service. Instead, his knowledge of soldiery was converted to a training camp utility and he was kept at Fort Oglethorpe to teach the young idea how to shoot.

Being mustered out after the war Roper resumed boxing, which he had started in the Philippines; he has developed wonderfully in the past few months. Among the men he has defeated are: Bill Brennan, Dempsey's recent opponent; Jack Johnson, former champion (a bout in Mexico City); Frank Moran, Jack Burke, Bob Devere, Bob Martin (interallied champion), Tony Melchior and others.

TIGER DIRECTOR CITES STATISTICS ON PIKER GRID GAME RECEIPTS

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 8.—Z. G. Clevenger, athletic director of the University of Missouri, this afternoon answered the contention of George L. Rider, Washington director, that the football relations between Missouri and Washington have been much more profitable to Missouri than Washington in the past, and statements by St. Louis newspapers that the annual Missouri-Washington game was essential to Missouri finances.

Statistics on Missouri's share of the gate receipts from games played at St. Louis in the last 10 years made public by Clevenger today, show that not until 1919 did the Missouri-Washington game at St. Louis prove a big profit-making contest for the Tiger school. In that year, Clevenger's figures show, Washington paid Missouri $5261.35 as the Tiger share of the gate. But in 1917, when the Tigers also played in St. Louis they received only $968.42, or less than $13 more than Washington received as its share of the 1916 game at Columbia.

Only twice in the period from 1911 to 1917 did the split go over the $1000 mark in 1911 when Missouri received $1502 from the game at St. Louis on Nov. 11, and in 1915, when the Tiger share of the game at St. Louis was $1107.25.

The complete figures on Missouri share of receipts from games at St. Louis follow: 1911, $1502; 1913, $902.37; 1915, $1107.25; 1917, $968.42; 1919, $5261.50.

In the same period Washington's share from games played at Columbia was as follows: 1912, $668.40; 1914, $931; 1916, $955.75; 1918, no game; 1920, $1320.35.

Clevenger pointed out that Missouri this year received $1900 as its share from the Drake-Missouri game, and that the St. Louis University game in 1920 paid $3300, or twice as much as ever received from a Washington game up to 1919.

The Washington University Athletic Council at a meeting Friday, voted to approve Nov. 5 as the date for the 1921 football game between the Missouri and Washington teams. Word to that effect was forwarded to the State school officials, Washington representatives said.

HOOVER SOCCER TEAM TO SHOW NEW STARS TODAY

Jack Quinn's league-leading Brown Shoe Co. eleven will meet the climbing Hamilton-Brown outfit in the opening battle of today's doubleheader in the Olympian Soccer League at High School Field. The second game will be a struggle for second place between the Hoover Sweepers and the Vegacos.

Manager Norman of the Hoovers has added three new stars to his team's roster. The newcomers are Galvin, a forward who formerly played in England, and the Mansfield brothers, a pair of wing men who came here from Montreal where they played the first half of the present season with the leading team of the Canadian Soccer League.

Urban Accepts Terms to Coach Billiken Eleven

Boston College Star to Direct St. Louis U. Football Squad if Board Approves.

Luke Urban, star end of the undefeated 1920 Boston College football team and choice of many experts for a place on the mythical all-American gridiron squad of the past season, has accepted terms submitted by St. Louis University, and will be the 1921 director of the Billiken gridiron squad if the athletic board of the institution votes favorably on the proposition at a meeting to be called soon, Father Hermans, athletic director at St. Louis University, last night told the Post-Dispatch.

According to Father Hermans, it is understood that several members of the board are inclined to delay ratification of the appointment of Urban until the question of picking an older man and one with coaching experience could be considered. However, Father Hermans said it was an even chance that the objections of these would be removed and that Urban would be appointed to the coaching position.

Negotiations were opened with Urban shortly after the end of the 1920 season, when the university authorities decided that it would be wise to find a successor for Charles Rademacher. Urban early intimated that he would consider the St. Louis position and last week the St. Louis officials forwarded their terms.

Urban was a member of the eleven which attained the signal honor for a minor school of defeating the Yale University eleven two successive seasons.

Walter Camp, in a special article written for the Post-Dispatch, placed Urban on end in his second All-American eleven. Lawrence Perry, one of the most reliable critics of the East, writing in the Post-Dispatch of December 5, placed Urban on his first All-American team and added:

"Urban of Boston College was a fiend downfield, a hard and sure tackler and on attack—a perfect interferer. He was by all odds the best end I have seen this season."

ERIES' PROTEST OF ROBINS' CUP VICTORY TO BE HEARD TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The most interesting protest which has yet come before the Cup Committee of the United States Football Association will be decided at a special meeting of the Cup Committee tomorrow morning, in which the Erie F. C. is seeking to have the replay of the cup tie with the Robins Dry Dock F. C., won by the Robins by a score of 5 to 3 Dec. 26, set aside and the game played again.

The first play resulted in a tie, on the Erie grounds, the old Federal League Park at Harrison, N. J., before the biggest attendance that ever paid to see a soccer game in the Metropolitan District. The replay went to the Robins' grounds, attached to the plant of that company in South Brooklyn. The grounds are not regulation size and the side lines remain so near the fences, there is always danger of encroachment. The Eries protested against this before the game, and filed a formal protest after losing. The protest was heard at the committee's regular hearing, but decision was deferred until a report could be had from the referee as to encroachment. This report is now in. President Healey is coming from Detroit to attend the meeting.

PIKEWAY QUINTET WINS; GAYLORD MAKES STRONG BID FOR HURD'S BERTH

Washington University's basketball squad scored an easy victory over the Epsilon Eta quintet of the Municipal League at the Pikeway gymnasium yesterday afternoon, score, 44 to 24. Four periods were played, making a total of 70 minutes of playing time. The score at the half time mark was 22 to 13. The Pikers started with a rush and had counted 12 points before their opponents caged the ball.

Coach Brown used several forwards in the position made vacant by the action of the faculty in declaring Hurd ineligible and Gaylord looked like the most probable selection for the varsity berth. He is from the Granite City High School and was chosen on the mythical all-Illinois High School quintet his last year at school. In the contest yesterday he scored eight points.

The lineup:

Washington (44)	Position.	Epsilon Eta (20)
Thompson (20)	L. F.	Wirtz (1) Russell (3)
Gaylord (8).
Linnemeyer (2).
Hurd (2)	R. F.	Haynes (4) Benway (0)
Thumser (6)	C.	Sandford (8)
Loeffler (0)	L. G.	Roberts (4)
Kraehe (6)	R. G.	C. French (4)

"SKY IS THE LIMIT" IN BUYING NEW MEN, CUBS OWNER DECLARES

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Manager John Evers of the Chicago National League baseball team, today was notified that the "sky was the limit" in the purchasing players and that the fortune of William Wrigley Jr., chief stockholder of the club, was at his disposal in procuring men who would bring the pennant to Chicago next season.

"Mr. Wrigley has authorized me to tell you that during the meetings of club owners next week you can spend any amount in buying players," President William Veeck informed the manager.

Wisconsin Five Wins.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 8.—Wisconsin's Western conference basketball team defeated Michigan in the opening game of the season here tonight, 27 to 24.

Lewis to Defend Mat Title Against Laitman, Swedish Star, Jan. 13

NEW YORK.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis will defend his title of heavyweight champion wrestler of the world against Amos Leitmen, a recent grappling import from Sweden, at Prospect Hall, Brooklyn, on Jan. 13.

It will be Lewis' first engagement of importance since he wrested the championship from Joe Stecher in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory a few weeks ago. The Strangler is spending the holidays at La Paloma, his ranch near San Diego, Cal. He never was in better condition than he was the night he beat Stecher, and he is anxious to keep in that condition.

The gentleman who will next offer his block as a base of operations for the head lock is a bull necked, strong armed individual, who was a "cop" before he became a professional wrestler. He did all his work in Helsingfors and is said to have made an enviable record there.

Billiken Basket Quintet Defeats Alton, 28 to 13

Weber, Playing in Second Half, Scores 11 Points for Coach Callan's Team.

The St. Louis University basket quintet last night defeated the Alton Y. M. C. A. team, 28 to 13, at College Hall. The Billikens were trailing 7 to 8, at the end of the first half, and only through the brilliant work of Weber at center in the second period were they able to defeat the visitors.

Weber has been on the hospital list for some time, suffering from tonsilitis. Coach Callan inserted him in the lineup to start the second half, and from then on Weber was the whole game. He scored three goals from field and five free throws, for a total of 11 points.

The Blue and White shooters were unable to break through the Alton defense in the first half, the small size of the court aiding the visiting guards. All the Billiken points in the first half were made on long shots.

The lineup:

St. Louis U. (28)	Position.	Alton Y.M.C.A. (13)
Rotchford (0)	Right forward	Rothacher (2)
Van Achem (7).
Weber (11)	Center	Bell (3)
Roche (2)	Left guard	MacDonald (6)
Mueller (6)	Right guard	Sagel (0)
		Kennard (0)

SCULLINS HAVE CHANCE TO GAIN FIRST PLACE IN LOCAL SOCCER RACE

The schedule for today in the St. Louis Soccer League calls for the Ben Millers to oppose the Screw Co. in the first game at Cardinal Field, with the Scullins tackling the Innisfails in the second encounter. Play at 2 o'clock with Paul McSweeney and Phil Kavanaugh as officials.

Both the Scullins and Innisfails will be crippled for their clash today. Manager Tate Brady of the Scullins has been sick all week and his place at fullback will be filled by either O'Hanlon or Hennessy. For the Irishmen, Dave Bartnett, "goalie," tore several ligaments in his leg New Year's day and will hardly be able to play. Just who will be between the uprights for Foley is a question.

The Scullins, should they win today with the Screw Co. putting over a victory in the tilt with the Millers, will move back to first place. A victory for the Innisfails and defeat for the Screw Co. will allow Foley's team to get out of the cellar for the first time this season.

Indiana Five Wins.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—Indiana defeated Ohio State University by a score of 29 to 21 here tonight in Ohio State's first Western Conference basketball game this season.

Dartmouth Defeats Yale.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 8.—Dartmouth defeatel Yale, 26 to 22, tonight in the first Intercollegiate League basketball game of the season here.

Tiger Five Again Easily Trounces Ames, 28 to 19

Missouri Shows Stout Defense and Most of Losers' Points Are From Long Shots.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 8.—An early spurt by Ames failed to stop the Tiger five here tonight and Missouri made it two straight over the Iowa Aggies, 28-19. Ames opened with a pair of counters from the field by Green, who divided with Shepard honors for the visitors' offense, but the Tiger scoring machine got into action a couple of minutes later and for the greater part of the forty minutes the Missouri team held a 2 to 1 lead. At the end of the half the score stood Missouri 18, Ames 11.

Both teams showed improvement tonight over their opening game last night. The Ames five made better use of their short pass attack, and while it worked readily in the center of the floor it failed to penetrate the Tiger defense and the bulk of the Aggie counts came from long shots by Green, who scored five baskets from the floor.

Tiger team work showed improvement tonight and brought into evidence secondary offense which failed to appear last night. Knight and Bond led the offense for Missouri, with Wackher and Bunker presenting a solid front under the baskets.

Pidge Browning, Missouri captain, was again on the bench with a sprained ankle.

The score and lineup follow:

Missouri (28)	G.	Ft.	F.
Bond rf	3	0	2
Knight lf	3	0	1
Williams c	4	8	1
Bunker rg	0	0	4
Wackher lg	0	0	5

KANSAS AGAIN DEFEATS DRAKE BASKET QUINTET

LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 8.—Kansas made a clean sweep of the opening Missouri Valley conference series with Drake here by winning the second game of the series tonight, 34 to 28.

Kansas started out at the opening of the game like a one-sided winner and had piled up a 21-to-13 lead at the end of the first half, but during the second period Drake staged a comeback and outplayed Kansas. During the final period Drake made a total of 15 points as against 13 for Kansas.

Wilhelm was the star of the game for his team, making three field baskets in each period for a total of 12 points. Capt. Payseur, the Drake star during the first game, made a total of 12 points also, but eight of the points were made from fouls.

Paul Endacott, Kansas left guard, was the outstanding star for Kansas, although Rody played a consistent game, being high point man with seven field baskets to his credit. He was assisted in many most of the baskets by Woestemeyer, who showed up well for his second game on the varsity team.

HOREMANS RUNS 325 AT BALKLINE; DEFEATS SLOSSON, 400 to 97

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 8.—Edouard Horemans, the Belgian billiardist, continued his sensational work in his final night's play against the old timer, George Slosson, in this city. Tonight Horemans went into his 9th inning with 181 needed to complete his evening's 400. He ran these off and then continued clicking off the shots for the edification of the large gathering of spectators. The total of his run was 325. Slosson was the first to congratulate him upon his amazing achievement. A number of his shots tonight were the finest he has made during his exhibition in this city, numbering among them a cushion-first masse that brought boisterous applause. Slosson's total was 97.

The score of the players follows:

Horemans—0 31 5 0 0 75 0 108—325.
Slosson—1 51 36 1 0 4 2 2.

JOHNNY WILSON SIGNS TO BOX JOE CHIP JAN. 17

PITTSBURG, Jan. 8.—Johnny Wilson of Boston, middleweight champion pugilist, has been signed to meet Joe Chip of Newcastle, Pa., at Motor Square Garden here Jan. 17, in a 10-round bout. John McGarvey announced tonight that he had completed arrangements for the bout.

Good Entry Is Expected.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 8.—Indications point to the usual good list of entries in the annual games of the South Atlantic Intercollegiate Athletic Association, held here in conjunction with the Johns Hojkins Fifth Regiment meet, which this year will take place on Feb. 26. Georgetown, Washington and Lee, Virginia Military Institute and a number of other Southern Colleges will have teams in the field.

Wabash 29, Knox 19.

GALESBURG, Ill., Jan. 8.—Wabash College basketball team defeated the Knox College quintet, 22 to 19, in a hard-fought game here tonight. The victory marked the close of a three-day invasion of Illinois by the Indiana aggregation, Milliken and Augustana being the other losers.

Omaha Receives Challenge

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 8—Rodowe Abeken, City Recreation Director for St. Louis, Mo., has written the manager of the Caledonians, soccer champions of Omaha, asking for a match some time in March with the St. Louis champions, yet to be named. The challenge has been taken under advisement.

Old Man Alibi Is Umpire's Chief Source of Worry, Writes Billy Evans

American League Arbiter Tells How It Feels to Have Players Make Officials Look Foolish, Especially in World Series Game Where They Hesitate to Banish Stars.

By Billy Evans.

(Copyright, 1921.)

"HOW do you feel when some ball player is trying to alibi at your expense?" I was asked recently.

If it were permissible to get profane, I could answer the query most decisively. However, I compromised by admitting it usually made me "darn mad," the degree of anger always depending on one's positiveness as to the correctness of the decision.

People often say to me that nothing would please them more than to be in a position to overhear the dialogue that often seems to be taking place between batsman, catcher and umpire. I don't want to throw cold water on any such desire, but the conversation is not always as interesting as it may seem. There are times that it is worth while, and the repartee is fast, furious and tobascolike.

Old Man Alibi has been flourishing a long time in baseball. The question as to how the umpire feels, when some player is making him look foolish, was caused by a discussion of one of the games of the recent world series between Brooklyn and Cleveland. It was the sixth game of the series, in which the recruit Mails scored a 1 to 0 verdict over the veteran Smith. It was one of the finest exhibitions of pitching I have ever seen in a world series. Both Smith and Mails performed in masterly style. Smith, in a way, spoiled his remarkable work by his actions. At least a dozen times he so conducted himself that he made it evident to the crowd he was not pleased by the decisions of Umpire Connolly who was working the plate.

Umpire's Work Looked Good.

I was sitting directly back of the plate in the press box. I don't want you to get the impression that it is possible to umpire a game from the press box, but one can tell whether the ball is over the plate or not. It is impossible to judge the height of the ball with any degree of accuracy, because of the peculiar angle at which you view it. I feel I am able to pass judgment on the work of an umpire, and I would say Mr. Connolly umpired an excellent game. As I have said before, far be it from me to try to pass an opinion as to whether a ball was too high or low, from a lofty perch in the press box. However, I do know that Pitcher Smith gave Mr. Connolly the stony stare on balls that were six inches inside or outside the plate. I was surprised. Mr. Smith proved conclusively to me that he has all the attributes of a great pitcher. And the great pitchers like Alexander, Johnson and the rest never look at an umpire. You could miss half a dozen perfect strikes in a row on Stanley Coveleskie and you would never hear a murmur from him.

I happened to bump into Mr. Connolly that evening. Like my fan friend, I asked him whether he approved of Mr. Smith's behavior. I will let Tommy answer the query of the fan as to how an umpire feels when he is being made the goat.

How Connolly Felt.

"I was never quite so mad in all my life," said Tommy. "If that had been a game in the regular season Smith wouldn't have lasted an inning. Being the really crucial game of the world series from a Brooklyn standpoint, I was forced to swallow hard."

That is one of the things an umpire is up against in a big series. No umpire who is working in a series cares the slightest who wins. If he is sitting in the grand stand as a mere spectator, it is 10 to 1 he is pulling hard for the team representing his league. However, when he is in a series as an official he is a mere judge of play, performing his duties as he sees them in an automatic way. Old Man Alibi often makes things unpleasant for the umpire and forces him to swallow words and actions that would never pass muster in everyday life. Particularly is this true in a world series.

SIX RACES TO DECIDE SKATING CHAMPIONSHIP

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The Lake Placid Skating Association today announced the program for the international ice skating championship which will be decided on the Mirror Lake rink, Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 10 to 12.

The senior events will be 220 and 440 yard dashes, half-mile and one, two and three mile races. Qualifying and final races in this division will be decided in two of these events each day.

A similar schedule has been arranged for the junior events which will be open to contestants of the classified ages from 10 to 16 yards. In addition there will be fancy and acrobatic skating contests.

Cups will be presented to the champions in each event and medals to each of the first three in all the finals.

Getting together

FOR a long time Robt. Burns' idea of a good cigar has been about like this:

A filler that is entirely Havana—Havana made comfortably mild by special curing, and wrapped with neutral Sumatra leaf.

This formula is approved by smokers the length and breadth of the country. The result is, Robt. Burns and those who share his views on smoking are getting together.

WILDBERGER BACK ON DUTY AS POLICEMAN

Man Acquitted of Murder Assigned to Mounted District—Will Get $1250 in Salary.

Patrolman Fred P. Wildberger, who was acquitted Friday night by a jury of the charge of first-degree murder, for the killing of Peter Birmingham, went back on duty last night, after receiving the congratulations of Chief of Police O'Brien and fellow policemen.

Wildberger immediately will receive about $1250 in salary for the 10 months he has been under suspension. He has been employed as an automobile mechanic during this time. His counsel, former Judge Thomas L. Anderson and former Judge C. Orrick Bishop, were provided by the Police Board upon the assumption that Wildberger killed Birmingham in the performance of duty, which was upheld by the jury.

He was assigned to the Deer Street Station when the killing occurred at Easton avenue and Sarah street on the night of July 2, 1919. He was not indicted until some time later. Prior to the indictment, Wildberger was transferred to a beat at Union boulevard and Natural Bridge road, in the Mounted District. He resumed this beat last night at 10 o'clock.

Birmingham, who was 20 years old, was formerly a member of the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry. Testimony indicated that he was a member of a gang of youths who had caused Wildberger much trouble. However, the defense was that Wildberger intended to fire in the air to make Birmingham stop, and that John Groark knocked his arm down.

Groak testified that this was not the case. Following the acquittal he was arrested on a charge of robbing a number of negroes in a restaurant at 4379 Finney avenue. The charge against him had not been pressed because of his connection with the Wildberger case.

FATHER-IN-LAW OF J. O. BOECK OFFERS $500 FOR INFORMATION

Missing Officer of Battery Concern Was Last Seen Here Dec. 29—Threatening Note on Desk.

A $500 reward for information leading to the return of Julius Oscar Boeck, 38 years old, 2928 Victor street, secretary-treasurer of the Guaranteed Battery Co., 2017-25 Lucas avenue, who was last seen here at 6 p. m. Dec. 29 at Twentieth street and Washington avenue, walking in the direction of the plant, has been offered by his father-in-law, Andrew Kuenzel of 2809 Accomac street.

Boeck's family have not heard from him since his disappearance. A communication from relatives at Garrison, N. D., where he owns a farm, said that he had not been there. On Dec. 30 a letter addressed to Boeck and dated Dec. 28, running, "We will get you and your crowd," was found in his office. He had been depressed for several days because of injuries received in a recent automobile accident and because his company had lost $3000 through the negligence of some former employes, according to the police report.

Boeck is described as being 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing 138 pounds, with brown hair, hazel eyes, fair complexion, and aquiline nose. The circular says he has a pleasant, cheerful, personality, and is intelligent, muscular, athletic, and quick in his actions.

FUNERAL OF MRS. WHITELAW

Private Services to Be Held This Afternoon at Home of Son.

The funeral of Mrs. Lillie D. Whitelaw, 76 years old, widow of Oscar L. Whitelaw, Assistant United States Treasurer here under President Taft, will be held privately this afternoon at the home of her son, Hamilton D. Whitelaw, 4622 Maryland avenue, and interment will be at Bellefontaine Cemetery. Mrs. Whitelaw was found dead, presumably of heart disease, Friday in her room at the Westmoreland Hotel, where she had lived alone for several years.

Mrs. Whitelaw had been vice president of the Whitelaw Brothers Chemical Co. since the death of her husband, Feb. 11, 1917, who had been president. She was born at Northampton, Mass. She is survived by her son and three daughters, Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace, Mrs. Albert T. Terry and Mrs. L. P. Rexford.

MRS. ALICE F. FUNSTEN DIES

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Forbes Funsten, 55 years old, of 5915 Cabanne place, wife of William F. Funsten, one of the founders of the Funsten Brothers Fur Co., who died of heart disease at her home early yesterday morning, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Pilgrim Congregational Church, Kensington avenue and Union boulevard. Interment will be at Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mrs. Funsten was active in church work and gave much time to the Red Cross during the war. She was also a charter member of the Morning Choral Club. She is survived by her husband, a son, Kenneth, 25 years old, and a daughter, Florence, 18.

ST. LOUIS U. IS UTILIZING OLD SODALITY AS CLASSROOM

Need of Additional Buildings Caused by Increase in Number of Students.

St. Louis University has taken over the old Sodality Hall, former home of the Knights of Columbus, at Grand and Laclede avenues, in order to provide additional class room for the greatly increased number of students who are enrolled at the institution this year. The upper floors of the building have been fitted up as class rooms, while the large former assembly room on the ground floor has been equipped as a gymnasium.

The urgency of the necessity for additional buildings for the university has added a new stimulus to the work of the Centennial Endownment Fund Committee, which is endeavoring to raise $3,000,000 for purposes of expansion and development to the institution. During the last week the largest gift to the fund was $5,000, made by E. J. Scott, while another substantial contribution was $1000 from R. S. Colnon. Mrs. Chas. F. Bates was the most generous of the women donors, with a gift of $2000.

Business Man Just Back From Russia Tells of His Experiences With Officials

First of a Series of Articles by Trade Expert Who Finds Nothing Good in Soviet Government.

HECTOR BOON, an English-born New York business man, has just returned from a 10-months' trading mission to Russia and he has prepared for the New York World and Post-Dispatch a series of articles on conditions there as he saw them. There recently have been widely published in this country articles by H. G. Wells, an English author, and Mrs. Clare Sheridan, an English sculptor, both noted for their liberal political views, in which they dealt with the Soviet Government sympathetically as an idealistic rule by well-intentioned though inexperienced men, though admitting that it had failed to accomplish its purposes Wells, indeed, predicted collapse for it soon unless the allies should give it aid and recognition. But here is presented the first report by a business man based on observations made in the course of business contact with Soviet officials and agents. He prediots an early termination of Soviet rule because it is tyrannical, plundering and unjust. The succeeding articles by Mr. Boon will be published in the Post-Dispatch from day to day.

By Hector Boon.

SITTING here comfortably in New York, with peace and plenty on all sides, I find it hard to realize that it is only a little more than 10 months ago since I said good-by in Harbin to one of the principals of the New York firm I represent, and then set forth on my long and interesting journey into Soviet Russia.

During the summer of 1919 we had purchased large quantities of raw furs in Eastern Siberia, and with the defeat of Kolchak these had fallen into the hands of the Bolshevists; so my object in going into Russia was to induce the Soviet authorities to release these furs.

I entered Soviet Russia on April 6, and left it on Oct. 12, when I crossed the Russian-Letvian line at Sebesh. I arrived in London on Oct. 19, spent some time there recuperating from the effects of months of semi-starvation in Moscow, and reached New York Dec. 23.

During my stay in London I read the diary of Mrs. Clare Sheridan, the sculptress; Mr. H. G. Wells' articles on Russia which were published in the London Sunday Express, and Mr. Winston Churchill's reply to that modest gentleman who permitted the newspaper in which his articles appeared to describe him as "the world's greatest living author."

As these articles have also appeared in American journals, I venture to believe that the American public will be interested to read the experiences of a New York business man in Russia (notwithstanding that he is an Englishman) and compare them with those of Mrs. Sheridan and Mr. Wells.

I have no aptitude for "sculping;" I lay no claim to literary ability; I am not endowed with the sweet womanly nature which would render me sad at the thought that I should never see again that foul, blood-drenched scoundrel Dzherjinsky; I am simply a business man, and, at that, have had no experience of life behind a draper's counter. If I had, I should probably, like Mr. Wells, be able to tell England and the world how to trade with Russia.

Says Mrs. Sheridan and Wells Were Propagandists

Mrs. Sheridan's diary, filled with sympathy for the butchers and precious little for their victims, can be dismissed as a breach of good taste on the part of a notoriety-seeking female, but we cannot thus lightly dismiss the articles of Mr. Wells. Whereas Mr. Wells' experience of the Bolsheviks, according to his own admission, was gained as the result of a two weeks' stay in Russia, mine dates from the time of Lenine's first attempt, in 1917, to overthrow the Kerensky Government.

I regard Mr. Wells' articles as the most skillful piece of propaganda which the Bolsheviks have so far put forth. Mr. Wells makes no attempt to cloak the appalling conditions of life which today obtain in Petrograd and Moscow. In fact, he has drawn a very faithful picture of them. Having done so he proceeds to tell the world that these conditions were brought about not by Bolshevism but by the imperialism and capitalism of the Czar's regime. Nothing could be further from the truth, and I propose, in the course of this series, to show that the Bolsheviks, and the Bolsheviks alone, are responsible for the deplorable condition in which Russia finds herself today. In order to do this I shall take the reader with me on my journey through Russia.

In June, 1917, I traveled from Vladivostok to Petrograd over the Transsiberian Railroad. On that occasion the journey took 10 1-2 days, all stops included; this year our actual running time (all stops excluded) was 28 days.

Kolchak Dictator in Name Only; Had a Cabinet of Scoundrels

In 1917 I remained in Russia until September, when I went to New York, returning to Petrograd in December, where I remained until April, 1918, when, with my assistants, I was forced to escape on sledges through Karelia into Finland. In October, 1918, I arrived in Vladivostok and remained in Siberia, a close observer of the Kolchak regime, until I crossed the Urals, in June this year, on my way to Moscow.

In June, 1919, the Ataman Chief Semionov stole from my firm some 5000 white fox skins at the Station Manchurio, and in July I proceeded to his headquarters at Chita to negotiate for the return of them. I was unsuccessful and went to Omsk, where I spent two and a half fruitless months endeavoring to secure compensation from the Kolchak Government.

During my stay in Omsk, where I came into contact with the leading members of the Government, I had an opportunity of studying the methods of Kolchak and his Cabinet. Kolchak, admittedly a man of great personal courage, was a dictator in name only; he possessed none of the qualities fitting him for such an onerous position; his Cabinet consisted principally of unscrupulous adventurers, who neglected no opportunity to enrich themselves at the expense of the cause, which they ultimately, by their corruption and treachery, destroyed.

In October, realizing that the fall of Omsk was imminent, I left and went to Chita and reopened negotiations with the bandit of the Transbaikel. My stay in Chita was somewhat unpleasantly disturbed by a 10 days' sojourn in the Ataman's jail which was brought about by my calling him a thief to his face. On my release from prison, which was secured by the British Military Mission, I remained in Chita until the first week in December, when, having secured a promise from the Ataman that he would pay for the stolen foxes upon presentation of certain certified statements, I went to Vladivostok to get them.

I left Vladivostok on the return journey toward the end of January. On my arrival in Harbin, however, I was called to Tientsin for a conference with my principals. At this conference they requested me to make an effort to get to Irkutsk from Chita and endeavor to secure the return of a large quantity of furs which we then had in Irkutsk and the surrounding district.

Tells of 3000-Mile Retreat in Winter on Sledges.

On my return from Tientsin to Harbin I found my friend, Capt. H. S. Walker, the British Military Mission's representative in Chita, who had recently left there under the impression that Semionov's days were numbered. My chances of getting through to Chita looked decidedly small, and when Consul-General Harris, with the consular staff, and Col.

Senator Capper, Answering St. Louisan's Plea for Trading in Futures, Points Out Its Evils

SYSTEM COSTLY TO THE FARMERS, HE DECLARES

"Short Selling Is a Speculation Pure and Simple, and Such Sales Are Made With the Object of Getting Profit From Declines in the Market at the Expense of Others," Kansan Declares.

Senator Says That the Purpose of Measure Introduced by Him Is to Restore the Law of Supply and Demand to Free Operation and to Destroy Gambling on Grain and Cotton Exchanges.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.

THE following article was written for the Post-Dispatch by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, in reply to the recently published statement in defense of "future" trading by Harry H. Langenberg, acting president of the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange. The discussion centers around the bill recently introduced by Capper in the Senate to prohibit unrestricted speculation in food products and cotton. It is Capper's contention that board of trade gambling by means of option dealing is not only morally indefensible, but has the practical effect of enriching the speculator at the expense both of producer and consumer.

By SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER.

IF the present system of marketing grain and cotton through speculative exchanges dealing in futures is a desirable system and defensible, as Mr. Langenberg claims, then we propose to retain in this system everything that is even claimed by Mr. Langenberg and other defenders to be legitimate. But we propose to destroy what is admitted by its defenders to be immoral and injurious to the trade and the public. The United States is the only country on earth that tolerates gambling in food products. As a war measure we had no gambling in wheat on the Board of Trade until July 15, 1920, and unquestionably the farmer, the dealer, the miller and the consumer were all benefited by that order.

It is nothing new that we hear today from the producers of food and cotton, from cotton spinners and grain dealers and millers, and from the victims of speculation carried on without restriction, of the abominations of speculation in these products. It has been heard again and again. The Senate and the other branch of Congress again and again have had their attention called to this thing and inquiries have been held and hearings given at which over and over it has been charged and admitted that gambling constitutes a great part of all the business transacted on these exchanges. It is an immoral practice.

But we are attempting to correct it in this bill, not merely because of its immoral character and influence, but because of its arbitrary interference with economic laws and its disturbance of the balance that demand and supply of commodities when left to itself brings about, giving the producer and consumer just and equal treatment.

Mr. Langenberg claims that the law of supply and demand fixes the price on the Board of Trade, but when we see fluctuations daily of from 7 to 15 cents a bushel for wheat in Chicago for a period of three weeks in last October, it will take something more than Mr. Langenberg's statement to convince me that the law of supply and demand is operating in such a market as that.

Purpose of Bill to Restore Law of Supply and Demand

The purpose of the bill introduced by me is to restore the law of supply and demand to free operations and to destroy gambling on the Boards of Trade and cotton exchanges of the nation.

This great law of nature has always appealed strongly to the sense of justice in all men. We respect it because it is a natural law; we admire it because it is just and fair to all alike, great and small, rich and poor, the weak as well as the strong.

Anything that tends to destroy or frustrate this great democratic law of nature, any combination of any distorted mechanism of trade, is offensive to the sense of common justice and fair dealing which all men, and certainly we, as Americans, cherish.

That is why there is an overwhelming demand on the part of our producers for a reform in our grain exchange system.

I claim in behalf of my bill that its sole purpose is to eliminate from the exchanges exactly those operations that do not conform to a market place where prices are determined in accordance with the law of demand and supply.

Mr. Langenberg and other defenders of these practices of gigantic speculation and gambling do not deny the practices; they rest on the proposition, which in the long run is undoubtedly correct, that speculation cannot overcome the law of demand and supply. I admit that it cannot. But I know that, temporarily at least, the fictitious supply created by gambling deals on the exchanges distorts true demand and supply and creates a false price, that it causes and has recently caused violent and unnatural fluctuations, and that when wheat and cotton came on the market last fall the resumption of options dealing was immediately followed by such an orgy of gambling operations as to drive prices within a period of weeks far below the cost of production.

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER.

Grain and cotton are in a peculiar situation because of such a development of exchanges over the world that they completely dominate the world markets. The price is made here, in the grain and cotton pits. The exchanges are privately conducted and are completely under control of rules made by their own members. The membership is strictly limited. No man may buy or sell on these boards who is not a member. Through these members as principals and agents or brokers, all who deal in these commodities are controlled and the price is controlled and fixed day by day, and this price is instantly flashed to the remotest hamlet in the land.

Operations in Fictitious Cotton and Phantom Wheat

If the trades made in the grain and cotton pits were confined to the legitimate grain and cotton industries, there would be no criticism of the exchange. And the justice of this position is recognized by the defenders of the exchanges. They profess that their rules are consistent with this idea. And the literal reading of their rules bears out the claim. No member of the exchange under its rules may sell these commodities for future delivery who does not intend such delivery. On their face the rules imply dealing in the commodity itself and not in phantom wheat or imaginary cotton. In actual operation, however, in the execution of the rules, phantom wheat and fictitious cotton constitute not only a part of the operations, but altogether the major part.

It can therefore readily occur, and it has occurred recently, that the price has been determined not by the demand and supply of the commodity itself, but by the fabulous quantities sold on the exchange that never had any existence, that no cotton or grain farmer in the world ever planted, ever toiled over its cultivation and harvest or ever offered for sale.

Mr. Langenberg attempts to show that short selling and other practices resorted to by the Board of Trade made a better market for the farmer, but after all has been said in defense of it, the fact remains that short selling is a speculation pure and simple, and such sales are made with the object of getting a profit from declines in the market at the expense of others.

The effect of such short sales in both cases is to cause and accelerate declines, and they bear very heavily on the market that is striving hard to hold up and advance, and which would often do so, if it were not for short selling.

Short sales aggregate in a year on the grain exchanges in the United States at least 20 times more than the actual grain represented by the crop of grain grown.

"No One Has Moral Right to Sell What He Does Not Own"

Such sales do not contemplate any real delivery of the grain so sold and in probably not more than 1 per cent of the cases are deliveries ever made. The short seller sells property, or what is supposed to represent property, that he does not own, which has the effect, at least for the time being, of depressing the value of the property of another who does own such property.

Now I claim no one has any moral right to sell what he does not own or possess, and if laws were passed and enforced prohibiting this, farmers and the public would, I am sure, be greatly benefited. I do not want to be understood as being in favor of prohibiting all sales of futures. Selling of futures by those who actually are owners of the grain as represented by sales is legitimate, and should be permitted, if the gambling and speculative element can be eliminated.

This is an exporting nation. The foreigner is not interested in the producer's side, but in getting his goods as cheap as possible. If it were not for the trading in futures, the foreigner would have to buy the grain where it is available, paying what it was worth, based upon supply and demand.

With the futures market available, the operator representing the foreigner makes a bear raid by selling large quantities of futures, buys the grain or cotton on the break below the real market value and then quietly buys back the futures at a profit besides. He not only raids the farmer's granary in this way, but he also plays one surplus-producing nation against the other. He raids our markets by using bearish reports on India, Australia and the Argentine. Then he raids those markets by using bearish raids on the United States. Then he makes another raid here because markets in other countries have broken. The producer does not stand any chance under such a system.

Firm Sold 20,000,000 Bushels of Wheat It Had Never Bought

It was currently reported by members themselves a few months ago that a single great operator in the grain trade, the Armour Grain Co., had offered for sale 20,000,000 bushels of wheat which it had not first purchased and did not possess, that it followed these offers with others amounting to millions of dollars, the effect of these and similar operations being to depress the price. The sole purpose of these operations was to place the operator on the exchange in a favorable position to buy wheat for the purpose of filling a contract given it by Great Britain's purchasing agency.

For, strange as it may seem, this is the method taken by large operators when they intend to make purchases, when they are in the position not of sellers but of buyers. In ordinary commerce, when a merchant is in need of an article he goes into the market and buys it. But not so in the operations of the great operators of the Board of Trade. When they want to buy they first sell. They manipulate the market by employing the facilities of the exchange to depress the commodity in order to buy it at a price below the just equation of demand and supply.

This manipulation of the market by the Armour Grain Co. and other big operators a few weeks ago caused the farmers of the West to lose millions of dollars. Many were obliged to sell their wheat below the cost of production. But what do opeartors on the Chiacgo Board of Trade care whether the farmer loses or not? Their profits in the last six months have been larger than for many years. The farmer produced the largest wheat crop on record, but he lost money on his year's work.

Denies Langenberg's Assertion Future Trading Stabilizes Market

Mr. Langenberg puts forth the claim that the present system is a stabilizer of the market. It has the opposite effect. Holders of iron, steel, coal, lumber and hundreds of other staples know that the supply and the world's needs will not be materially different tomorrow than they are today, and that the price will not be materially different, and the same would apply to the cereals if it were not for the violent fluctuations caused from day to day by gambling in grain futures.

Because of this, country elevators cannot, with safety to themselves, pay within 10 cents a bushel on wheat and 5 cents a bushel on corn and oats, that they otherwise could if this menace did not exist. On a normal crop of about 5,000,000,000 bushels of wheat, corn and oats, this amounts to around $300,000,000 direct loss to the farmer from this source alone.

As to its effect on the nation as a whole from a gambling standpoint, the Board of Trade is extensive and far-reaching. There is hardly a community where these branch commission houses are located that cannot point out several wrecked banks, wrecked homes, suicides, divorces

HOW FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM EASES CRISES AND SAVES NATION FROM PANICS

Vice President of National City Bank Explains Its Method of Functioning in Language All Can Understand.

THERE has been a great deal of talk in recent months about the Federal Reserve banking system; how it has operated during the financial crisis and how it has steadied our financial policy and kept it on a safe basis that has preserved the nation from a panic in the face of the gravest situation it has ever confronted. Yet, important as are its functions in our national life, it is a mystery to most men. The following article by George E. Roberts, vice president of the National City (Standard Oil) Bank of New York, in the Review of Reviews (New York) for January, tells what it is and how it operates in terms that everybody can understand. The Post-Dispatch reprints it by special arrangement with the Review of Reviews:

By George E. Roberts.

Vice President of the National City Bank of New York.

THIS country is now passing through one of the most severe industrial crises known in its history. The prices of nearly all the staple products have had a greater and more rapid fall than at any previous time. This comes as the culmination of an unprecedented period of credit inflation, when according to past experience the banking situation might be expected to be the storm center, but this time the banks are functioning as usual, exhibiting entire confidence in each other and commanding the confidence of the public.

In every other crisis, such as 1837, 1857, 1873, 1893, when the country had come to the end of a period of great credit expansion, the most serious factor in the situation has been weakness among the banks. Since they are the chief dealers in credit, when their own credit became impaired, widespread panic naturally resulted. Instead of affording support in time of stress by granting credit to worthy customers, they were often compelled to increase the general demoralization by their efforts to force collections and meet their own obligations. This time there has been slight pressure by the banks to compel the liquidation of indebtedness, and the number of mercantile failures has been less in consequence.

Before There Was a Real System

Nobody well informed upon conditions can doubt that if the banking situation had been in the unorganized state in which it was when the disastrous panics of 1893 and 1907 occurred, those experiences would have been repeated in 1920, if not earlier. As a matter of fact, it is impossible to conceive of the country's accomplishing the task of financing the war under the old banking system, or want of system.

The weakness of the old situation is described in saying that there was no banking "system," but only a group of individual banks, each independent and supposed to be self-sufficient, with no mutual obligations. Each was required to pay in the amount of capital stated in its charter, and was permitted to receive deposits upon condition that it carried certain reserves of cash. Over the banks of the national banking system was placed a supervisory official called the Comptroller of the Currency, and over the banks of each State system a State Superintendent, the province of these officials being to see that the provisions of law regulating the conduct of the business were observed.

A Panic in the Old Days.

Neither the national act nor the State banking laws made any provision against the most menacing danger that ever threatens the banking business, which is the danger of a general panic among bank depositors, causing them to rush upon all banks at once for the purpose of withdrawing their deposits.

In normal times banks can do business week in and week out, year in and year out, with a very small amount of cash on hand. The payments out are practically offset by the payments in. From 10 to 15 per cent of the deposits is an ample cash reserve; indeed, the law required less than that. And even in case of a sudden run on a single bank, or upon the banks of a single town, the situation was easily handled, by getting cash from the banks of some neighboring town or the financial center of that territory, or if the disturbance was in one of the larger cities, by resort to New York or others of the principal centers.

In a time of general alarm, however, when there were demands on banks everywhere, the banks were helpless. It became impracticable for them to go to each other's assistance. They all had more demands for cash than they could meet, for, taken as a whole, their liabilities, payable on demand, were about 10 times their cash holdings. The fundamental weakness was in this great body of demand liabilities without any means of creating an additional supply of lawful money in cases of an emergency need.

Everybody knew that the banks could not pay all their deposits on demand. They were not expected to keep themselves in position to do that, and yet if a bank failed in time of general panic to do this, even though it was perfectly solvent and its management above criticism, it was expected to close its doors, go into bankruptcy and liquidate in disgrace. Moreover, not only was liquidation ruinous to the bank, but it compelled the collection of all indebtedness to the bank, at more or less inconvenience and loss to the patrons, and in times of general alarm and reaction this carried the demoralization still farther.

It is something strange that a people as practical and competent in business affairs as the Americans should have put up with such an incompetent banking system for so many years. The only explanation for it is that the national banking system was an improvement in many respects upon the old State bank systems which preceded it. This was particularly true as to the currency, which under the national banking system was, and is, good, without question or discount, in every part of the country. The national banking system was good by contrast with what preceded it, and while it was weak in a crisis, inasmuch as a crisis came only about once in 15 or 20 years, the people did not set themselves seriously to remedy that defect.

1907 Clearing-House Notes.

In 1907, however, the suspension of cash payments was nation-wide, and no disgrace attached to it. It was clear that the trouble was not due to mismanagement on the part of bankers, but was inherent in the system. Some method was needed by which a bank with sound assets could convert them into lawful money, or obtain advances of lawful money upon them, to meet the calls of its depositors.

Necessity is the mother of invention, and the bankers improvised means of creating currency. In the cities where they were organized in clearing-houses they arranged for the member banks to deposit approved collateral with the clearing-house, against which were issued promissory notes in the denominations of money, and these notes were put into circulation as money. They were not a legal tender, or authorized by law, but the public had confidence in them, accepted them and they served the purposes of money. It appeared that the principle upon which they were issued was sound, and should be incorporated permanently in the banking system.

This opinion was strengthened by the fact that in nearly every other country this principle had been

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Peace on Earth.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In setting forth the fundamental principles upon which all real living is based, Jesus Christ placed in the very forefront of the minds of the people "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God," and we know that this is absolutely true.

Then on the other hand, all those, who for selfish reasons and through ignorance, stir up strife and ill-will between individuals and nations are trouble-makers, and it can therefore be truly said, accursed are the trouble-makers, for they shall be called the children of the devil.

This thinking and talking about "Peace on earth and good will to men" only one day in the year is about as liable to bring the desired result "The kingdom of heaven on earth," as thinking failure 364 days in the year will bring success one day of thinking success. When the people think and talk and live in their daily lives 365 days in the year, "Peace on earth and good will to men," we will see this truth as taught and proved by the Master, become an actual, tangible, concrete reality, for what ye sow (continually think), so shall ye reap (experience), which is the law from which there is no escape. JACK HENNING.

The Tax on Tobacco.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Soon the tax problem will again engross the attention of Congress; and when it does, let not the user of tobacco cherish the hope that tobacco will be overlooked. As a smoker, I, for one, protest against putting any more tax on tobacco. The man who stays at home with his pipe and his magazine is just as good a citizen, and much better, than the man who gads about looking for company, mixing in everybody's business, furthering troublemaking schemes, and starting many of his own. Tobacco is not a luxury, but a solace; and Nature clearly intended it for just the purpose it is used. Why tax it out of existence? If the only justification for a prohibitive tax is that it is a sure source of revenue, and easy to get, why not, with equal justice, single out the touring car? The touring car has as firm a hold on the wealthy, as the pipe has on the poor, restricted of necessity, in much of their leisure to smoking and ruminating. Let tobacco have a rest, before it becomes a campaign issue, much more formidable than prohibition; because, unlike intoxicants, the use of pure tobacco is not an evil. It tends rather to civilize, not to brutalize. It does not transform the user into a savage. No such considerations can be advanced to justify the Government in depriving the people of its use, either directly or indirectly, through a prohibitive tax.

Not Americans.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Your editorial "A Hyphenated Government," is just fine and to the point, and just what I thought when I read the news article of which you write. I think every honorable, intelligent American will agree with you. It makes me sick to hear people put a hyphen to their nationality. People who put a hyphen in their nationality are not American.

AN AMERICAN WOMAN.

Coal Prices.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

So the coal dealers are to forego a trifle of the 60 per cent of excessive profit they have been harvesting for many months from the buyers in retail lots. This refreshing information appears in the newspapers in the form of a decision by one concern only. It is stated, however, that other concerns are expected to follow suit. It might safely have been stated without qualification that other concerns will follow suit, and that all will have the reduction of 50 cents per ton in effect on Jan. 1, the date fixed by the concern set up to lead.

When the writer has bought coal this season he has, upon inquiring as to prices, seen them read from a printed slip. Would an individual concern be apt to have prices printed where there are only about a half-dozen grades of coal quoted? Is it not reasonable evidence that those prices were printed and distributed from a central bureau?

Now, as to prices of coal here: My last supply was obtained from a hauling concern instead of a regular dealer. That concern sends its trucks, each with a capacity of not more than five tons, into Illinois for a round trip of more than 30 miles, not including the haul in the city for delivery at the home of the buyer, and sells at about $1.50 per ton less than the regular coal man. His gasoline for that trip will cost more than the coal man's freight bill, and there is the wage of the driver added. Sometimes one truck will make three trips a day, but more frequently only two. There, then, is a maximum of not more than 15 tons daily per truck, against hundreds sold by the dealer, yet the hauling concern is more than satisfied with its profit. The latter may get coal at the mine at the same price as the big buying dealer, but that isn't likely. F. A.

A NEW FEDERAL BUREAU.

The Post-Dispatch has uttered warnings against the constant encroachments of Federal power in the states with such persistency as, perhaps, to have wearied some of its readers, yet to remain silent to the multiplication of Federal bureaus, with their armies of agents, inquisitors and spies sent out into the states to regulate local concerns, is to become an accessory to the destruction of the first and happiest experiment of mankind in his capacity for self-government. And if republican government in the United States fails, liberal political progress throughout the world fails with it.

In the last two or three decades there is hardly a relation of community life in the states that has escaped the paternal solicitude of the Federal Government through a newly created bureau, board or commission. And more and more these bodies are departing from the mere exercise of administrative functions and are seizing legislative power, through grants of authority by Congress to make regulations.

The present session of Congress has given a fresh impetus to the process of Federal absorption of all power by passing, as almost its first act, a bill turning over to a Federal bureau the direction of the care of maternity and infancy in the several states. The measure has objects so benevolent and embraces a subject so sorely in need of corrective action, that it readily rallied the support of a large number of women's organizations throughout the United States, whose appeal Congress was only too prompt to grant. But the obligation to undertake this benign service rests primarily and exclusively upon the states, through organization in their cities, wards and counties, where a more intimate knowledge of local needs permits more speedy and efficient remedy. It is no more within the Federal jurisdiction than the burial of the dead.

It is unfortunate that the women's organizations, instead of further inuring their state governments to dependence upon the Federal, did not organize in the respective states and arouse them to grapple with the problem. For it needs no argument to support the assertion that a distant bureau in Washington is utterly incapable of rendering prompt and efficient service in so vast a field. It may be argued that the Sheppard-Towner maternity bill does not violate the principle of local autonomy in that all states availing themselves of a portion of the $4,480,000 appropriation from the Federal treasury must organize acceptable local agencies; that, therefore, local instrumentalities will be used. But to this argument it need only be pointed out that the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor is the directing head of the work, that it is vested with large discretion, and that the Surgeon-General of the Public Health Service, as a member of the advisory board, will find a field for expanded activity.

The measure starts the year 1921 with an appropriation of $2,480,000, rising annually until 1926, and thereafter to $4,480,000. Knowing the inveterate characteristics of bureaus, we shall soon find the $4,480,000 wholly inadequate to sustain the ever-expanding program and personnel. We shall in all probability see the sum raised to a fixed annual charge upon the Government of $10,000,000, $20,000,000, or perhaps $40,000,000, with the whole subject of health in the states taken under Federal supervision.

It is a remarkable fact that among the active advocates of the maternity measure were the Governors of 20 states. What, it is pertinent to ask, has become of that old jealousy of the principles of local self-government as the only effective safeguard against the oppressions of a distant Government? Where is the fine spirit of watchfulness against the breaking down of the barriers of constitutional government that rings throughout the Kentucky and Virginia resolutions prepared by Jefferson?

It is gone. Our Governors and legislatures not only do not resent, but they welcome, Federal intermeddling as a means of shirking local burdens. And they become enthusiastic if the process includes a dole from the Federal treasury. With such apathy, and even support, in the states, it is no wonder that Congress yields without regard to its enumerated powers. As Senator Thomas truthfully said during the pendency of the Sheppard-Towner measure:

> A man is a fool who in the Congress of the United States questions the constitutionality of any bill in these days. He only provokes ridicule, if not pity and contempt. What is the Constitution between appropriation bills and their exponents? What does it amount to in the face of an overwhelming petition of those who are interested in a given measure?

Now that the maternity bill has passed it will be easier to revive the Towner education bill, as an entering wedge for the turning over of our public school systems to a United States commissioner, or, perhaps, a Secretary of Education. Those interested in this measure are probably counting on an accession of strength from the women of the country, to whom its virtues will be depicted in appealing terms. But with its passage it will not be long before a bureau in Washington will select the sort of education considered good for us, while placing inconvenient studies, theories and principles upon the prohibitory index.

It cannot be too often affirmed that self-government can be perpetuated only through its constant practice in city, ward, county and state; in discharging the duties at hand and learning the lessons of self-reliance. It is not a ready-made system that can be intrusted to others to execute. The blame for the progress of bureaucracy in this country lies not upon those abstract entities termed city, ward, county and state, but upon the people who compose them. It is their apathy, their willingness to pass on their local duties to someone else, that is building up in Washington the cumbrous, inefficient and dangerous machine that is displacing the Federal Government.

THE MARION MILITARIST.

There is a persistent rumor in Washington, admittedly without any foundation of fact, that President Wilson intends calling an international conference to consider limitation of armament. It is pointed out that, under the naval appropriation bill of 1916, the President has authority to issue such a call. The Borah resolution proposing an agreement by the United States, Japan and Great Britain for a reduction in naval plans, the agitation of this question, which has assumed the proportions of a world-wide movement, the action of Lloyd George in cutting down the British naval budget by one-half, all constitute a set of circumstances making the rumored call for an international conference a logical sequence.

And there is the striking testimony of Gen. Pershing directing attention to the fact that the naval and military estimates recently submitted to Congress contemplate an expenditure for the next fiscal year of $5,000,000 a day. The assumption of such a financial burden under present conditions could only be warranted by the gravest and most imminent peril, which nobody is foolish enough to imagine exists. But apart from the people's inability to carry such a load, Gen. Pershing, with the horrors of a great war fresh in mind, declares that steps must be taken to prevent its recurrence, and, in his opinion, "an important step would be to curtail expenditures for the maintenance of armies and navies."

But another important voice is heard, and heard in dissent. The Marion Star, Mr. Harding's paper, on the last day of the old year, published an editorial, headed "Supreme on the Seas," predicting "that, by 1924, the United States will have by far the most powerful navy in the world," and remarking that "the supremacy over the seas which Great Britain has held for 300 years is now passing to America." "With a navy capable of defeating any rival," the Star observes, "the safety of the United States is preserved. * * * Peace on the Western Hemisphere is freed for all time from the danger of threats from abroad."

How accurately the jingoism and junkerism of the Marion Star reflect Mr. Harding's views may only be surmised, but, under the circumstances, such expression may be presumed to be the master's voice. With the superficial reasoning we need not be concerned other than to say that a navy superior to that of any other Power would not necessarily mean supremacy on the seas so long as other Powers may enter into coalitions or alliances. But the deplorable feature of the Marion Star's editorial is the revelation that the next President of the United States is apparently unaware of the potential economic tragedy contained in military expenditures and imagines that the security of peace is to be found in bristling guns instead of in the honor and truth and good will of men.

"The country has learned the danger of unpreparedness," concludes the Marion Star. "The great war taught us that." But the great war seems not to have taught Mr. Harding the ghastly danger inherent in such preparedness, such militarism, as makes war inevitable.

A SCANDAL'S HAPPY ENDING.

An interesting bit of litigation that harks back to the days of railroad high finance has finally been settled by compromise. The plaintiffs in the action were a group of stockholders in the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. The defendants were officers and directors of the company, the list including the royal houses of Morgan and Rockefeller, together with a number of monetary princelings.

It was the contention of the plaintiffs that the defendants, while in control of the company, pursued a policy of reckless acquisition and expansion, the ostensible object of which was to effect a transportation monopoly of New England, and the actual result of which was the practical wrecking of the property. But in the negotiations between the attorneys for the opposing sides the allegations of bad faith originally complained of were withdrawn, and the claim of $150,000,000 has been settled by the payment of $2,500,000 to the railroad company by the defendants, minus the contingent fee of $833,000 allowed the plaintiffs' attorneys.

So the "New Haven scandal" is now legally concluded. The defendants are all honorable men. Every scurrilous accusation, yes, every unpleasant intimation, has been expunged. Not an echo of wrongdoing haunts the records. Such seems to be the gracious substance of the Court's memorandum accompanying the discontinuance papers. But a question which will confuse the average layman is this: Why did those defendants pay $2,500,000 if they had done no wrong? The memorandum says the payment was made "in consideration of a general release." A general release from what?

There are other consequences of the New Haven scandal that still persist. There are the hundreds of New England families who, living comfortably, if frugally, on the income of their New Haven stock, were rendered penniless by the Morgan dream of a transportation monopoly. There are the killed and maimed—the victims of the wrecks that got to be daily features of the New Haven under the Morgan management. The dead, the crippled and the impoverished of New Haven's high finance rather tone down the glow of this scandal's happy ending.

MY CHOICER GIFTS.

GREAT God, of all Thy gifts
I would implore, but give me one.
I may lack in mercy, I may lack
In understanding; I may lack in expression;
I may lack, holy God, in all of these.
I may behold Thy day with sober intent,
Yet with vague misunderstanding. None of these
Would be Thy curse descended.
Thou mightest stop my ears,
Thou mightest smite me dumb,
Thou mightest blind mine eyes.
I say Thou mightest. But leave me,
Gentle God, that potent honey
A kinship with mirth,
And a tattered cape wisdom!

AMONG SIGN HUNTERS.

The new series of licenses is out, and sign hunters are already pushing out in the new regalia. The design differs from any we have had in former years. It carries in the center the heels of a man sticking out of an open dictionary. These are the heels of the sign painter, who is trying to make sure of his sign before one of our hunters sees it. A special license has been designed for apostrophe hounds. It carries the inscription "Apostrophe Hound No. .... 1921," over the motto, which is "Punctum Saliens," that is the point counts whether we think so or not.

No. 17534875348096, easily the most scholarly of our sign hunters, has been given the sole hunting rights in the state papers of Senator Harding.

No. 63490742, who has had the south side of Franklin avenue, has been given leave to exchange territories with X45328, who has the north side of the same street.

All of our sign hunters will regret to learn of the recent death of IXL6452785, who had Granite City. The work killed him some time in December.

B24, who has been reporting the vernacular from bills of fare in Kansas City, has been transferred for the benefit of his health to San Diego, Cal., where he does comic want ads.

No. 1, who began with us years ago and found the celebrated "Soup 5 cents a bowel" upon the window of a restaurant in the St. Louis colored quarter, has his old number again this year.

The box of cigars for general variety and excellence during the past year went to No. 19, who reported altogether seven and one-half columns of monkey business, most of it good.

M65, who surrendered her license last year because we would not print the Market street sign about Dr. Alexander curing all diseases including children, has become pacified after calling at the office and being shown that we printed this sign in 1914.

A lady who reads Just a Minute went into a department store the other day and asked the elevator starter for lingerie. She was directed to a floor where she saw nothing but glass and queensware. Seeing an authoritative-looking gentleman across the floor, she approached him and asked where she could find lingerie.

"We have that on this floor," he said. "It's interior decorations, isn't it?"

"Something of that sort," our reader answered.

Nov. 3 & 4

Are we making two words where one used to do?

If you live in St. Louis, or you are to be here this week, you may want to go out to the Little Theater, where a good many of us work and play and are this week producing two of the Dunsany pieces. When Lord Dunsany himself was with us for an evening at the Artists' Guild last winter he said we might use his pieces off and on, since our theater was so small we could not possibly make any money with it. The meager uses we would make of any play could scarcely be called an infringement of a commercial agreement. Which displayed acumen upon his part. The Little Theater is not for money and never made any. We do not know just what it is for. Maybe you can tell us. If you can, we will give you free seats to the next show. What we think it is for is related to education. We try to give literary plays and in one way or another expose the community to good dramatic literature. There is always room at that sort of place, and there will be room for you if you want to come. You will learn of one thing out there, and that is the happiness of those who work in the Little Theater. That institution is easily the finest plaything ever discovered for grown-ups. Given that, men and women can be children again. Do you know why England was for a long time called Merrie England? We will tell you. There was a time in England when the people were more interested in mimicry than they were in holding people like the Irish captive or having the biggest foreign trade. In those days there was not a community in England that did not have its players and its plays. The more popular type of theater was often a barn. That was what made England merry, and she has never been merry since she gave it up. Out at the Little Theater, anyway, contemplating the misery of King Argimenes, who fell into the clutches of a country knowing nothing about plays, you are safely out of any sort of intellectual mischief.

Senator Harding seems not yet fairly to have realized that he is to be the next President of the United States. Almost every other remark he makes amounts to pinching himself. What a state of affairs have we here! The Senator had his headquarters at several Republican national conventions, and he was for goodness knows how long a candidate for the presidential nomination in case nobody else could get it. The terms under which he was hoisting his lightning rod were quite understood, and it was only when the Lowden-Wood deadlock came that anybody turned seriously to Senator Harding. Fortunately for the Senator in that crisis, both he and his candidacy were still living. Is it any wonder he cannot believe it until he is well out of bed?

ANALOGY.

HOW like tonight is winter!
Stripped of its gaudy gown,
The earth lies sleeping, underneath the snow;
Checked is the music of the river's flow;
Silent, the forest, whence the birds have flown,
While darkening clouds curtain the drowsy sun.

But spring is morning. Its insistent call
Rouses the earth from winter's lethargy;
Music bursts forth; even the frozen sea
Its icy symbols clash in rhythm free,
And stirring life rises to energy.
How like to morning can spring's waking be!

Summer is noonday; but the glowing fall
Is sunset time. Its brown and reds and gold
Fading as does the sky when day grows old;
Paler, its vivid blush drains silently,
Until she stands withered and gray and cold,
Sighing, to think her story all is told.

MARY STERLING.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

WIVES AND CITIZENSHIP.

From the Duluth Herald.

A MARRIED woman's citizenship goes with her husband's. If he is a citizen, she is. If he isn't a citizen, she isn't. Making him a citizen makes her one, no matter whether she is fit or unfit. If he is an alien, she is legally an alien, too, even though she and her ancestors for generations back have been born in America. If an American citizen should marry the stupidest, most ignorant woman, that would make her a citizen. If the ablest American woman should marry an alien, she would cease to be an American citizen. Now, of course, this is absurd, and those who are urging that it be changed are right, and should have their way. It is the survival of the villainous old legal system that utterly extinguished the identity of a woman when she married, and made her a mere vague and voiceless part of her husband. Her property became his, and she had nothing to say about it. Her children were his, and she had no legal voice in their management. The law ought to take the juster view that citizenship shall be an individual affair. The American woman who marries an alien ought to keep her citizenship so long as she lives in this country. The wife of an alien who is admitted to citizenship should be required to go through exactly the same course.

HIGH RENT LOWERS EFFICIENCY.

CLARA SEARS in the Independent Woman.

CONGESTION in cities, as it exists now, lends itself to crime, immorality, conflagration and epidemics. If an epidemic should break out it would be a most difficult matter to control. Each of the 2500 cases of rental disputes which have come to my attention since taking up the duties of Rent Commissioner of Washington presents a great home problem for our solution. Each man wants to know how he can live, eat and feed and clothe his family when the increase in rent takes practically all he earns. Can we help him solve the problem of how he can do these things, carry the additional nervous worry and exhaustion and still be efficient in his work? This is the same problem that the housekeeper faces in the home. Any good housewife knows that to take money from the breakfast table to meet exorbitant and unexpected bills creates inefficiency in the service force of the house. The poorly paid worker becomes slack, and, to maintain the standard of the work, the working force has to be doubled. This means double expense for the home. It means, therefore, double expense for the Government and the individual business house. Why create a waste that has no end merely because we are confronted by the greed of a few profiteers? It is not only a tremendous political, economic and social turnover; it is a housekeeping problem.

THE MOONEY CASE.

From the New Republic.

THE Mooney case will not down. Mooney is still in jail, though for three years the justice of his conviction has been clouded by the fact that the chief witness against him was discredited after the trial. On the strength of this President Wilson asked Gov. Stephens for a new trial. But between the Governor's timidity and the lynch spirit that still broods over California, all that happened was that Mooney's death sentence was commuted to a life term, in a sort of compromise between murder and justice. Honor will be satisfied with nothing less than a new trial. Is any further inaction possible in the face of the latest disclosure, by a San Francisco detective who had a large share in collecting the evidence on which Mooney was convicted, that the testimony was perjured and the whole case a frame-up? It seems to be only a matter of time before Mooney gets a new trial. For already Superior Judge Franklin A. Griffith, who presided at the original trial in 1916, has declared that he is ready to retry the case whenever defense or prosecution formally requests it.

Events in the Social World

Imperial Ball of Next Friday Evening at Country Club, Held After a Lapse of Two Years, Will Be Signalized by the Joining of Five Debutantes Instead of the Usual Two—Several Weddings of Interest Took Place in the Last Week.

NOW that the festivities of the holiday season are over, society is turning its attention toward the Imperial, which is to be held at the St. Louis Country Club on next Friday evening. Invitations have been issued to about 350 persons and it is said the function will be the most brilliant and attractive events in exclusive society this year.

The Imperial is one of the oldest and most exclusive social organizations in St. Louis, and occupies a position like that of the Assembly balls in Philadelphia. In the last two years the ball has not been given, and because of this, five debutantes have been invited to join this year, instead of the usual two. They are Miss Margaret Shepley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shepley of 53 Portland place; Miss Frances West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. West of 11 Westmoreland place; Miss Katherine Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Perkins of 3906 Argyle place; Miss Anne Hitchcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Hitchcock of 5336 Waterman avenue, and Miss Marian Gregg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Gregg of Brentmoor.

It is presumed that roses and laurel garlands, which with the Imperial crown have become traditional features of the decoration scheme for the Imperial in the past, will be used this year in the large ballroom, where the following chaperons will receive: Mmes. Howard Benoist, Samuel C. Davis, Breckenridge Jones Sr., Robert McKittrick Jones, Neill A. McMillan, George Dickson Markham, John Lawrence Moran, George W. Niedringhaus and Henry Clarkson Scott and Miss Mary Lionberger.

Although this year's Imperial is not a dinner ball, several small dinner parties will be given at the club by various members before the dancing, which will begin at 10 o'clock.

Several weddings of more than passing interest took place in the past week, three of them being events of Tuesday.

Miss Viola Avis Aloe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Aloe, 36 Kingsbury place, was married to Edmond J. Marx, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Marx, with a very pretty ceremony at the Columbian Club on Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock, Rabbi Witt officiating. About 190 persons were present at the ceremony, and more than 300 attended the reception held at the club immediately afterward.

Miss Dorothy Carnatzar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Cornatzar, 5535 Waterman avenue, was united in marriage to Brooke Thompson at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Coxe in Trinity Church. Mr. Thompson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Thompson of 5960 Clemens avenue.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Turner, daughter of Mrs. H. H. Turner of 4944 McPherson avenue was married to John David Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Fox of 5501 Cabanne avenue, at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the King's Highway Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. G. A. Hurlbert. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where the newly married couple will reside for the present.

The marriage of Miss Lucille Young, daughter of Mrs. Nellie U. Young of 5798 Pershing avenue, and R. Jackson Jones, son of Mrs. Martha L. Jones of 5026 Cabanne avenue, was solemnized at 8:30 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's mother, by the Rev. George Campbell of Union Avenue Christian Church. The young couple will make their home in London, where Mr. Jones is located as the representative of a local concern.

The wedding of Miss Helen Ette and Mungo Park of England will take place tomorrow evening at St. Michael and All Angels' Church, the Rev. Dr. Norton officiating. The ceremony will be performed at 8:30 o'clock in the evening and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Ette, 6262 Arundel place. Misses Beulah Rodes, Frances Wendl and Katherine McNulty will serve Miss Ette as bridesmaids. After a honeymoon in Europe the young couple will reside in the Malay States.

Another wedding which will take place the early part of this week is that of Miss Francis Bunting, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. John S. Bunting of 5544 Cates avenue to Dr. Everett Aiken of Crawfordsville, Ind. Following the ceremony which will be performed at the Church of the Ascension at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, a reception will be held for relatives and the bridal party at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Jeanne Farmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Farmer, 5802 Westminster place, will be married to Edwin Klein at 5 o'clock Wednesday evening at St. John's Church. Immediately after the ceremony a buffet supper for the relatives of the two families will be given at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Eugenia Uhri has chosen Jan. 15 as the date of her marriage to James A. Maritz. The ceremony will be performed at Christ Church Cathedral in the evening and will be followed by a dinner for the members of the bridal party at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Uhri, 2163 South Grand avenue. Miss Uhri is a graduate of Mary Institute and the Castle School at Tarrytown, N. Y. Mr. Maritz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Maritz, 3445 Magnolia avenue.

Another wedding of Saturday will be the marriage of Miss Celeste Irene Barry to Joseph McWhorter, which will take place at St. Francis Xavier Church at 5:30 o'clock in the evening. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. W. D. Barry, 4718 McPherson avenue, and was educated at Mary Institute. The groom is the son of Joseph Clay McWhorter of the University apartments and received his education at the St. Louis University.

At a quiet home wedding Miss Inez Gaskill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gaskill, 7002 Michigan avenue, was married to Dr. L. G. Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Potter of Mountain Grove, Mo., on the evening of Jan. 1. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Jos. H. Gause, who officiated at the marriage of the bride's parents.

Miss Alice Davies was bridesmaid, while the bride's brother, Arch M. Gaskill, served as best man. Miss Christine Rannells, a cousin of the bride, played the wedding march.

The bride wore a gown of chantilly lace over white satin, with short lace sleeves; the train, fashioned of ivory satin, hung from the shoulders. She wore her mother's bridal veil of tulle, which fell from a coronation of orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and valley lilies. The bridesmaid was gowned in a frock of peach-blow chiffon and tulle and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and sweet peas. Miss Rannells wore a gown of embossed coral pink satin.

After the reception the bride and groom departed for East View, N. Y., where they will make their home.

An interesting engagement announcement of last week was that of Miss Bertha Trorlicht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Trorlicht, 3234 Capelin avenue, to Robert Greve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greve, 4505 Lindell boulevard. Miss Trorlicht entertained members of her bridge club at a luncheon last Tuesday, and the announcement was made in small Colonial bouquets. The wedding will take place the first week in February.

The engagement of Miss Grace Gettys, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Senter Gettys, 5335 Delmar boulevard, to Grosvenor Stewart McKee was announced last week. Miss Gettys attended Mary Institute and has been maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball three times. Mr. McKee, whose home is in Canton, O., was educated at the Ohio University and served as a First Lieutenant with the 312th Engineers overseas. The wedding will take place in April.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mullen, 5277 Lindell boulevard, gave a dance at their home on Thursday evening in honor of their n'ece, Miss Marie A. Moloney. About 50 young persons attended. Miss Moloney departed today for Washington, D. C., to resume her studies at Trinnity College.

Announcement was made last week of the engagement of Miss Alice Rasch, niece of Mr. and Mrs. William Ziegenhein of 3517 South Jefferson avenue, to W. Miles Herzog.

STIX, BAER & FULLER January

GRAND-LEADER

The 1921 January Clearing Sale

Will be the greatest in our history, because of unusual conditions. We have adopted extraordinary and radical measures in order to insure an absolute clearance of all past-season merchandise, and we are including staple goods as well, for reasons the public will well understand.

It is our desire to start the Spring season with absolutely complete new stocks and we are making sacrifices in order to bring this condition about.

The public will find it profitable to make purchases during this Clearing event. The savings in all departments are extraordinary.

STIX, BAER & FULLER.

RUSSIAN SOVIET OFFICIALS AS BUSINESS MAN FOUND THEM

McMorrow with the Twenty-seventh United States Infantry from Verkni-Udinsk blew into the town with much the same story as Walker's, they looked even smaller.

However, I decided to try and break through and left on the post train on the 22d of February for the Station Manchuria, although I was assured in Harbin that it was impossible to get past that point as the Baikal Railroad was blocked on both lines with the Czech evacuation.

At Manchuria, by great good fortune, I found Lieut. Lee of the American Railroad Corps, with a train of flour destined for the coal miners west of Chita, who were supplying coal for the Czechs, and he very kindly agreed to take me through in his private car. We made the journey in 32 hours, a remarkable performance considering that it had taken evacuating Americans 10 days.

We got to Chita just in time to witness the arrival of Gen. Voitzikofsky with the remnants of the Kolchak army, which had retreated from west of Omsk, a distance of nearly 3000 miles, partly on sledges and partly on foot, in the depth of winter, through a semihostile country—a magnificent feat of courage and endurance.

Those of us who were anti-Semienov had great hopes of Votizikofsky. We looked to him to oust the bandit and his pillaging, murdering associates, and set up a democratic form of government in the Transbaikal. When E. B. Thomas, the American Vice Consul, and myself interviewed Voitzikofsky a few days after his arrival, he indirectly led us to believe that he intended to depose the Ataman.

However, he delayed action and his army diminished daily as the result of wholesale desertions. He was credited with having 27,000 officers and men when he arrived. Three weeks later this force had dwindled to 7000 and Semionov, who had been quaking in his shoes, gradually began to assert himself. When the Japanese finally decided not to evacuate the Transbaikal, which had been their intention as soon as the Czechs had passed through, Semionov was once more in the saddle and Voitzikofsky dropped into comparative obscurity.

Says Japanese Troops Allowed Russian Bandits to Steal.

My negotiations with Semionov came to nothing. It is true he signed an order on the Finance Department to pay the claim in gold, of which he had plenty, having stolen it from a Kolchak echelon some months previously, but when the order was presented the Finance Department declined to honor it and referred us back to Semionov. The Ataman, who had obviously had no intention of paying, then impudently referred us to the Czechs for payment, stating that as they had been entrusted with the safe conveyance of the Russian gold reserve to Vladivostock, they were the people to apply to.

I applied to the Japanese Military Mission for assistance, but although the Japanese Foreign Office in Tokio had pledged us through the American embassy, the active assistance of their mission in Chita, the Military Mission not only declined to intervene but disclosed to the Ataman private and confidential documents belonging to me, which caused me great embarrassment and undoubtedly endangered my position in the town.

The Japanese, throughout their occupancy of the Transbaikal, acted in a manner prejudicial to the real interests of the white cause. Their troops were engaged in guarding the railway, but they never on any occasion intervened to prevent Semionov from levying on supplies en route to the front or stealing goods belonging to Russian and allied merchants.

The seizure of goods by Semionov reached such proportions during the summer of 1919 that merchants in Eastern Siberia refused to forward goods through the Transbaikal, and in consequence Western Siberia was deprived of the supplies which, if they had been forthcoming, would have done much to win the support of the peasantry and townspeople for the white cause.

Capt. Walker and his assistant Capt. R. C. Carthew, returned to Chita after I had been there a few days, and at once commenced, with the assistance of the American Railroad Corps, who had a direct wire to Vernki-Udinsk, to make inquiries in respect to the officers and men of the British Railway Mission who had been captured by the Bolsheviks at Krasnoyarsk.

Tells of Getting Safe Conduct Beyond Border of Civilization.

When Capt. Carthew induced the Bolsheviks, through Krassnochokoff, the Commissar at Vernki, to have these prisoners brought to Irkutsk, he obtained a safe conduct to proceed there with food, clothing and medical supplies and kindly offered me a place on his car provided I was able to procure a similar safe conduct.

I then telegraphed Krassnochekoff intimating that I wished to go to Irkutsk for the purpose of discussing trading possibilities with the authorities there, and requested a safe conduct. He telegraphed me back the Russian Socialistic Federated Soviet Republic's full safe conduct to travel to Irkutsk, guaranteeing my liberty of movement while there, and the right to leave the territory of his Government at my will.

Armed with these documents we said good-by to "Johnny" Walker and Thomas on a bitterly cold afternoon in April and proceeded with a special train, consisting of our private car and a goods wagon for our interpreters and servants. We flew a large Union Jack from our observation platform which created a great deal of attention at the stations at which we stopped. We met the last Czech echelon east of Moxon and felt that we had then said good-by to civilization. Carthew for a couple of weeks and I—indefinitely.

WRIT TO RELEASE NEGRO DENIED

Federal Judge Rules He Has No Jurisdiction in Swift Case.

Application for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of William Swift, a negro, arrested Dec. 5 in a raid on a soft drink place adjoining the Laclede Avenue Police Station, was denied yesterday by Federal Judge Faris on the ground that the Federal Court has no jurisdiction.

He said that Swift was being held without warrant and should be given his liberty unless a formal charge is made against him, but held that a habeas corpus writ would have to issue from the State courts.

Members of Capt. Stinger's squad were unsuccessful in an attempt to buy liquor from the negro, but searched the place and found a small quantity of whisky in a soda bottle.

Women Advertisers to Meet.

As a part of the educational series outlined for the year the meeting of the Women's Advertising Club at the Hotel Statler at 12:15 p. m., tomorrow, will be devoted to speeches on newspaper, magazine and farm journal advertising. Roy B. Simpson, president of the Simpson Advertising Co., and Thomas Ryan, advertising manager of the St. Louis Star, will speak.

CHRISTMAS CAROLERS' COLLECTIONS $7081

Amount Exceeds That of 1919, When Total of $5473.72 Was Received.

A total of $7081.90 was collected by Christmas carolers of the Children's Aid Society for the benefit of helpless children in the care of the society. Collections in churches amounted to $3134.49, those in schools were $2314.66, neighborhood groups collected $1354.49 and individual contributions amounted to $278.26.

There were more neighborhood groups this Christmas than in any previous year since the revival of the old custom and everywhere the carolers went they were well received. In 1919 the carolers collected $5473.72.

TO HONOR EDUCATIONAL PIONEERS OF ST. LOUIS

Eightieth Birthday of Dr. Denton J. Snider Will Also Be Observed at Public Meeting.

St. Louisans who have an interest in the early development in St. Louis of education, philosophy, art and literature will hold meetings on Friday and Saturday of the current week, in the Vandervoort auditorium for the purpose of doing honor to the pioneers in those fields and to provide a consideration of their works. It will also be the occasion of an observance of the eightieth birthday of Dr. Denton J. Snider, dean of St. Louis philosophic writers and students.

Among others whose labors in St. Louis will be the subject of addresses are the late Dr. William T. Harris, Miss Susan Blow, Prof. Davidson, Henry C. Brockmeyer and Dr. Snider. The first session will be held Friday afternoon, with two meetings, morning and afternoon, the following day. There will be a banquet Saturday evening.

Some of the speakers already announced are Prof L. J. Block of Chicago, who has written extensively and filled important positions in public education, a graduate of St. Louis High School and Washington University; Charles Nagel, W. J. S. Bryan and other former pupils of Prof Snider, Dr. John W. Withers, Alexander M. de Menil, Percival Chubb, Miss Mary C. McCulloch, Mrs. Harry E. Wagoner, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Harris, Prof. E. A. Kroeger, W. F. Woerner, Francis F. Cook, Chester Curtis, Arthur E. Bostwick and Richard Spamer. The Central High School orchestra will provide musical entertainment.

City Infirmary Inspection.

The Civic Tours Committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Harry A. Deeken, chairman, has arranged for a tour by the membership through the city infirmary at King's highway and Easton, at 2:15 p. m. today.

The Civic Committee will make an inspection of the institution as to conditions in general and confer with the superintendent in charge as to his recommendations for improvements.

Shipper Agents' Convention.

The Shipper Agents' Association will hold its 1921 convention here tomorrow and Tuesday. The headquarters will be at the Statler Hotel and the attendance will be in the neighborhood of 100.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) or the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and all truss sufferers in the land are invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own homes. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—comparatively inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., 560 Stuart Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and instructive information.—(c) P.

FUNERAL OF J. E. DEE TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Attorney Who Fell Beneath Train at Kirkwood Friday, Died Yesterday in Hospital.

Funeral services for James E. Dee, 30 years old, of 143 West Clinton place, Kirkwood, an attorney with offices in the Title Guaranty Building, who died yesterday morning from injuries suffered when run over by a train, will be held tomorrow morning from an undertaking chapel at 917 North Newstead avenue.

Dee, who on Friday night, was returning to St. Louis from Jefferson City on a Missouri-Pacific Train that did not stop at Kirkwood, alighted at Tower Grove Station and at about midnight boarded a Kirkwood train. It is believed that he dozed in his seat and did not know that the train had stopped at Kirkwood until it had started up. He then awoke, ran to the steps and jumped off, falling under the wheels.

Fred Jamison and William House, night marshals of Kirkwood, found him under the Clay avenue bridge, about 600 feet west of the Missouri-Pacific station. They carried him to the office of Dr. H. Hanson of Kirkwood, where he received emergency treatment and from whence he was sent to the Barnes Hospital. His left foot was severed and his left side was crushed. His law books and papers were found scattered on the station platform.

Without regaining consciousness, Dee died at the hospital at 6:40 a. m. yesterday.

In 1916, Dee was defeated in the primary election for Democratic nomination for Congressman by Congressman Igoe. Later he announced that he would seek the nomination for Governor, but did not do so. He was born in St. Louis and was graduated from the St. Louis University Law School, through which he worked his way. He is survived by his wife, a 2-year-old son, his father, Michael Dee of 4223 Cottage avenue, and five sisters and a brother.

CORRECTION AS TO TESTIMONY

Corporal John Slack Not in Cabaret Where Soldier Was Injured.

A statement in the Post-Dispatch's report of the inquest into the death of Frank A. Busby, a soldier at Jefferson Barracks, that Corporal John Slack gave testimony as to trouble in the American Liquor Co., 616 Walnut street, between Busby and Rudolph Gibson and Walter McNally, piano player and manager of the cabaret, was incorrect. Slack testified at the inquest simply that he was a passenger on the street car from which Busby was taken with a fractured skull. He knew nothing of Busby's movements earlier in the evening.

Testimony about the trouble in the cabaret was given by William Beard and Harry Van Wickel. Beard saw Busby from across the street and Van Wickel was with Busby in the cabaret. Both Beard and Van Wickel are soldiers.

SPITTERS ARRESTED IN 18 YEARS NUMBER 2016

Tuberculosis Society Planning Campaign to Effect Vigorous Enforcement of Law.

The total number of arrests under the nonspitting ordinance, since its passage in February, 1903, is 2016, according to statistics obtained last week from the city hall by the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis. Frequent and flagrant violations of this ordinance occurring recently under the observation of officers of the Tuberculosis Society and the fact that no effort was made to remind the violators of their offense led to an investigation of the terms of the ordinance and the history of its enforcement, showing that arrests made under the ordinance were: 1903, 6; 1904, 3; 1905, 13; 1906, 5; 1907, 3.

In 1908, due to activity of the Tuberculosis Society and the City Health Department in urging the necessity of enforcement of the nonspitting ordinance, the number of arrests jumped to 431, and in 1911 to 713. No records of the two intervening years were available, but 287 arrests, one of whom was a woman, were made in 1912. So far as the records show this is the only case of a woman being arrested under the ordinance.

From 1913 to the year just ended the activities of policemen in arresting spitters steadily declined until in 1920 only 36 arrests were recorded. The other years were: 1914, 144 arrests; 1915, 88; 1916, 63; 1917, 58; 1918, 39; 1919, 44.

Law Unchanged, Investigator Says.

According to the Tuberculosis Society's investigator, the law has remained unchanged, and provisions for its enforcement, which are definite and drastic, are the same now as formerly. It specifically states that persons guilty of spitting in or on public buildings, street cars, elevators, sidewalks, walls of buildings, etc., are guilty of a misdemeanor and are liable to a fine of not less than $1 nor more than $5, and that it is the duty of any person observing such violation to cause the arrest of the spitter. Street car conductors, officers of churches, theaters, elevator operators or persons directly in charge of the building or vehicle in which the offense is committed are responsible, under the terms of this ordinance, for the arrest of spitters.

The Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis now is planning a vigorous war on spitting in St. Louis, and is working out a program for enlisting the interest and support of organizations and individuals in the effort to bring about a strict enforcement of the anti-spitting ordinance.

Disease Attributed to Spitting.

A large part of infection of tuberculosis and other deadly diseases is due to violation of this ordinance, according to the society's medical director, Dr. L. P. H. Bahrenburg. Sputum ejected from the mouths of persons affected with colds, grip, throat trouble, lung disease and other disorders, dries on the surface upon which it falls. It then is blown broadcast by the next wind and is breathed into the nose, mouth and lungs of healthy persons in the region, infecting them, and eventually developing well-defined cases of serious diseases. The fact that there are now 17,000 living cases of tuberculosis and innumerable cases of minor throat, nose and chest diseases, is evidence of the deadly work of the germs spread as the result of spitting.

The ordinance is ample for the needs of the city, officers of the Tuberculosis Society assert. If it is properly enforced much needless illness and death will be prevented

Catholic Women's Meeting.

Catholic women of St. Louis will meet Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Planters Hotel to form a diocesan council of the National Council of Catholic Women. All Catholic sodalities, parish societies, fraternal, benevolent and charitable organizations and parishes have been asked to send two delegates to the meeting. The organization plans to unite in a national way, all the Catholic women's organizations in the country. Archbishop Glennon will speak.

CAPPER ANSWERS LANGENBERG'S DEFENSE OF FUTURE TRADING

and misery of many kinds caused by gambling in grain futures.

Subject to Infirmities.

This Board of Trade mechanism admirable as it may seem on paper and as described by Mr. Langenberg, is unfortunately subject to the infirmities of human nature. It is man-made and man-manipulated, and it unhappily admirably lends itself to that speculative and gambling spirit and that passion to "get something for nothing" which is often seen in trade.

If the grain and cotton trade were altogether conducted by men who were content to make a legitimate profit, charging their commission for handling or manufacturing or marketing, as the great body of legitimate dealers are content to do, rejecting the temptation to add to their profit by "playing the market," the process described would be in practice as admirable as it appears on paper.

We all know, however, that avarice and the lust of gain lure many a man in legitimate business out beyond the secure borders of sound and steady industry and that speculation is an enticement of the unwary, often to the disaster of the interests of others as well as of themselves. And it is the intrinsic evil of the exchanges that above all other devices of the genius of man they aggravate the lure of gambling by setting up the perfect machinery for gambling under the guise of a reputable, legitimate and necessary function of commerce. The indictment of the exchanges consists precisely in their encouragement of sheer speculation, in the legitimatizing of the most gigantic and colossal "faro" outfit that human ingenuity has ever conceived.

Corps of Ballyhoo Artists.

This great gambling institution is not only openly suffered by the law, but it has a talented corps of ballyhoo artists in its so-called "wire-houses," the function of which is to use the mails and the telegraph in a constant "come on" propaganda proclaiming from the housetops the enticement of the "pit" and setting up and keeping alive the "bucket shops" or other agencies where young men and foolish men and women are induced to venture their earnings in margins on the unknown and treacherous seas of crude speculation.

When officials of exchanges are faced with these notorious incidents of the operation of the wheat and cotton pits, their only reply is that speculation is a quality inherent both in trade and human nature. The same answer might be made by the poker-faced manipulator of a faro wheel in a frontier settlement to the mild protests of the Town Marshal.

Trend of Institutions.

It is a familiar tale that institutions, originally salutary and marking a step forward in human evolution, inevitably tend with increasing prestige and rooted privilege, to a complacent self-satisfaction which resents criticism and defies reform. It is an infirmity inherent in institutions as such. If their primary purposes are defensible, and if they function at all in human service, they acquire in the process of time a character of infallibility, all their processes are sacrosanct and to question any of their practices becomes a sacrilege.

Institutions as such, however, are like ships that ply the seas, and from time to time it is desirable, if they are to be kept seaworthy and competent to perform the service for which they were constructed, that they should be placed upon the dry dock and the barnacles that they have attached to them should be scraped off. The time has arrived when the barnacles of unrestrained speculation, of gambling and manipulation should be scraped off these institutions of exchanges, which under no regulations other than those they see fit to apply to themselves assume the vital functions of a public market place for the people's food.

Consider for a moment just who owns and operates these exchanges that Mr. Langenberg so vigorously defends. Is it the farming and business interests of the country? Do all of our people have a say in the operations? Not at all.

The cotton exchange, I understand, is owned by a coterie of a hundred and fifty members, the grain exchange probably by 300, who make all the rules and regulations, and these men control the commodities of our country and practically set the prce at which all other citizens of these United States shall sell. Why should we submit to the control of these millions of dollars' worth of commodities by a few men? Men who are entirely out of sympathy with the producer and the consumer, without any responsibility whatever, are allowed to sway the markets either up or down as the conditions or their fancies suit them, following the course of least resistance.

Recognizes Legtmate Dealings.

My bill recognizes and protects the legitimate operations of the exchanges. It permits everything to be done which is contemplated in an honest market place and by the rules of the exchanges. It strikes solely at the manipulation of the markets by "bulls" and "bears" for purely gambling purposes. It attempts only to eradicate evil practices that have grown into a public menace and are not defended by the exchanges themselves.

The cash market of the Board of Trade is legitimate, and it should be preserved when the final shakeup comes, which it is sure to do sooner or later. In attempting the regulation of any of the institutions of trade we are commonly advised that the mechanism of business is a thing delicately adjusted, which it is unsafe for any but expert hands to tinker with. I do not know who the expert machinists are whom we should take this job to for repairs, since the operators themselves seem unwilling to attempt any sort of effort to remedy the evils complained of. Their attitude is unfriendly to change. Their only suggestion is that we let it alone.

Mr. Langenberg, in criticizing my bill, says I should have counseled with the best minds of the trade. That is just what I have done. I did not advise with the gamblers, but I have had the counsel in drawing up the bill of millers and of grain and cotton dealers, engaged in the business, and familiar with all its operations, and they have indorsed this measure as calculated to remedy the evils which I have described and as in no way harmful to the grain and cotton industries. The Kansas State Grain Dealers' Association, the Southwest Millers' League and many others vitally interested in the grain business, are supporting my bill.

Course for Medical Practitioners.

A special course for the medical practitioners of St. Louis and vicinity, a sort of post-graduate course in medicine, has been arranged by Washington University School of Medicine, to start April 8 and cover six to eight weeks. The clinics of all departments in Barnes Hospital, the staff of which is composed of Washington University School of Medicine faculty members, will be utilized in the instruction.

Strong Men Have Acid Stomach

And They Relieve It With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Instead of Senseless Diet.

Consider the bulk of a big man. He needs a lot of good food. And yet a simple dish may so distress him that he will throw his entire machinery out of order by denying himself the very means of sustaining strength. A better plan, far better, is to follow a meal with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

It aids digestion, supplies the stomach with an alkaline effect and thus prevents or relieves the distresses of gassiness, sour stomach, lumpy feeling in throat, biliousness, intestinal indigestion and other such misery due to dyspepsia. $695

It takes only slightly larger space than is required by an upright piano, but with its perfect tone and action has all the advantages of a large size Grand. To buy for so modest a sum as $695 a home-size Grand Piano of the beauty and lasting worth of the Stuyvesant is to obtain an unusual bargain. Monthly payments as low as $20.

Get Rid of Your Fat

If you are needlessly burdened with superfluous fat, read the following carefully. See how easily others have reduced by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction. Some have reduced over a pound a day. All this has been accomplished without resorting to diet or tedious exercise.

MRS. O. WHITLOW writes: "I have lost 76 pounds as result of your treatment and have never felt so well in my life as I do now."

MR. S. SAWYER writes: "I have lost 70 pounds as a result of taking your treatment. I feel better in every way. I can now take long walks without becoming tired or short of breath. I thank you very much for what you have done for me."

MRS. E. HORNER says: "Well, I am glad to inform you that I have lost 48 pounds in six weeks."

MRS. C. FELKER says: "I thought I would let you know how I am getting along. I am feeling fine and have found the treatment pleasant to take at all times. I have not weighed, but my measurements show that I have reduced six inches from my bust, five inches from my waist, and 19 inches from my hips. Of course, I am pleased with the result."

I am a licensed practising physician and personally prescribe for each individual case, thus enabling me to select remedies that should produce not only a loss of weight harmlessly, but should also relieve you of all the troublesome symptoms of overstoutness such as shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, indigestion, rheumatism, gout, asthma, and various other troubles which often accompany overstoutness.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of your superfluous fat. My treatment is the only scientific treatment known that will produce a loss of weight with positively no harm to the system.

You are not required to change in the slightest from your regular mode of living. There is no dieting or exercising that you have to follow. It is simple, easy and pleasant to take.

If you are overstout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my free trial treatment and my plan whereby I am to be paid only after reduction has taken place if you so desire.

HOW FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM HELPS US TO WEATHER CRISIS

adopted and accomplished the purpose. Japan originally had modeled its banking system after our national system, but later, finding that it was unequal to the strain of a crisis, had remodeled it by creating a central note-issuing institution, modeled after the Reichsbank, the central bank of Germany.

The Need of a "Reservoir of Credit."

Some of our citizens of foreign birth who had been in the banking business abroad rendered great service in explaining the advantages and service of a central note-issuing institution. One of these was Mr. Paul Warburg, whose contribution to the organization of our new system was recognized by his appointment as a member of the original Federal Reserve Board. Mr. Warburg described the helplessness of our banking situation in time of panic by comparing it to the helplessness of a town without any general water system in the presence of a great fire. A well or cistern in each house might supply enough water for ordinary consumption, but a town with no other water supply could not cope with a large fire. A reservoir of water was needed, and so a reservoir of credit, and of credit in the form of money, was needed to give protection to a banking system in time of general financial strain and alarm.

The National Monetary Commission.

And so as a result of the discussion which followed the panic of 1907 a joint commission, composed of members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the National Congress, was created to conduct an inquiry into the subject. This commission was known as the National Monetary Commission. Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island was the author of the bill for the commission, and became its chairman.

This commission visited the principal countries of Western Europe and invited men of reputation as economists and financiers to explain the monetary systems of those countries and offer suggestions in the nature of criticism or comment of any kind. It also procured exhaustive papers bearing upon banking in the several countries from leading authorities in those countries. The hearings of the commission, together with these papers, were published and form a valuable library of information.

The commission submitted a report and a plan for the reorganization of our banking and monetary system, but owing to the division which existed in the ranks of the Republican party, then in power, which resulted a year later in dividing it in the presidential campaign, the plan was never acted upon, and the whole question went over to be dealt with by the Democratic administration and Congress.

The Federal Reserve System Established.

It was taken up then in earnest, and under the leadership of the Hon. Carter Glass, chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, a bill providing for the establishment of the Federal Reserve System, substantially as it exists now, was put through the House promptly. In the Senate the bill was under the guidance of Senator Owen. Lengthy hearings were held, some amendments of importance were made, and the measure became a law in December, 1913.

The fundamental principle embodied in the Aldrich plan and in the Federal Reserve Act is that back of the banks which do business with the public, receiving deposits and making loans, there shall be a central organization, of which the local banks shall be members, and in which they shall keep their principal reserves. In other words, the central organization constitutes a common reservoir of cash and credit.

Moreover, this central organization is empowered to issue currency, based in part upon a gold reserve and in part upon commercial paper, the latter term signifying promissory notes or bills of exchange arising from commercial transactions. This note issuing power was conferred to give an elasticity to the money supply which was formerly lacking. The amount of money in use fluctuates, for one reason, because at some seasons of the year trade is more active than at others, and also, as we have seen, because in time of financial stress bank depositors may want to convert their deposits into cash. Whether they want to do so for the one reason or other, it is fundamental to the banking business that they be able to do so. The whole plan of commercial banking is founded on the idea that a depositor shall be able to withdraw his money when he wants it.

Under the Federal reserve system, when a member bank needs to replenish its supply of cash on hand, it gathers up some of its customers' notes and takes them to the reserve bank and sells them, or, in technical language, rediscounts them, receiving currency for them. The mere gathering together of reserves for common protection would have been an improvement upon the old system, where each bank was supposed to carry its own reserves, but it will be observed that the reserve bank has a greater resource than this contribution from the member banks; it is given the power actually to create money for the purpose of increasing the supply in time of need. It is this power which is the chief reliance to protect the country from the recurrence of money panics and which inspires the confidence felt by bankers and all who understand the provisions of the system.

The Bankers' Panic of 1907.

The panic of 1907 was called a "bankers' panic," because it took the public in general by surprise. Throughout the great interior prosperity prevailed, and nobody was thinking of making unusual demands on the banks, when suddenly, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, bankers themselves took fright and stopped paying cash, which, of course, alarmed everybody. Why was this so? It was because the bankers knew better than anybody else the weakness of their position. Certain developments concerning a bank in New York had started a run on it, which had spread to other banks, and gave fright to bankers all over the country. They began to draw money away from each other; each one, knowing the utter inadequacy of existing reserves, and that there were no means of replenishing them, hastened to grab all the money within reach and lock it up. To be plain about it, they led the panic themselves.

It never does much good to caution people against a panic, if they know that they are in danger and that no provision for their safety exists. If the people in a crowded hall discover that the building is on fire, and believe they are in danger of being burned, they will struggle to get out. If the people on a boat discover that it is on fire or sinking, and believe the facilities for saving them are inadequate, they are likely to struggle to help themselves. If the people who have money in a bank think the bank is likely to close, and that they will lose their

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

HOW FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM HELPS US TO WEATHER CRISIS

money or have it tied up, they will try to get it out. The only way to safeguard against panics is by providing adequate protection. If the public understands that means have been provided whereby bank deposits can be paid as wanted, the reason for panics is removed.

The Federal Reserve System does not guarantee the deposits in any bank. If a bank is badly managed, and its assets are wasted or tied up in paper which cannot be collected promptly, the Federal Reserve Bank is under no obligations to make advances to it, and should not do so.

Unsound Banking Discountenanced.

The system was not designed to keep afloat banks that are insolvent, or to encourage unsound banking practices, or to provide an unlimited amount of credit even to solvent borrowers, but to give increased facilities in emergencies to banks that keep themselves in good condition. The reserve banks have access to all the information about their members obtained by the examiners of national and State systems, and may make examinations for themselves. The fact that help in the event of trouble must come from the reserve bank is a strong influence upon the member banks to keep their affairs in a state of order that will command its approval.

A few months ago, when Ponzi, the young Boston figure in frenzied finance, failed, his relations to a half dozen small banks started runs upon them and they were forced to close. The situation was very much like that when the panic of 1907 was precipitated by a similar disturbance, and but for the Federal Reserve System alarm might have spread as it did then, but, in fact, it occasioned no concern. The Reserve System protects the banker who is entitled to protection and gives a sense of security.

It may be asked if there is no limit upon the ability of the reserve banks to protect the situation. The answer is that there is practically no limit to their ability to supply money to pay off deposits, because the payment of deposits by means of reserve notes does not increase the aggregate of bank liabilities. It only changes the form of liabilities. They are merely converted from deposit obligations to note obligations. If a member bank, in the course of a run, had to borrow from the Reserve Bank money enough to pay all of its deposits, its indebtedness would not be increased; the Reserve Bank would simply have taken the place of the depositors. There would be no inflation of credit, for there is no essential difference between a deposit obligation and a note obligation.

Federal Reserve Not Meant to Help Credit Expansion.

On the other hand, it does not follow that the reserve bank has the ability to support the member banks in making all the loans they may want to. That is a wholly different proposition, although many people confuse the two. When a member bank borrows to pay off a depositor it cancels one obligation while it makes another, but when it borrows for the purpose of lending, it is creating a new and additional obligation. It is then increasing the sum of credit outstanding, and all experience teaches that there is a point beyond which the expansion of credit cannot safely go.

The Federal Reserve System was never intended to facilitate a great expansion of credit. It was intended to facilitate the liquidation of one kind of credit by the substitution of another kind—to enable depositors to exchange the book obligation of a comparatively small, local bank for the note obligation of a great, strong institution which has the backing of the national Government. In fact, the reserve notes which are issued by reserve banks are actually obligations of the United States Government.

This function, which they were designed to perform, the reserve banks are abundantly able to perform, but there are people who expect them to do much more than this. They don't understand why a reserve bank cannot supply money at 6 per cent interest to meet all wants, to maintain all prices, and to do everything that they think ought to be done. No banking system has ever been devised that can perform such miracles as these.

Prices Cannot Be Sustained by Bank Credit.

Under a sound banking system the banks may loan a proper proportion of the funds which they receive on deposit, and the power of note issue gives a degree of flexibility in handling the funds, but banks in themselves are not the creators of capital, nor can they safely undertake to create a substitute for it. The idea that the reserve banks brought on the fall of prices by placing some restraint upon the expansion of credit is utterly fallacious. The fall of prices and reaction in industry are world-wide. They affect wool in Australia and Argentina, coffee in Brazil, sugar in Java, rice in India, silk in Japan, cotton goods in England, as well as wool, cotton and wheat in the United States. It was under way in other countries before it was noticed here. No banking policy could sustain prices in the United States while such declines were going on elsewhere. The declines have been due to industrial conditions the world over which cannot be remedied by the mere expansion of bank credit.

A prosperous state of industry in our highly organized modern society depends upon balanced trading of products and services, and, when that balance is disturbed, congestion and demoralization follow. Such a situation is not cured by piling up products against borrowed money. A state of increasing indebtedness is very dangerous at such a time, because it is only a question of time when prices will give way, and the task of paying the inflated indebtedness must be faced with products at low values. The complaint against the Federal reserve system and the banks generally is that they did not allow the inflation of indebtedness to go on indefinitely.

No one was ever justified in expecting that the war-time level of prices would continue indefinitely. Everybody has been on warning that it was only a question of time when the downward swing would come. It has come a little more swiftly than most people supposed it would, but we are under the influence of world-wide conditions and must adapt ourselves and make the best of them.

Public Administrator Appointed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 8.—Gov. Gardner today appointed A. B. Conrow of Richmond to be Public Administrator of Ray County, to serve four years. Conrow is the incumbent, but was not re-elected in November. William F. Yates, who was elected, refused to qualify for the office, hence Conrow's appointment.

WOODMEN TO ENCAMP IN PARK

The 1921 encampment of the Modern Woodmen of America, a fraternal beneficiary organization, will be held in Forest Park in June, and the annual convention of the organization will take place June 20-25, inclusive. One thousand tents will be erected in Forest Park to house 4000 uniformed members of the Forestry Division. These members will compete in prize drills which will be judged by army officers chosen by the War Department.

R. R. Smith of Kansas City is the director of the Modern Woodmen of America for Missouri, and there are about 3000 members of the organization in St. Louis. Offices were recently opened in the Commercial Building to direct the arrangements for the encampment and convention.

SIDENER RELIEVED OF 48 CASES BY M'DANIEL

Nolle Prosequis Were Entered—Charges Against J. C. Jackson, W. L. Ems and E. C. Kerwin Dropped.

Prior to his relinquishment of the office of Circuit Attorney on Jan. 1, Lawrence McDaniel entered nolle prosequis in 48 cases, the purpose being to clear the Circuit Court dockets in the criminal division of all proceedings in which the prosecutor had little hope of obtaining convictions. In some of these cases important witnesses had died or had disappeared and could not be served by the Sheriff.

Among these cases were those against William L. Ems, J. C. Jackson and Edgar C. Kerwin, who were charged with burglary in connection with the theft of United Railways referendum petitions. The men were to have been used by the State as the principal witnesses against Richard McCulloch, president, and Bruce Cameron, superintendent of transportation, of the railways company, but their cases were dismissed on demurrer at Springfield, Mo.

Stolen Property Charge.

Other important dismissals were those against Frank Ebbeler and Joseph R. Slay, who were charged with receiving stolen property. A decision of the Supreme Court caused the dismissal of two charges against Ebbeler and one against Slay, when it was decided that possession of recently stolen goods is not of itself presumptive evidence of guilt. The decision declared that defendants must be shown to have had a knowledge that property was stolen at the time it passed to their possession. Slay had been charged with having stolen sugar in his possession. He denied knowing it was stolen. Ebbeler was charged with having a stolen automobile. He also denied knowledge that it was stolen.

Other cases dismissed are: Courtroom 10—Benjamin Weisberg, grand larceny and receiving stolen property; Benjamin J. Hewe, Joseph McKeever, burglary and larceny; Samuel Boguslaw, larceny in a dwelling house; Al McCarthy, felonious carnal knowledge; Lee Reed and James Hollis, grand larceny; John Beck, grand larceny; Charles Newman, operating automobile without owners' consent; Isaiah Dennis, robbery first degree; Joseph Resnick, robbery first degree; Rupert A. Lyons, embezzlement; James Rossen, receiving stolen property; Frank Cento, larceny from the person; Ned Tellison, leaving scene of accident, and George Harrell and Allen Dailes, larceny from the person.

Other Dismissals.

Courtroom No. 11—John Hanrahan, robbery first degree; Harry Machlinger, receiving stolen property; Ida Murphy, receiving stolen property; Louis Ross, attempted arson; John J. Kiely, burglary; Tony Cantanzaro, grand larceny and receiving stolen property; James Clarken, burglary and larceny; Andrew Curray, carrying concealed weapons; John Johnson and William Blake, attempted robbery; John R. Slay, burglary and larceny and receiving stolen property; Frank Mann, grand larceny and receiving stolen property; Frank Ebbeler, receiving stolen property; William B. Whiffen, arson third degree; Richard Meyer, burglary second degree, larceny and receiving stolen property; Charles Richards, robbery first degree, and Cy Williams, grand larceny.

Courtroom No. 12—William Stevens, grand larceny and receiving stolen property; Joseph Winchell, rape; William Holland, carrying concealed weapons; Cora Legere, grand larceny; Gus Webb and Chadwick Stokes, attempted robbery, first degree; Edward Day, larceny from a dwelling house; Robert Porter and Blanche Saunders, robbery first degree; Herman Humphrey, burglary; James F. Breeding, burglary, and William L. Ems, J. C. Jackson and Edgar C. Kerwin, burglary.

CITY PLANS DAILY COLLECTION OF BACTERIOLOGICAL MATERIAL

Stations at Which Doctors May Leave Diphtheria Culture Tubes and Typhoid Specimens.

Assistant Health Commissioner Jordan announced yesterday that the Health Department will tomorrow begin a collection service for diphtheria culture tubes, typhoid specimens and other bacteriological material which may be left by physicians at specified stations. The material will be collected each day at 6 p. m. and may be deposited after collection hours at the receiving room of the City Hospital, the municipal garage, Vandeventer avenue and Forest Park boulevard, and the City Dispensary. Culture tubes, typhoid slides and sputum bottles may be obtained at the principal police stations.

Collections will be made at the following places:

First District Police Station, Pennsylvania and Robert avenues; Winkelman & Sons Drug Co., Virginia avenue and Meramec street; Seventh District Police Station, Grand and Magnolia avenues; Third District Police Station, Seventh and Soulard streets; City Dispensary, Eleventh and Market streets; Ninth District Police Station, Jefferson avenue and Dayton street; Fifth District Police Station, Tenth and North Market streets; Engine Co. No. 31, Kossuth and Warne avenues; Baden Police Station, Broadway and Baden; Engine Co., No. 47, Florissant and Geraldine avenues; Twelfth District Police Station, Page and Union avenues; Koneke Drug Store, Manchester and Prather avenues; Engine Co., No. 35, Sublette avenue and Arsenal street; City Garage, Vandeventer avenue and Forest Park boulevard; Engine Co., No. 51, Eichelberger avenue and Morganford road; A. S. Ludwig Drug Co., St. Louis and Newstead avenues.

BANDITS OVERPOWER POLICE

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 8.—A force of bandits is in virtual control of Santa Cruz territory in Southern Argentina, where the police have been overpowered, some of the leading men kidnaped and a number of persons killed or wounded, according to newspaper dispatches from Punta Arenas, quoting refugees from the territory.

A force of armed raiders estimated to number 350 visited isolated ranches and villages, which they looted and burned.

The Government has received appeals for help from residents.

COLDS and COUGHS

is radically different from any other cold medicine, both as to its ingredients and its action.

It is a remedy which does not depend upon the insidious effects of narcotics or antipyretics to relieve a cold.

It contains no nauseating drugs, and produces no evil after-effects of any sort.

Luyties' No. 99 simply increases the natural disease-resisting power of the affected membranes and restores to these organs their temporarily weakened ability to throw off disease.

Have You Ever Seen The Big Trees In California?

On my last trip west I spent a very happy and interesting day in a grove of these huge monarchs of the forest.

There are thirty-one groves of these immense trees in existence, and with few exceptions, they are in an area of about fifty square miles in central California.

I saw some that tower 400 feet into the air and were 50 feet in circumference at the base; some have lived 5000 years, perhaps longer.

We have in this store furniture made from Cuban and San Domingo mahogany, Asiatic and American walnut and Missouri oak.

The giant trees of California are protected by the Government from fire and destruction, irrespective of ownership, and none are being cut for furniture or other uses.

It is wonderful that these "Redwood" trees are being protected and I hope that all of you may have an opportunity to see them some time soon.

A Patroness of Art

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS...

PETER (flourish-in-red) Quick (flourish-in-green) Banta (period in blue) is the style whereby he is known to Our Square. Summer times he is a prop and ornament of Coney, that isle of the blest, whose sands he models into gracious forms and noble sentiments, in anticipation of the casual dime or the munificent quarter, wherewith, perhaps you, if you have low, Philistine tastes or a kind heart, have aforetime rewarded him. In the off season the thwarted passion of color possesses him; and upon the flagstones before Thornsen's Elite Restaurant, which constitute his canvas, he will limn you a full-rigged ship in two colors, a portrait of the heavyweight champion in three, or, if financially encouraged, the Statue of Liberty in four. These be, however, concessions to popular taste. His own predilection is for chaste floral designs of a symbolic character borne out and expounded by appropriate legends. Peter Quick Banta is a devotee of his art.

Judge, then, of the outrage upon his sensibilities in the following episode, now historical in Our Square. Giving full run to his loftier aspirations, he was engaged, one April day, upon a carefully represented lilac with a butterfly about to light on it, when he became cognizant of a ragged rogue of an urchin, regarding him with a grin. Unfortunately, Peter Quick Banta misinterpreted this sign of interest.

"What d'ye think of that?" he said, triumphantly, as he sketched in a set of side whiskers (presumably intended for antennae) upon the butterfly.

"Rotten!" was the prompt response.

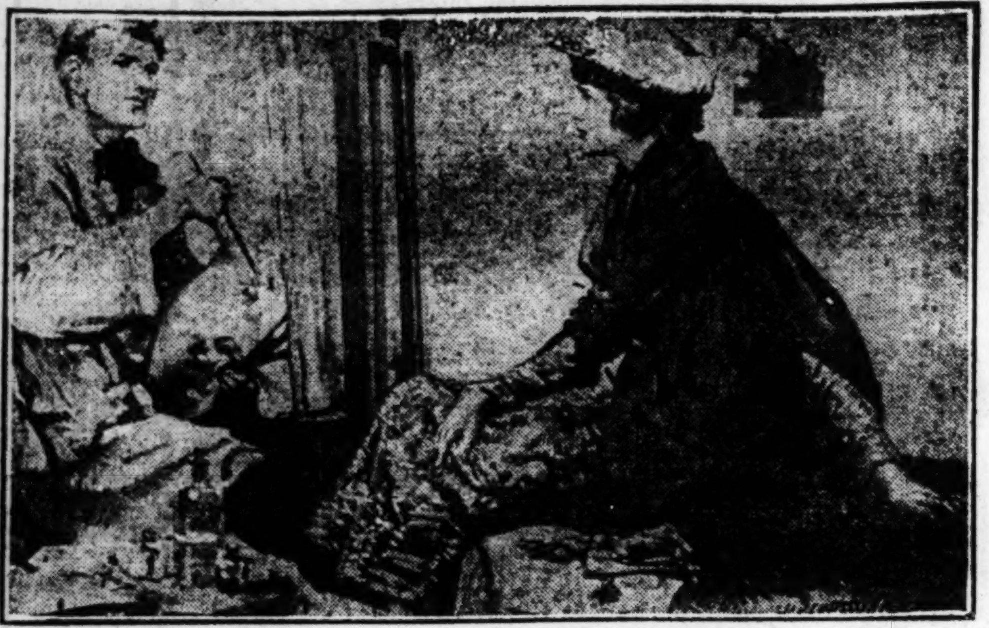
"What!" said the astounded artist, rising from his knees.

"Punk!"

Peter Quick Banta applied the higher criticism to the urchin's nearest ear. It was now that connoisseur's turn to be affronted. Picking himself out of the gutter, he placed his thumb to his nose, and wiggled his fingers in active and reprehensible symbolism, while enlarging upon his original critique, in a series of shrill roars:

"Rotten! Punk! No good! Swash! Flubdub! Sacre tas de-de-piffle!" Already his vocabulary was rich and plenteous, though, in those days, tainted by his French origin.

He then, I regret to say, spat upon the purple whiskers of the butterfly and took refuge in flight. The long stride of Peter Quick Banta soon overtook him. Silently but violently struggling, he was haled back to the profaned temple of Art.



"You're a very puzzling person," said she. "And when woman says that to man, Deep has begun to call to Deep."

"Now, young feller," said Peter Quick Banta, "maybe you think you could do it better." The world-old retort of the creative artist to his critic.

"Any fool could," retorted the boy, which, in various forms, is almost as time-honored as the challenge.

Expecting that only intervention would prevent a murder, I hastened out of the Elite, where I was drinking tea. But the decorator of sidewalks had himself under control. "Try it," he said, grimly.

The boy avidly seized the crayons extended to him.

"You want me to draw a picture? There?"

"If you don't I'll break every bone in your body."

The threat left its object quite unmoved. He pointed the crayon at Peter Quick Banta's creation. "What is that? A boolrush?"

"It's a laylock; that's what it is."

"And the little bird that goes to light"——

"That ain't a bird, and you know it," interrupted Peter Quick Banta, breathing hard. "That's a butterfly."

"I see. But the lie-lawc it drop—so!" The gesture was inimitable. "And the butterfly, she do not come down, plop! She float—so!" The grimy hands fluttered and sank.

"They do, do they? Well, you put it down on the sidewalk."

From that moment the outside world ceased to exist for the urchin. He fell to with concentrated fervor, while Peter Quick Banta and I diverted the traffic. Only once did he speak. "Yellow," he said, reaching, but not looking up.

Silently, the elder artist put the desired crayon in his hand. When the last touches were done, the boy looked up at us, not boastfully, but with supreme confidence.

"There!" said he.

It was crude. It was ill-proportioned. The colors were raw. The arrangements were false. But the lilac bloomed. The butterfly hovered. The artist had spoken through his ordained medium, and the presentment of life stood forth. I hardly dared look at Peter Quick Banta. But beneath his uncouth exterior there lay a great and magnanimous soul.

"Son," said he, "you're a wonder. Wanta keep them crayons?"

Unable to speak for the moment, the boy took off his ragged cap in one of the most gracious gestures I have ever witnessed, and raised doglike eyes of gratitude to his benefactor. Tactfully, Peter Quick Banta proceeded to expound, for my benefit, the technique of the drawing, giving the youngster time to recover before the inevitable questioning began:

"Where did you learn that?"

"Nowhere. Had a few drawing lessons at No. 19."

"Would you like to work for me?"

"How?"

Peter Quick Banta pointed to the sidewalk.

"That?" The boy laughed happily. "That ain't work. That's fun."

So the partnership was begun, the boy, whose name was Julien Tennier (soon simplified into Tenney for local use), sharing Peter Quick Banta's roomy garret. Success, modest but unfailing, attended it from the first appearance of the junior member of the firm at Coney Island, where, as the local cognoscenti still maintain, he revolutionized the art and practice of the "sand dabs." Out of the joint takings grew a bank account, and eventually Peter Quick Banta came to me about the boy's education.

"He's a swell," said Peter Quick Banta. "Look at that face! I don't care if he did crawl outa the gutter. I'm an artist and I reco'nize artistocracy when I see it. And I want him brung up accordin'."

So I inducted the youngster into such modest grooves of learning as an old, half-shelved pedagogue has access to, and when the Bonnie Lassie came to Our Square to make herself and us famous with her tiny bronzes (this was before she had captured, reformed and married Cyrus Staten, the Gaunt), I took him to her, and he fell boyishly and violently in love with her beauty and her genius alike, all of which was good for his developing soul. She arranged for his art training.

"But you know, Dominie," she used to say, wagging her head like a profound and thoughtful bird, "this is all very foolish and shortsighted on my part. Five years from now that guttergodling of yours will be doing work that will make people forget poor little me and my poor little figures."

To which I replied that even if it were true, instead of the veriest nonsense, about Julien Tenney or anyone else ever eclipsing her, she would help him just the same.

But five years from then Julien had gone over to the Philistines.

Justly catalogued, Roberta Holland belonged to the idle rich. She would have objected to the latter classification, averring that, with the rising cost of furs and automobile upkeep, she had barely enough to keep her head above the high tide of Fifth avenue prices. As to idleness, she scorned the charge. Had she not, throughout the war, performed prodigious feats of committee work, all of it meritorious and some of it useful? She had. It had left her with a dangerous and destructive appetite for doing good to people. Aside from this, Miss Roberta was a distracting young person. Few looked at her once without wanting to look again, and not a few looked again to their undoing.

Being done good to is, I understand, much in vogue in the purlieus of Fifth avenue, where it is practiced with skill and persistence by a large and needy cult of grateful recipients. Our Square doesn't like being done good to. As recipients we are, I fear, grudgingly grateful. So when Miss Holland transferred her enthusiasms and activities to our far-away corner of the world, she met with a lack of response which might have discouraged one with a less new and superior sense of duty to the lower orders. She came to us through the Bonnie Lassie, guardian of the gateway from the upper strata to our humbler domain, who—pagan that she is!—indiscriminately accepts all things beautiful simply for their beauty.

Having arrived, Miss Holland proceeded to organize us with all the energy of high-blooded sweet-and-twenty and all the imperiousness of confident wealth and beauty. She organized evening sewing classes for women whose eyelids would not stay open after their long day's work. She organized cultural improvement classes for such as Leon Coventry, the printer, who knows half the literatures of the world, and MacLachan, the tailor, to whom Carlyle is by way of being light reading. She delivered some edifying exhortations upon the subject of Americanism to Polyglot Elsa of the Elite Restaurant, who had taken upon her sturdy young shoulders the support of an old mother and a paralytic sister, so that her two brothers might enlist for the war—a detail of patriotism which the dispenser of platitudes might have learned by judicious inquiry. Miss Roberta Holland meant well, but she had many things to learn, and no master to teach her.

Yet when the flu epidemic returned upon us, she stood by, efficient, deft and gallant, though still imperious, until the day when she clashed her lath-and-tinsel sword of theory against the tempered steel of the Little Red Doctor's experience. Said the Little Red Doctor (who was pressed for time at the moment): 'Take orders. Or get out. Which?"

DETROIT MECHANICS IN RUSSIA

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—A wireless message from Moscow saying that a great many mechanics from Detroit, Mich., now are working in the Donetz coal basin of Russia, has caused considerable speculation in diplomatic circles here, coming after reports from Berlin to the effect that 4000 Americans now in Germany are going to the same region to man the factories. Most of these men are said to be experienced in automobile construction.

She straightened like a soldier. "Tell me what wou want done."

At the end of the onset, when he gave her her release from volunteer service, she turned shining eyes upon him. "I've never been so treated in my life! You're a bully and a brute!"

"You're a brick," retorted the Little Red Doctor. "I'll send for you next time Our Square needs help."

"I'll come," said she, and they shook hands solemnly.

Thereafter Our Square felt a little more lenient toward her ministrations, and even those of us who least approved her activities felt the stir of radiance and color which she brought with her.

On a day when the local philanthropy market was slack, and Miss Holland, seated in the Bonnie Lassie's front window, was projecting some fresh and benign outrage upon our sensibilities, she called out to the sculptress at work on a group: "There's a queer man making queer marks on your sidewalk."

"That's Peter Quick Banta. He's a fellow artist."

"And another man, young, with a big, maney head like an amiable lion; quite a beautiful lion. He's making more marks."

"Let him make all he wants."

"They're waving their arms at each other. At least the queer man is. I think they're going to fight."

"They won't. It's only an academic discussion on technique."

"Who is the young one?"

"His name is Julien Tenney. He's the ruin of what might have been a big artist," said the Bonnie Lassie, severely.

"No! Is he? What did it? Drink?"

"Does he look it?"

The window gazer peered more intently at the debaters below. "It's a peculiar face. Awfully interesting, though. He's quite poorly dressed. Does he need money? Is that what's wrong?"

"That's it, Bobbie," returned the Bonnie Lassie with a half smile. "He needs the money."

The rampant philanthropist stirred within Miss Roberta Holland's well-meaning soul. "Would it be a case where I could help? I'd love to put a real artist back on his feet. Are you sure he's real?"

On the subject of art the Bonnie Lassie is never anything but wholly serious and direct, however much she may play her trickeries with lesser interests, such as life and love and human fate.

"No; I'm not. If he were, I doubt whether he'd have let himself go so wrong."

"Perhaps it isn't too late," said the amateur missionary, hopefully. "Is he a man to whom one could offer money?"

The Bonnie Lassie's smile broadened, without change in its subtle quality. "He isn't exactly a pauper. He just thinks he can't afford to do the thing he wants and ought to do."

"What ought he to do?"

"Paint—paint—paint," said the Bonnie Lassie, vehemently. "Five years ago I believe he had the makings of a great painter in him. And now look what he's doing."

"Making marks on sidewalks, you mean?"

"Worse. Commercial art."

"Designs and that sort of thing?"

"Do you ever look at the unearthy beautiful, graceful and gloriously dressed young super-Americans who appear in the advertisements, riding in supercars or wearing superclothes or brushing superteeth with supertoothbrushes?"

"I suppose so," said the girl vaguely.

"He draws those."

"Is that what you call pot-boiling?"

"One kind."

"And I suppose it pays just a pittance."

"Well," replied the Bonnie Lassie, evasively, "he sticks to it, so it must support him."

"Then I'm going to help him."

"'To fulfill his destiny' is the accepted phrase," said Bonnie Lassie, wickedly. "I'll call him in for you to look over. But you'd best leave the arrangements for a later meeting."

Being summoned, Julien Tenney entered the house as one quite at home despite his smeary garb of the working artist. His presentation to Miss Holland was as brief as it was formal, for she took her departure at once. "Who is she?" asked Julien, staring after her.

"Bobbie Holland, gilded butterfly from uptown."

"What's she doing here?"

"Good."

"Oh, Lord," said he, in pained tones. "Has she got a Cause?"

"Naturally."

"Philanthropist?"

"Worse."

"There ain't no such a animile."

"There is. She's a patron of art."

"Wow!"

"Yes. She's going to patronize you."

"Not if I see her first. How do I qualify as a subject?"

"She considers yours a wasted life."

"Where does she get that idea?"

The Bonnie Lassie removed a fairy implement from the left eye of a stoical figurine and pointed it at herself.

"Do you think that's fair?" demanded the indignant youth.

The Bonnie Lassie reversed the fairy implement and pointed it at him. "Do you or do you not," she challenged, "invade our humble precincts in a $5000 automobile?"

"It's my only extravagance."

"Do you or do you not maintain a luxurious apartment in Gramercy Park when you are not down here posing in your attic as an honest workingman?"

"Oh, see here, Mrs. Staten, I won't stand for that!" he expostulated. "You know perfectly well I keep my room here because it's the only place I can work in quietly"——

"And because Peter Quick Banta would break his foolish old heart if you left him entirely," supplemented the sculptress.

Julien flushed and stood looking like an awkward child. "Did you tell all this stuff to Miss Holland?" he asked, fervently.

"Oh, no! She thinks that your pot-boiling is a desperate and barely sufficient expedient to keep the wolf from the door. So she is planning to help you realize your destiny."

"Which is?" he queried with lifted brows.

"To be a great painter."

The other winced. "As you know, I've meant all along, as soon as I've saved enough"——

"Oh, yes, I know," broke in the Bonnie Lassie, who can be quite ruthless where art is concerned, "and you know; but time flies and hell is paved with good intentions, and if you want to be that kind of a pavement artist—well, I think Peter Quick Banta is a better."

"Do you suppose she'd let me paint her?" he asked abruptly.

To Be Continued Tomorrow and Concluded Tuesday.

KILLS HIS WIFE'S ATTORNEY

Shelbyville (Ky.) Man Says He Thought Lawyer Made Motion to Hip.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SHELBYVILLE, Ky., Jan. 8.—Sam K. Baird, 47 years old, Acting Commonwealth's Attorney of Shelby County, was shot and killed by R. L. Prewitt, 52, retired business man, in Prewitt's home, this morning. Mrs. Prewitt, who has been separated from her husband, told the authorities that Baird, her attorney, accompanied her to Prewitt's home to claim some of her personal effects. She said that she was in an upper room, and that Baird left her and walked downstairs.

Prewitt, at the foot of the stairs, is said to have fired as Baird was descending. Prewitt, who was arrested, said he though Baird made a threatening motion to his hip pocket. Baird was formerly County Judge of Spencer County. He had a wife and two children. The authorities later ordered the prisoner moved to Louisville.

Beginning Monday!

A Stupendous Sale of Men's Shirts

Involving More Than 12,000 Shirts Bought at One-Half Price and Less and Offered on the Same Basis Monday

A big manufacturer, overwhelmingly overstocked with fine Shirts and willing to sacrifice all his profits and a goodly portion of his costs, made this tremendous event possible. Our buyer, on the spot at the right time, made him an offer for his entire lot and he took it promptly. This remarkable sale is the result and you will be the one to profit by our good fortune if you're here Monday.

NOTE!

This is the first time that Shirts have been offered at these prices since before the war—keen buyers will act accordingly.

Think of it! 12,000 Shirts—everyone brand-new, fresh from the maker—and shown for the first time tomorrow at pre-war prices and even less! Surely no man with a Shirt need can afford to pass this opportunity by—in fact, our advice is to stock up now for many months, as Shirts like these will not be at these low prices for a long time to come.

4380 $4.00 to $6.50 Silk Striped Shirts $2

Even before the war you could not buy Shirts like those in this group for $2.00. They're made of "Flantex" cloth, woven jerseys, Russian corded cloths, woven madrases, imported silk sateens in fine art silk novelty stripes, jacquard effects, silk cross stripes and woven satin stripes. In this group you will find strikingly handsome creations, beautifully tailored from the most approved shirting in the popular soft cuff and neckband styles. All sizes from 14 to 17......

3900 $7.00 and $10.00 Fibre Silk Shirts $3

Four, five, yes, even six, years ago you could not duplicate Shirts of this quality at $3.00, and if you're one of those men who want one or more beautifully tailored and finished Shirts at just a fraction of the usual price you'll lay in a supply of these tomorrow. They're superbly tailored from such fine materials as radiant fiber, Sphinx fiber, radiant silks, canton silks and medallion silks in unusually attractive patterns and weaves in solid colors and fancy striped patterns. All sizes from 14 to 17..

3900 $2.00 and $2.50 Shirts $1

The Shirts in this group at $1.00 are made of fine French percales, pongees, corded madrases, pebble cloth and striped crepe madrases, and are splendidly tailored and finished throughout. They're all cut full size in the popular coat style and have soft turn-back cuffs. All sizes from 14 to 17 in neckband and some in collar attached styles. At $1.00 they represent the best shirt values that have been presented to St. Louis men in more than six years..............

NEW POWER STATIONS ARE URGED FOR U. R.

Special Master Lamm Recommends Expenditure of $325,000 for Electric Sub-Plants.

Special Master Lamm yesterday announced that he would recommend that Receiver Wells of the United Railways Co. be authorized to expend approximately $325,000 for the installation of five automatic substations for the distribution of power. The announcement followed submission of plans by Receiver Wells and Richard McCulloch, the corporate president of the company.

Wells suggested the installation of the substation to relieve what the receiver's chief engineer had described as the overloading with current of the present apparatus. Chief Engineer Bryan explained to the Special Master that the present equipment was overloaded from 22 to 50 per cent all the time and that the condition resulted in the frequent burning out of cables and the apparatus within the stations, causing delays of car schedules from five to 30 minutes each time and costing in repairs from $1000 to $3000 in each instance.

McCulloch Gives Opinion.

At the conclusion of the hearing of Wells' application, it was suggested by Henry S. Priest, appearing for the corporation, that as the matter was close to the hearts of the officials of the company, McCulloch should be consulted. Consequently Engineer Bryan and McCulloch met in Priest's office and drew up a statement in which they agreed that the railway company needed an additional 4000 kilowatts of power, but in which McCulloch objected to the plan suggested by Wells on the ground that it would cost about $100,000 more than the installation of four additional transformers in the present substations, which he recommended and which he estimated would cost about $175,000.

When the statement was submitted to the Special Master, Bryan stated that while the initial cost of installing the substations would be about $285,000, it would cause a saving in breakdowns, delays and repairs of about $30,000. In his opinion the installation of four transformers would not give the necessary relief, as the main purpose of the receiver in distributing the power was to avoid the breakdown of the entire service in the event that a single transformer was crippled.

Receiver Wells said that he could not qualify as an electrical expert but that he had surrounded himself with an organization of assistants on whom he relied to help him conduct the affairs of the company for the benefit of stockholders and passengers alike.

Stockholders Are Mentioned.

Priest said that the matter under consideration affected the company primarily and that the public was not concerned. He said that the stockholders had a right to question expenditures proposed by the receiver and that they were opposed to extravagance.

Special Master Lamm concluded the hearing abruptly by expressing confidence in the receiver. He instructed Attorney Charles W. Bates, representing the receiver, to prepare an order authorizing the expenditure of the money, saying that he would recommend that the court grant the application.

Portable Machine Shop for W. U.

The military department at Washington University, of which Maj. F. P. Hardaway is in charge, will receive within the nevt few days a portable machine shop, as part of the equipment of the Coast Artillery unit of the R. O. T. C. at that institution. This addition to the equipment is valued at about $20,000, and contains facilities for almost any character of repairs required by the tractor, truck and field gun forming part of the equipment.

MEALS FOR GERMAN CHILDREN

American Quakers Are Feeding 600,000 Daily.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 8.—The relief work of the American Quakers now comprehends the feeding of 600,000 children daily in all parts of Germany. A total of 70,000,000 meals have been served since the work started in March, 1920. The Quakers have extended their field of activity to the occupied zone in the American sector of the Rhineland, in which the American forces will conduct distribution of the food supplied by the Quakers.

APPENDICITIS

Appendicitis attacks at any moment, even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by stomach trouble or constipation. Many people have a bowel movement every day, but it is not a COMPLETE movement, and much old, stale matter stays in the system to ferment and cause trouble. Often there is only a small passage in the center of the bowels, while the sides are covered with old, hard matter, which sticks to the bowels and often poisons the system for months, making you feel tired all the time and "half-sick." Even if your bowels move slightly each day, that is not enough. There must be an occasional THOROUGH, complete cleansing to bring out all the accumulated, poisonous waste matter.

Appendicitis is an intestinal infection spreading to the appendix, and it can be guarded against in the same manner in which you guard against the spread of throat infection (sore throat). When you have sore throat, you can often prevent further trouble by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to destroy the germs, and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Very similar treatment is necessary to guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary and a COMPLETE drainage of the bowel system.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleaner. This preparation, known as ADLER-I-KA, acts as follows:

It tends to destroy or remove harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most COMPLETE system cleaner ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and bringing out foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gasses, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart and other vital organs. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter ADLER-I-KA draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much MORE foul matter is brought out which was poisoning your system. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headaches, one spoonful ADLER-I-KA ALWAYS brings relief. ADLER-I-KA is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary stomach and bowel medicines and the various oils and waters, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action.

REPORTS FROM PHYSICIANS

"I have used Adler-i-ka in my practice and have found nothing to excel it." (Signed Dr. W. A. Line.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adler-i-ka." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adler-i-ka in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adler-i-ka feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

"Thanks to Adler-i-ka I can sleep all night now, something I could not do for years." (Signed) Cora E. Noblett.

Adler-i-ka is sold by leading druggists everywhere. In St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, and other druggists.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF DYERS TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS

Convention Will Open at Planters Hotel Jan. 17 and Continue Remainder of That Week.

The annual convention of the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners will be held Jan. 17 to 22, inclusive, with headquarters at the Planters Hotel. Two hundred reservations have already been made and about 600 delegates are expected.

The first day of the convention will be devoted to the registration and meeting of the board of directors, Legislative Committee and Technical Research Committee, in addition to a tour of the city's principal cleaning plants and a fire-fighting demonstration. Mayor Kiel, A. P. Hartman and C. W. Loughead, president of the association, will speak on the second day.

Congressman-elect Harry B. Hawes will talk on "Good Roads, Good Streets and Their Relation to Business" on the third day of the convention, after which delegates will tour the city as sightseers.

The association's annual banquet will be held at the Planters Hotel Thursday night, Jan. 20. Dr. Louis J. Matos of New York will speak on "Dye Stuffs." The next day will be devoted to the election of officers and the reading of a paper on "Fire Prevention" by T. A. Fleming of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The convention will close Saturday, Jan. 25, after the completion of unfinished business and an inspection of large cleaning plants.

FEDERAL POLL TAX OF $5 SUGGESTED

Feature in U. S. Revenue Plan of National Retail Dry Goods Association.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A program for revision of the Federal tax laws estimated to yield annually the $4,000,000,000 which Secretary Houston has said the Treasury required, was filed today with the House Ways and Means Committee by the Tax Committee of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

The plan contains a proposal for assessment of a Federal poll tax of $5 on each person over 31 years old who receives an independent income. Income tax exemptions, it is proposed, would be placed at from $1000 to $2000 for unmarried persons, and at from $2000 to $5000 for heads of families. All business would be allowed an exemption of $5000.

Other features carried in the program, which was approved through a referendum of the organization's 2000 members, provide that income from salaries, wages, bonuses and commissions should not be taxed at so high a rate as income from business and investments.

Income derived from business, whether individual, partnership or corporate, would be taxed on the business itself and be subject to no additional tax when distributed to partners or stockholders.

All other incomes, including profit from the sales of capital assets, would be taxed at a higher rate than income from business and in a still higher degree than income from manual or mental efforts.

Tax on Gross Sales of Goods.

There would be a tax on gross sales of all goods sufficient when added to all other taxes proposed in the program and including custom receipts to aggregate the required $4,000,000,000.

The program would eliminate from the present revenue act the excess profits tax, surtaxes on individuals, taxes on transportation, insurance, admission dues and on non-alcoholic beverages and special and capital stock taxes, stamp taxes and certain excise taxes.

The normal income rate would be fixed at 4 per cent on the first $4000 above the exemption, while the remainder would be subjected to a tax of 8 per cent and no surtaxes would be levied.

Income from business institutions would be taxed at 10 per cent on amounts above the exemption. In this connection a statement by the association officials explained that a distinction has been made in their program between manual or mental efforts and the restuls of business investments, the latter being required to bear the heavier burden.

All other incomes, including "unearned" or investment income and profits, would bear surtaxes ranging from 1 per cent on incomes from $20,000 to $50,000 to 6 per cent on incomes in excess of $500,000.

$80,000,000 is Poll Tax Estimate.

Estimates compiled by the association committee placed the revenue from the $5 poll tax at $80,000,000 annually. From income taxes of all kinds proposed in the plan it was estimated the revenue production would be approximately $1,823,000,000. The sales tax which the organization proposed with a rate of 1 per cent would yield $1,816,500,000.

Customs receipts, however, were calculated on the basis of the present revenue act and did not take into consideration the contemplated changes now being worked out by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Likewise the estimate of collections from the sales tax was said by the association representatives "to be very conservative," and they predicted that one-half of 1 per cent may be ample to raise the revenue needed to complete the $4,000,000,000 budget.

KREISLER TO APPEAR AT ODEON ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Vieuxtemps Concerto No. 4, in D Minor, Principal Number on Violinist's Program.

Fritz Kreisler, most popular of violinists, will make his first local appearance of the season next Friday night, at the Odeon. His principal number will be the Vieuxtemps Concerto No. 4, in D Minor, Op. 31.

Other works listed on the program are: "Gavotte in E Major," Bach; "Andantino," Martini; "Tambourin," Leclair; "La Chasse," Cartier; "Variations," Tartini; "Indian Lament," Dvorak; "Song of India," Rimsky-Korsakoff; "Moment Musical," Schubert; "Spanish Serenade," Chaminade-Kreisler; "Minuet," Paderewski-Kreisler, and "The Old Refrain," arranged by Kreisler.

LECOINTE, IN RECORD FLIGHT, MADE KILOMETER IN 11 SECONDS

French Airman Went Whole Distance Over Four-Kilometer Course Flying 10 Feet From Ground.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Sadi Lecointe, in his record-breaking performance over a four-kilometer course recently at Villacoublay when he averaged 194½ miles per hour, negotiated one of the kilometers in 11 seconds flat, or a little better than 200 miles an hour.

Lecointe drove the same Nieuport machine with which he won the Gordon Bennett Cup last September. He went the whole distance 10 feet from the ground, sweeping down from a great height before crossing the startiing line each time.

"I didn't think one could feel as cold as I did," Lecointe said when asked as to his impressions; "the chill went right through my bones. The thermometer registered four degrees below freezing on the ground."

Lawyers Taking Income Tax Course.

About one-half of those attending the short special course on income tax in the evening section of Washington University, the first lecture in which was last Tuesday, 7:40 o'clock, are lawyers and college men. The number enrolled require the second largest classroom at the university, the one of largest capacity having but nine additional seats, which are available to any who may enter next Tuesday. None will be admitted after the latter date. The lectures are by W. G. Rowe of the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

UPTURN IN STOCK PRICES IS MAINLY DUE TO SHORTS

Normal Investment Demand Aid to Bond Market—Sterling Rates Advance Sharply During Week.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The first week of the year has seen strong securities markets on both sides of the Atlantic, a sharp rally, with rather abrupt fluctuations, in sterling, and an upward tendency in cotton and grain. Financial news of the week included a small bank suspension in London, two in Mexico, passage of the War Finance Corporation bill over the President's veto, Senator Penrose's endorsement of the emergency measure, and much discussion in London of schemes for extending credits to distressed nations. Altogether, it was an interesting and colorful week, and one marked by a recovery of something approaching a cheerful feeling in the financial markets.

"In the bond market the influences at work are pretty plain. The pressure of year-end liquidation, both to establish losses and secure funds, has been removed, and while the volume of trading has fallen off from the extreme proportions of the previous week, prices have advanced sharply. Normal reinvestment demand is reenforced by repurchasing after establishing losses, although the latter probably is not as large as before the end of the year.

Short Covering Substantial.

"With stocks the matter is somewhat more complicated. Selling to establish losses certainly is ended, and that a real January reinvestment demand is at hand is testified to by increased press of business in the odd lot houses and by active buying of low-priced issues. Repurchasing after recording losses may also have played some part; but there can be no doubt that one of the most powerful factors in the rally was short covering. Thus the largest gains have been made in the stocks in which large short interests are known to have existed, and whose prices have been most sharply depressed during the last few weeks. Up to the end of the year special and potent influences operated to assist the short campaign; but the tables are now turned and the shorts evidently have decided to come in at the present level rather than risk anything more on this swing.

"Crucible Steel was one of the most active and speculative stocks of the week, registering a gain of 13¾ points up to Friday night. The steel stocks were strong in general, however, as were the coppers, motors and rubbers, which is, of course, merely another way of saying that the recently pounded stocks rallied sharply. Rails lost part of their year-end rally, but still showed net gains, mostly fractional.

"Sterling advance amounted, at the high point, to 14 cents over the previous Friday. A 10-cent spurt came early in the week and just after the high was reached, a sudden reaction of 6 cents occurred. While the general strength of sterling is undoubtedly due to reduction of British purchasing of goods in this market, the violence of the fluctuations strongly suggest speculative operations and fit in well with an interesting report cabled from London to the effect that at about the year-end, American dollars were used to buy sterling in London, which in turn was to be used to buy short-time Government securities; and that the profit on the operation was taken after the sharp rally in the London security market during the first half of the week.

Surprise at Call Rates.

"Surprise is expressed that call money continues to be quoted as high as 7 per cent; but on the other hand, reasons continue to accumulate for being skeptical regarding the early advent of really easy money. The Treasury's probable continuance in the money market as a borrower on Treasury certificates, the large amount of war paper still held by the Federal Reserve Banks, the condition of the country banks and heavy tax payments all argue against radical relaxation of rates. Then again it would be unwise to drop call rates sharply because of a temporary condition and so invite a renewal of speculation which would wipe out the improvement in credit conditions that has been so laboriously won during recent months. One thing certainly should be borne cearly in mind: namely, that inflationist measures, such as the revival of the war finance corporation and the emergency tariff bill, operate directly to postpone indefinitely the return of easy money, and so of the real revival in business."

"Profit-taking before the week-end was in evidence on the Stock Exchange this morning. With active trading, and considerable irregularity, the recently bid-up issues tended to go lower. Royal Dutch and General Asphalt were strong spots, while Atlantic Gulf & West Indies turned weak again. The steel stocks were heavy. Toward the close price changes showed great irregularity. Commodity markets were firm and sterling showed no change.

"Reduction in loans by $54,000,000 and increase in demand deposits by $49,000,000 is shown by the Clearing House Bank statement. Excess reserves decreased by 2,000,000, bringing the total down to 9,000,000. Net withdrawals of Government deposits amounted to $67,000,000, while the banks increased their borrowings at the Federal Reserve Bank by $4,000,000."

New York Bank Statement.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The foreign exchange market in the past week was one of surprising strength, some days bids being in the market in large volume without any nearby offers, and in the first four days of the new year, which started with the beginning of the week, sterling exchange showed an advance of 13 cents, demand sterling selling as high as $3.65¼, against $3.52½ on Dec. 31, 1920. The initial trading of the week indicated the development of buying on a large scale, which was at first attributed to the re-establishment of the War Finance Bureau, but on Tuesday there was a recession in the early trading following the receipt of lower cables from London. The market, however, was flooded with buying orders again on that day, and the advance was quickly resumed, continuing unchecked until yesterday, when another reaction occurred. Continental exchange was also in urgent demand, with the heaviest transactions in exchange on Paris, but yesterday French exchange was offered in large blocks, and while this supply did not cause a material decline, it had an influence in bringing the upward movement to a halt. In some quarters it was insisted that the advance in foreign exchange had been too fast and that a reaction should naturally occur, but outside of the offerings of French exchange it could not be said that a material supply was released at the higher rates established. Scandinavian exchange continued in urgent demand and incidental to all further advance some large amounts of short exchange were sold late on Thursday, only to be quickly covered yesterday. Toward the end of the week Canadian exchange also developed a firm tone. Spanish exchange advanced in the first three days of the week, but was under pressure in the later trading.

Business in foreign exchange Saturday morning was quiet and of a typical week-end character. Rates generally eased off slightly, demand sterling selling at $3.63¼, against $3.63½ yesterday, and French and Italian were a shade lower.

CURB MARKET TONE FIRM DESPITE PROFIT-TAKING

Allied Oil Unusually Active—Indian Packing in Rather Good Demand.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—There was a comparatively firm tone to the Curb Market again today, although profit-taking sales at times caused recessions from the highest. Outside business was moderate, with a bulk of it on the selling side, and traders were quite active at periods in some of the recent active favorites. Insiders did little except keep supporting orders in the market.

Carib Syndicate started at yesterday's high point, but considerable realizing developed and the stock reacted. Carib trading fluctuated over a range of several points. Cities Service Bankers' shares held strong. Columbia Emerald was firm for a while, but eased later on small selling orders. Simms Petroleum, while moderately active, moved over a narrow range.

Allied Oil was again unusually active, with considerable talk about favorable reports of the conditions prevailing at the wells being received here. International Petroleum dropped a fraction, and Skelly was easier on small offerings.

Indian Packing, which had been rather firm recently, was again in comparatively good demand, more interest being given to the details of the plan of the Acme Packing Co. for exchanging stock. The motor issues were inactive but steady.

Mining shares were moderately active, with a firmer tendency in the silver stocks.

Bonds were fairly active and the undertone was generally firm.

RISE IN STERLING BELIEVED DUE TO TRADE REACTION

London View Also Is That Reduction in Buying Here by British Entered as Factor.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Sterling's recovery is believed to be due mainly to the violence of the trade reaction and the reduction in buying from you, accentuated by the closing of previous speculative operations. At the same time it is realized that recent American speculation in British short-term Government securities and exchange may have played a considerable part in the sharper fluctuations.

Two opposing influences are now operating on both sides of the Atlantic, namely a desire to revive export trade by financing impecunious countries and a desire that no artificial measures be adopted, such as are likely to prevent a return to sounder conditions. Traders naturally are vociferous for credit extension, while bankers and financiers are evenly divided in opinion, but the Federal Reserve Board and the Bank of England probably are united on the necessity for soundness in finance and currency at all costs. These same opposing influences increase the difficulty of determining the probable course of money rates. The best opinions here favor a trade revival in a few months with an intervening severe depression. The effects of the present temporarily easier monetary situation, however, will be largely offset by heavy gathering in of tax revenue.

View on Money Rates.

Taking a longer view Gustav Cassel makes forecasts including one calling for maintenance of comparatively dear money over a prolonged period. After admitting that conditions might be altered through large increases in the output of labor he considers that social tendencies make such an event unlikely, adding:

"Shifting of the distribution of income between different classes of society has considerably reduced the ratio of savings; that is the quotient of public income which is used for the creation of new capital. Those conditions also are aggravated by the burden of taxes on large incomes. In all probability, therefore, savings during the next few years will be considerably less than would have been the case under normal conditions, thus increasing the likelihood that interest rates will remain high."

Credit Extension Plan.

It is typical of the prevailing atmosphere that there is a greater disposition to formulate credit schemes for financing exports than to insist on the soundness of such schemes. Probably the net result will be Government insurance of credits with the Government and bankers unitedly operating a scheme for moderate extension of credits which really, however, will be on a small scale. Taking the far view, a conjecture which might be made at random is whether ultimately Britain and America will unite not merely in financing but in controlling commercial reconstruction in certain devastated countries.

New York Coffee Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—A considerably better tone was reported in the market for coffee futures here today. Business was more active with indications of a revival of commission house interest owing to increased optimism over general trade prospects and money market conditions. Reports of an improvement in Rio Exchange and a firmer cost and freight market were contributing factors and after opening at an advance of 5 to 11 points the near months sold about 13 to 22 points higher with May touching 6.99 or 39 points above the recent low record. That [illegible] closed at 6.97 with the general [illegible] net gains of 16 to 22 points. Closing bids: Jan., 6.07; March [illegible]; May 6.97; July 7.37; Sept. 7.68; [illegible] Rio 7s 6¼@6½c; [illegible]

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The recovery of the past week on the stock exchange has been far more rapid, has gone much further, than the most optimistic forecast. It is in line with the hopeful note struck in the reviews and interviews published ver the year-end. Still most of these were looking much further ahead when they talked of recovery. They did not predict any such sudden and violent rebound as has taken place. Speculative Wall Street has been altogether wrong. It has advised against following stocks up on the buying side. It has consistently said that there would be plenty of time for accumulation on the secondary reaction that was looked for. Consequently it has missed the market on the up side, and has lost money fighting the advance.

Yet after all the upward swing is perfectly intelligible to those who maintained all through the break that prices were being carried absurdly low. That they were going down as much below true values as in the excited speculation of 1919 they had gone above the value line. The market of November and December was a panic market, it was governed by the necessities of the sellers of a lot of people most of them rich who had to unload to cover losses incurred in the tremendous fall of securities and commodities. At the same time many stocks were sold to establish tax losses and a good portion were not bought back. As soon as this liquidation ceased as it did very abruptly with the beginning of the New Year the market started in at once to correct the excesses of the decline and the 10 to 15 point jump in little more than a week is simply an example of the extent which Wall Street had overdiscounted the business depression outside.

It is all well enough to say that this is no time for much of an upswing, that there has been no great amount of improvement as yet in the conditions, that there are too many uncertainties ahead. But against this two things have to be borne in mind: First, the whole country for a year with hardly any interruption has been selling stocks. It has been unloading them all the way down in the course of a 30 to 80 point break. This has meant a great multitude waiting for the first signs of a turn to replace holdings that were liquidated much higher up. It is not surprising that a buying power of such dimensions once it did come in should have had startling results. Second, the stock market does not wait for trade improvement to actually get under way. All it wants is to be satisfied that the worst is over and that business recovery in all probability is but a few months off. It then begins to discount the better times. What we have seen during the last 10 days is a price movement registering confidence that the crisis has passed and anticipating a general picking up in industrial lines later on.

The Credit Situation.

Money rates have not yet come down. The 7-per cent quotation call funds is manifestly artificial, but Wall Street is afraid to lower its bid while commercial borrowers are willing to pay 8 per cent for their money. There is not the slightest doubt, however, that the tendency is toward easier conditions in the money market and it is the prospect of lower interest plus the reduction in listing costs which has already made the dollar worth considerably more than it was, that is behind the remarkable movement in Liberty Bonds. Incorporate bonds and in preferred stocks. These investment issues are governed primarily not by business conditions, but by the statute of money, they decline when money is going up and rise when money falls. The buying movement in the bond market of the last few weeks has signified very much more than the ordinary January reinvestment demand. It has reflected the prevailing judgment in investment quarters that interest rates are coming down and that in the course of another year or so high grade securities which have been selling on anywhere from a 5¼ to an 8 per cent basis will be selling to yield something like 4 to 6 per cent.

That the reduced prices have stimulated fresh buying in various industrial lines is well established. This result has so far been by no means general, but the resumption of many industrial plants that were closed down for quite a period at the year end is good enough proof that business men consider that the readjustment has gone far enough and that consumers will soon recognize the fact. The most pleasing feature in the business situation at the moment is the attitude of labor. The contrast between the wage demands and the widespread strike movement of two years ago and the willingness now where shown to accept wage reductions of 20 and 30 per cent is impressive and inspiring. It means that the much discussed liquidation of labor is being accomplished without any of the friction which was feared by nearly everybody who talked on the subject six months ago.

The extraordinary recovery in sterling exchange which has influenced all other foreign exchanges in greater or less degree is one of the outstanding episodes of the week. It seems clearly to be based on no transitory grounds. It is the most promising movement in the direction of restoring some approach to equilibrium in international credit that has yet been seen. The favorable turn in the relation of British exports and imports has, of course, counted as a factor. So has the prospective easing of money conditions here. But besides the sterling market has reflected confidence in the outcome of the various measures that are being taken here and abroad to improve the international trade situation.

It will probably be another two months before either the War Finance Corporation or the new $100,000,000 corpration formed under the Edge act will begin to function.

The project of the British Government to partially guarantee against loss banks and insurance companies which discount bills originating from trade with the Continent is still in a chaotic stage. But there is a combination in these various undertakings far more formidable than any so far conserved for undoing the damage which the war did to the commercial exchanges.

Market on Saturday.

The stock market had to take a large volume of realizing sales in the course of two hours' business this morning. This selling produced a great deal of irregularity in the price movement. There were some rather sharp reactions in stocks which had gone up the most on previous days. The steels, motors, equipments, American wool and various others came down a point to 2 points in the early trading. But they recovered quite a fair part of the loss in the last hour. As has been the case all week, the market was a puzzle to the professionals, who could not understand how the upward movement could keep on so long. A sharp drive was made against the Mexican oils and Atlantic Gulf broke badly again, the idea being that possibly one of the conditions for obtaining the proposed $13,-000,000 loan would be a reduction in the common share dividend. But with these exceptions there was no weakness whatever. The stocks on which profits were being taken were readily absorbed and while the general list did not do much in the later trading a number of special issues were actually bought with a fresh advance.

No doubt the optimistic note struck by Chairman Harding of the Federal Reserve Board in his New York speech last night had something to do with the alacrity of the demand as soon as stocks were offered down at all. The week-end trade reviews added to the more cheerful feeling. More than ever was there a willingness to agree with Mr. Harding's statement that the crisis was over and that trade recovery could now be looked upon as certain. The whole question from a speculative standpoint was whether inside conditions did not call for some setback. Nobody any longer talks of a renewal of the decline; it was simply a case of looking for a technical reaction. As it was, the market demonstrated its indifference to unfavorable news when on the heels of the announcement of a heavy cut in Penna. crude oil, General Asphalt, Transcontinental oil and one or two other members of the group were run up sharply while the bear operations against the Mexican oils were quickly checked.

The Bond Market.

For the first time this week the advance in Liberty Bonds halted this morning and prices came down a bit. The reaction was not important, however, and did not influence the general bond list. While the rise was checked in some directions it kept on in others. There was continued activity in the Japanese issues, which have been very much in demand ever since the press dispatches told of favorable progress in the negotiations to settle the Japanese land question. Pennsylvania 7s got up to 105 this practically equaling their highest record. These bonds have now rallied 8 points within the last fortnight. Union Pacific convertibles were strong at 83¼. Atchison general 4s made a new high at 78. The feature in the industrial group was an advance in the American Smelting 5s to 77. Hudson and Manhattan 5s and incomes continued their upward movement, the former selling at 61 and the latter at 25. Big Four 6s, which only recently sold down to 86, were quoted at 90½ and there was a good demand also for the 4½-per cent bonds of the same company.

Cut in Oil Prices.

The oil indstries which is the last to figure in the readjustment of prices has finally got busy with the knife and a cut of 35 cents a barrel for Pennsylvania crude, the highest grade of crude oil, was announced today. The Pennsylvania product is now selling for $5.75 a barrel as compared with $6.10. This cut was followed closely by a reduction for other Eastern grades of oil of 25 to 35 cents a barrel. The cut in Pennsylvania crude means a lot to companies which use the finer grades of oil such as the cotton and woolen mills.

Union Bag and Paper.

Union Bag and Paper earnings for 1920 were the best in the company's history according to preliminary reports. The company showed a net after all charge-offs before Federal taxes of approximately $4,500,000, equal to $3 a share on the 150,000 shares of capital stock outstanding. The estimate is that after taxes the net will equal at least $25 a share. The earnings the year previous equaled $16.91 a share on the 100,000 shares then outstanding. Only recently the directors set aside a fund of $1,200,000 equal to a year's dividends at $8 a share.

CONGRESS INFLUENCES WHEAT VALUE TREND

Passage of War Finance Bill and Emergency Tariff Discussion Bullish Factors.

Congress wielded the deciding influence during the past week in the wheat market. Enactment of the war finance bill, together with steps toward an emergency tariff, more than offset all bearish factors.

Action at Washington overriding the presidential veto of the war finance bill gave immediate impetus to upturns in the wreat market, but realizing of profits led to a reaction which was accelerated by reports that the Egyptian Government would try to resell 11,000,000 bushels contracted for in Australia. Later, additional weakness resulted from gossip that Argentina was offering wheat to Germany 15c to 20c cheaper than United States wheat could be obtained. Failure of a London bank counted also against the bulls. Then came news pointing to success for the proposed emergency tariff, including a duty which would tend to bar Canadian wheat from the domestic market. Prices again jumped upward, and bullish sentiment continued despite a subsequent sharp increase of the estimated surplus yield in Argentina and Australia.

Material enlargement of the movement of the corn crop was effective in holding down prices for corn and oats.

Provisions were governed largely by the course of the hog market.

GRAIN TRADE IS LIGHT AND PRICES LITTLE ALTERED

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Trading in grains started light today and the market showed little change from yesterday's finish. Some buying by houses with seaboard connections helped wheat.

First quotations ranged from ½c lower to 1¼c higher with March $1.72 to $1.73 and May $1.64½ to $1.65¾. These, however, were followed by slight declines.

Wheat developed a better undertone due to persistent buying to remove hedges against export sales, and closed firm, with prices 1½c to 2¼c higher, including March at $1.73¾ to $1.74 and May $1.66¼ to $1.66½.

There was short covering in corn at the outset, but the demand was quickly satisfied by cash houses.

Corn rallied slightly with wheat, but the trading was light and mostly of a local character. At the finish prices were unchanged to ¼c higher, with May 74¾c to 74⅞c and July 75½c to 75⅝c.

Oats were dull, and provisions quiet at slightly higher levels, with offerings light.

Cash houses sold in small lots. After starting ⅛c lower to ⅜c higher, with May 74¼c to 74⅝c, the market held close to these figures.

Oats were full with opening quotations ¼c to ½c higher, including May at 48⅝c to 48⅝@48¾c.

CATTLE VALUES RANGE UP FIRST WEEK IN 1921

Active Eastern Demand for Hogs Sends Market Higher —Sheep Stronger.

COMPARATIVE LIVE STOCK RECEIPTS.

	Last week	Prev. week	Year ago
Cattle and calves	19,053	20,118	24,852
Hogs	88,418	88,256	115,047
Sheep	13,321	8,671	9,938
Horses and mules	1,331	1,320	7,360
Totals	122,123	118,365	157,197

Moderate receipts, together with a fair packer and outside demand, influenced a materially higher market for cattle at St. Louis during the first week in 1921. Combined run of cattle and calves amounted to 19,053 head, quality of which averaged plain.

Beef steers scored substantial price gains each day and the cheaper handy-weight kinds closed for the period 75c@$1.00 higher. Heavier beeves were not in such keen request as the others, but finished 50c and in places 75c higher. Top steer sale was $10.50 per cwt. paid for a drove averaging 1236 lbs. Bulk of all killing sold from $7.75@9.25.

There was also good request for butcher yearlings and the bulk advanced 50@75c, most sales covering a spread of $5.00@8.00. Butcher cows were strengthened 25@50c, while canners and cutters scored a 25@50c gain. Butchers cashed at $5.50@6.50 largely, cutters $3.75@4.75 and canners, $3.00@3.50. Values for bulls were advanced 25@50c, majority selling at $5.00@6.50. Stocker and feeder steers registered a 35@50c gain, but the advance was the result of light supply rather than any increased country demand. Veal calves fluctuated considerably throughout the week and though best lights at one time were selling up to $13.75, market declined later in the session, top by Friday having fallen down to $12.50.

Hogs Unevenly Higher.

Features of the past week's trade at the hog house were a very active Eastern order business, advancing and very uneven values on pigs and light hogs and a wide spread in prices. Receipts were moderate, totaling 88,418 head, as against 88,256 last week and 115,407 the corresponding period of 1919. During the week close to 50,000 hogs, or more than half the run, went to fill the large Eastern orders, which resulted in a premium being paid for pigs and light stuff. Butchers and heavies, especially the latter, were indifferent sellers. General market is 40 to 50 cents higher for the week, with best pigs and light mixed quotable from $10.50@10.75, best butchers $10@10.25, medium weights $9.90@10.10, and strong weights and heavies from $9.25@9.75. Rough hogs are little changed for the week, selling at $8 largely. The high point of the week was reached in the closing session, when the top was $10.75. Top last Saturday was $10.25.

Lambs Lower, Sheep Higher.

With liberal receipts the past week, the trend in the lamb market was sharply lower. Market closed 50c to 75c lower, after reaching a $1.50 lower level early in the week. At this time choice lambs are quotable to $11.75, whereas the top on Wednesday was $10.75. A week ago the best were found selling at $12.25. Fat sheep are about a quarter higher for the period, the best light ewes selling from $4@4.25. Cull lambs sell from $7.50@8.50, canner sheep $1.50 and choppers and bucks $3. Receipts were approximately 14,500, comparing with 8671 last week and 9938 the corresponding days last year. A good proportion of the run consisted of choice pea-fed lambs from Colorado. Yearlings were a scarce article. The best sold from $9.50@10.

Moderate Demand for Horses.

More horses were moved at St. Louis last week than recently and values were about steady with previous selling. However, as compared with the high time prior to the recent break in the market, prices continue sharply off. Of the 275 horses received and sold through auction, the bulk consisted of Eastern types. These included large animals 1300 to 1600 lbs.; values for which averaged $35@40 lower than a year ago. Pennsylvania wagon horses, 1100 to 1250 lbs. in weight, sold from $15@25 under last season. Though some Southern horses were moved, values remained on a low level, bulk selling from $20@50, or $10@15 under the period prior to the recent slump in the market. A better class of Southern horses changed hands at $65@85.

Not Much Change in Mules.

There were probably more mules sold last week than for some time previous, though values were unchanged. Over 300 were disposed of during the week, the bulk of which were cleared through auction. Medium grades of horse or mare mule were the classes in most evidence, values for which covered a wide spread.

GROWERS STILL HOLD A LARGE QUANTITY OF RECORD ROOT CROPS

Federal Review Says Average Prices Obtained Were Never So Far Below Production Cost.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Farmers still hold a great quantity of onions, potatoes and other root crops, says the weekly market review today of the Department of Agriculture. As an explanation, the review declares that "perhaps there never was a time when average prices obtained fell so far below cost of producing and marketing."

Despite record crops, shipments are far behind normal, the review says, adding tnat farmers "hesitate to accept the loss involved in selling at slight improvement in prices since the holidays."

Potato prices are nearly back to the season's lowest points, according to this authority, reaching $1.25 per 100 pounds in the Chicago carload lot market. Other city markets range from $1.50 to $2.10. The gain in cabbage prices to a city range from $20 to $30 a ton, and probably is the outcome of seasonal condition, it is said.

The apple market is described as dull and weak, with city market prices ranging from $4 to $5 a barrel for best grades of the standard kind.

MORE OPTIMISTIC FEELING PREVAILS IN COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—There was a further sharp advance in the cotton market today, which local brokers attributed to growing optimism over general business prospects and a broadening investment or commission house demand. There was some irregularity early, with enough week-end realizing and Southern hedge selling to cause moderate reactions, but the offerings were soon absorbed and the best prices were touched in the late trading, with March selling at 15.65, or 45 points above the closing quotation of Friday, and approximately 2½c per pound above the low record of last week. That delivery closed at 15.47 and the general market closed very steady, at a net advance of 27 to 40 points.

There were several features in the early news which were regarded as contributing to increased confidence in the trade outlook. The statements of Gov. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, with reference to the financial and industrial outlook, evidently attracted a good deal of attention, while there also was bullish comment on reports that the new Southern Edge Law Corporation, organized at New Orleans recently, was to open for actual business on Monday. Other features mentioned on the advance were the increased sales of print cloths reported at Fall River for the week, further reports of increasing domestic mill activity and the possibility that easing money market conditions might foreshadow a reduction in rediscount rates. After opening steady at an advance of 4 to 10 points, active months sold about 4 to 8 points net lower, under profit-taking and Southern selling, but soon firmed up, with January advancing to 16.65 and May to 15.63 late in the morning. Closing prices were a few points off from the best, under realizing. Trade interests were credited with buying moderately on the advance, while there was covering by recent sellers for a reaction and a good deal of buying through Wall street houses.

BIG SALES REPORTED FOR NEW $1 TREASURY SAVINGS STAMP

New Issue Put Out Because of Popular Demand for Larger Denomination.

Big sales were reported for the past week in the new $1 United States Treasury Savings Stamp, by R. R. Smith, Government Director of the Savings Division for the Eighth Federal Reserve District. The dollar stamp is a new issue which was put out because of popular demand for a stamp of larger denomination than the 25-cent Thrift Stamp. Thrift and Savings Stamps for 1921 can be bought at all postoffices.

The $1 stamp bears no interest until accumulated in sufficient amount to exchange for an interest-bearing security. It may be exchanged when four are on hand for a $5 savings stamp by the payment of a few additional cents. The $1 stamp is intended, however, primarily for accumulation of Treasury saving cards, which may be obtained from postoffices. When 20 stamps are pasted on the card it may then be exchanged with a small payment for one of the new $25 Treasury savings certificates, considered one of the best investments ever offered by the Government. The $25 certificates are issued on the same plan as the $100 and $1000 certificates, bearing interest at 4.27 if held to maturity in 1926, with nontaxable provision and the right to cash before maturity should necessity arise. The January price of the $25 certificates, which also are on sale at postoffices, is $20.60. The $100 certificates are $82.40 this month and the $1000 certificates cost $824.

"Why and How I Married the Prime Minister of Great Britain"

The First Installment of Margot Tennant Asquith's Diary, Which Is the Most-Talked-of Book of Today

A Clever, Frank and Piquant Disclosure of Social and Political England by the Best Known Woman in London Life From Gladstone's Time Down to the Present—How Four Prime Ministers Signed Her Marriage Register.

By MARGOT ASQUITH

Wife of H. H. Asquith, Former Premier of Great Britain.

I FIRST met my husband in 1891 at a dinner given by Peter Flower's brother, Cyril. I had never heard of him in my life, which gives some indication of how much time I was wasting on two worlds—I do not mean this and the next—but sporting and dramatic. My dancing lessons had led me to the rehearsals both of the ballet and the drama; and for a short time I was at the feet of Ellen Terry and Irving—I say "short" advisedly, for, then as now, I found bohemian society duller than any English watering place.

Stage suppers are my idea of hell. Everyone has a different conception of hell, and few of us connect it with flames—even the idea of eternal punishment has long since gone out of fashion—but, with the exception of Irving and Coquelin, I have never met hero or heroine off the stage in comedy or opera that was not ultimately dull, and collectively they are crushing.

The dinner where I first met Herbert Asquith was in the House of Commons, and I sat next to him. I was immensely impressed by his conversation and his clean Cromwellian face. He was different to all the others, and, although abominably dressed, had so much personality that I made up my mind at once that here was a man who could help me, and would understand everything.

It never crossed my brain that he was married, nor would that have mattered. I had always been more or less anxious that Peter Flower should marry than myself, because he was 13 years older than I was, but matrimony was not the purpose of either of our lives.

It was a glorious night; and after dinner, when we all walked on the terrace, I was flattered to find my new friend by my side. Lord Battersea—our host—who adored my husband and had flamboyant manners, openly chaffed me, and tried to separate us, but with our great tact and determination this frontal attack was resisted.

He and I retired to the darkest part of the terrace and, leaning over the parapet, we gazed into the river and talked till far into the night.

Our host and party—thinking that I had gone home and that Henry had returned to the House (of Commons) when the division bell rang—had disappeared; and when we finished our conversation the terrace was deserted and the sky looked light.

We met a few days later dining with Sir Algernon West—a very dear and early friend of mine. After this we saw each other constantly. I found out from something he said that he was married and lived at Hampstead.

(Editor's note: Mrs. Asquith's friendship for Sir Algernon West did not deter her from testifying in favor of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Horace West, in the famous case in which Mrs. West sued Sir Algernon for defaming her character by spreading stories of her extravagance. It was while testifying at this trial that Mrs. Asquith said, "Extravagance is the best passport to high society.")

He told me afterwards that he was a shy man, and in some ways this is true of him even now; I am glad that I never observed it at the time, as shy people worried me. I liked modesty—I pitied timidity—but I was bored with shyness.

I cannot truly say that the word shy described Henry; he was a little gauche in movement, and blushed when he was praised, but I have never seen him afraid of anyone, or disconcerted by any social dilemma. His unerring instinct into all sorts of people and affairs—quite apart from his intellectual temperament and learning—his incredible lack of vanity and freedom from self struck me at once; he made everyone talk well, which convinces people that they are not being flattered, but being clever.

(Editor's note: London society gossiped openly that Margot Tennant laughed at Asquith's first advances toward her.)

When I found that he was married, I asked him to bring his wife to dinner, which he did. Directly I saw her I said:

"I do hope, Mrs. Asquith, you have not minded your husband dining here without you, but I rather gathered Hampstead was too far away for him to get back to you from the house; I hope whenever it suits you and he is dining here that you will dine, too."

In making my profound and attaching friendship with the stranger of that House of Commons dinner I had placed myself in a difficult position when Helen Asquith (the Premier's first wife) died. To be a step-wife and a step-mother was unthinkable, but at the same time the moment had arrived in my life when a change—involving a great decision—had become inevitable. I had written to Peter Flower before we parted every day for nine years—with the exception of the months he had spent flying from his creditors in India—and I had prayed for him every night, but it had not brought more than happiness to both of us, and when I deliberately said good-by to him I shut down a page of my life which even if I had wanted to I could never have reopened.

(Editor's note: In a later installment Mrs. Asquith describes in full her friendship with Peter Flower, for whom she entertained an extremely deep affection.)

When Henry told me he cared for me, that unstifled inner voice which we all of us hear more or less indistinctly, told me that I should be untrue to myself and quite unworthy of life if, when such a man came knocking at the door, I did not fling it wide open.

The rumor that we were engaged to be married caused perturbation amounting to consternation in certain circle. Both Lord Rosebery and Lord Randolph Churchill, without impugning me in any way, deplored the marriage, nor were they by any means alone in thinking such a union might ruin the life of a promising politician.

(Editor's note: She was once reported engaged to marry Lord Rosebery.)

Some of my own friends, from another point of view, were equally apprehensive; to start my new life charged with a ready-made family of children, brought up very differently to myself, with a man who played no games and cared for no sport, in London instead of the country, with no money except what he could make at the bar, was, they thought, taking too many risks.

My Melton friends said it was a terrible waste that I was not marrying a sporting man, and told me afterwards that they nearly signed a round robin to beg me never to give up hunting.

(Editor's note: Melton is one of the fashionable hunt clubs of England. On one occasion, bored by the monotony of a conventional affair there, Mrs. Asquith, then Margot Tennant, startled the staid dowagers who were present by giving an impromptu skirt dance, which highly pleased the younger set, but over which London society professed to be deeply shocked.)

I was much more afraid of spoiling my husband's life than my own. I had never seen any of his children except little Violet when I became engaged; and he only took me to see them once before we were married. He never spoke of them except one day, when, after my asking him if he thought they would hate me and cataloguing my grave imperfections and my moderate qualifications for the part, he stopped me and said that his eldest son Raymond was remarkably clever and would be devoted to me. He added thoughtfully:

"I think, and hope, he is ambitious."

This was quite a new idea to me; we had always been told what a wicked thing ambition was, but we were a fighting family of high spirits and hot temper, as well as exceedingly competitive, so we had acquiesced without conforming. This remark profoundly impressed me and I pondered it in my heart. I do not think it turned out to be a true prophecy, but Raymond Asquith had such unusual and amazing intellectual gifts that no one could have convicted him of lack of ambition. To win without work, to score without effort, and to amaze and delight without premeditation is given to few.

Disapproving of long engagements, I hurried on my marriage all I could, first to avoid the month of Many, and next to escape the cataracts of advice by which my friends thought to secure both my husband's and my own matrimonial bliss.

One night after our engagement we were dining with Sir Henry and Lady Campbell-Bannerman. (Campbell-Bannerman was once Prime Minister.) While the women were talking and the men drinking, dear old Mrs. Gladstone and other elderly ladies and political wives took me on as to the duties of the spouse of a possible Prime Minister; they were so severe that at the end of it I did not feel at all sure that I should be doing the proper thing by sleeping with him.

When Mr. Gladstone came into the drawing room I felt depressed and, clinging to his arm, I switched him off in a corner and said I feared the ladies took me for a jockey or a ballet girl, as I had been abjured to give up dancing, riding and acting, etc. He patted my hand, said he knew no one better fitted to be the wife of a great politician than myself and ended by saying that, while I was entitled to discard exaggeration in rebuke, it was a great mistake not to take criticism wisely and in a spirit which might turn it to good account.

I have often thought of this when I see how brittle and egotistical people are at the smallest disapprobation. There is no greater test of size than the way people take criticism; but, judging stature by this standard, most people are dwarfs.

FORMER PREMIER HERBERT H. ASQUITH. MRS. HERBERT H ASQUITH.

End of London as well as the West. The following was posted to me by an anonymous well-wisher:

"At the meeting of the 'unemployed' held on Tower Hill yesterday afternoon, John E. Williams, the organizer appointed by the Social Democratic Federation, said that on the previous day they had gone through the West End squares and had let the 'loafers' living there know that they were alive.

"On the previous evening he had seen an announcement which, at first sight, had caused tears to run down his face, for he had thought it read: 'Mr. Asquith going to be murdered.' However, it turned out that Mr. Asquith was going to be married, and he accordingly proposed that the unemployed, following the example of the people in the West End, should forward the right hon. gentleman a congratulatory message.

"He moved—'That this mass meeting of the unemployed held on Tower Hill, hearing that Mr. Asquith is about to enter the holy bonds of matrimony, and knowing he has no sympathy for the unemployed, and that he has lately used his position in the House of Commons to insult the unemployed, trusts that his partner will be one of the worst Tartars it is possible for a man to have, and that his family troubles will compel him to retire from political life, for which he is so unfit.'

"The reading of the resolution was followed by loud laughter and cheers. Mr. Crouch (National Union of Boot and Shoe Operatives) seconded the motion, which was supported by a number of other speakers and adopted."

In spite of the anxiety of my friends and relatives we were married on the 10th of May, 1894. Our register was signed by four Prime Ministers—Mr. Gladstone, Lord Rosebery, Arthur Balfour and my husband. We spent the first part of our honeymoon at Mells Park, lent us by Sir John and Lady Horner, and the second at Clovelly Court.

I had a wonderful wedding. It was less common in those days for crowds to collect in the street than it is today. The first marriage I ever saw which collected huge crowds was Lady Crewe's. From Grosvenor Square to St. George's, Hanover Square, is a short distance, but from our front door to the church the pavements were blocked.

An old nurse of my sister Charlotte's, Jerusha Taylor, who nursed me after my wedding, told me that a gentleman outside St. George's had said to her, "I will give you 10 pounds for that ticket of yours;" and she refused. He said: "I will give you anything you like to ask! I must see Margot Tennant married." I asked her what sort of man he was. She answered: "Oh, he was a real gentleman, ma'am! I know a gentleman when I see him; he had a gardenia in his buttonhole, but he didn't get my ticket!"

I do not know which of us was considered the most courageous in our marriage, my husband or myself. In every one of my letters of congratulations there was a note of warning; no doubt step-relationships are not natural, and should not be taken in hand unadvisedly, lightly or wantonly, but reverently, discreetly and soberly.

Gladstone and Lord Morley wrote me these letters on my engagement:

"May 5th, 1894.—You have a great and noble work to perform. It is a work far beyond human strength. May the strength which is more than human be abundantly granted you. Ever yours, W. E. G."

I remember, on receiving it, saying to my beloved friend Con Manners:

"Gladstone thinks my fitness to be Henry's wife should be prayed for like the clergy: 'Almighty and Everlasting God, who alone workest great marvels.' " . . .

John Morley wrote this:

"95 Elm Park Gardens, South Kinsington, S. W., March 7, 1894.—My Dear Miss Margot: Now that the whirl of congratulations must be ceasing, here are mine, the latest but not the least warm of them all. You are going to marry one of the finest men in all the world, with a great store of sterling gifts both of head and heart, and with a life before him of the higest interest, importance and power. Such a man is a companion that any woman might envy you. I dare say you know this without my telling you. On the other part, I will not add myself to those impertinents, who—as I understand you to report—wish you 'to improve.' I very respectfully wish nothing of the sort. Few qualities are better worth leaving as they are than vivacity, wit, freshness of mind, gaiety and pluck. Pray keep them all. Don't improve by an atom.

"Circumstances may have a lesson or two to teach you, but 'tis only the dull who don't learn, and I have no fear but that such a pair have happy years in front of them.

"You ask for my blessing, and you have it. Be sure that I wish you as unclouded a life as can be the lot of woman, and I hope you will always let me count myself your friend. I possess some aphorisms on the married state—but they will keep. I only let them out as occasion comes. Always yours sincerely,

"JOHN MORLEY."

(Editor's note: John Morley was Secretary for Ireland under Gladstone. He was in Asquith's Cabinet when the war broke out and resigned because of his pacifist principles. He was called Honest John, which, Mrs. Asquith says, was a poor name for him.)

There was one letter I kept in front of me when I felt discouraged by the others on my engagement. As the writer is alive I shall not disclose who it was from.

"My Dear Margot: You are not different from other people except in this respect—you have a very clear, cool head, and a very hot, keen heart, and you won't find everything; so choose what lasts, and with luck and with pluck, carrying as you are from the highest motive, you will be repaid. Asquith is far too good for you. He is not conventional and will give you a great deal of freedom. He worships you and understands you, and is bent on making the best of you and the life together. You are marrying a very uncommon man—not so much his brains (they are good, in fact, first rate)—but he is uncommon from his determination, reality and concentrated power of love. Don't pity yourself—you would not have wished to love Peter less—though you might wish you had never seen him—but you know you have allowed too much love and you must bear the consequences. Deep down in your heart you must feel that you ought now to put a stop to your present life, and to the temptation of making people love you. Depend upon it, with your rich and warm nature you need not be afraid of not loving Asquith intensely. By marrying him you will prove yourself to be a woman of courage and nobility, instead of a woman who is talked about and who is in reality wild and self-indulgent. You are lucky after your storm-tossed, rather dangerous life, to have found such a haven; and should bless God for it."

Margot Asquith

Read the second installment of Mrs. Asquith's story in next Sunday's Post-Dispatch. She declares political careers are unfit for women.

"Life in the House (of Commons) is neither healthy, useful or appropriate for a woman, and the functions of a mother and a Member are not compatible. This is one of the reasons my husband and I were against giving the franchise to women," says Mrs. Asquith in speaking of her own daughter's political career and discussing woman suffrage. In this article she also discusses her difficult relations with her step-children and the problems they presented and tells of friendly conversations with her husband's first wife.

The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue

By WILLIAM WATSON

She is not old, she is not young,
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue,
The haggard cheek, the hungering eye,
The poisoned words that wildly fly,
The famished face, the feered hand—
Who slights the worthiest in the land,
Sneers at the just, contemns the brave,
And blackens goodness in its grave.

In truthful numbers be she sung,
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue;
Concerning whom, Fame hints at things
Told but in shrugs and whisperings;
Ambitious from her natal hour,
And scheming all her life for power;
With little left of seemly pride;
With venomed fangs she cannot hide;
Who half makes love to you today,
Tomorrow gives her guest away,
Burnt up within by that strange soul
She cannot slave or yet control;
Malignant lipp'd, unkind, unsweet;
Past all example indiscreet;
Hectic, and always overstrung—
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue.

To think that such as she can mar
Names that among the noblest are!
That hands like hers can touch the springs
That move who knows what men and things?
That on her will their fates have hung!—
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue.

STATEMENT BY MR. WATSON.

"The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue" is a composite photograph of Mrs. Asquith and her step-daughter, Violet. The poem is a portrait of the physical characteristics of Mrs. Asquith. The latter is the voice of the family and rules them all. Violet is the real official voice speaking with authority. She it is who

"'Slights the worthiest in the land,
Sneers at the just, contemns the brave,
And blackens goodness in its grave.' "

Here Is a Fine Laxative For Your Little Baby

Millions of Mothers Find Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Safe Remedy for Infants.

WHAT young mother has not often asked herself the question, "What is the best thing I can give my baby for constipation?" It is a very important question, as constipation is the basis of most ills of infancy and childhood.

Give half a teaspoonful of a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. You can obtain it at any drug store under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a mild, gentle medicine that children willingly take, and a bottle that costs only sixty cents is enough to last an average family several months.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been used by millions of mothers, for the prescription has been sold in drug stores for thirty years. It is the same prescription Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who is now in his 82nd year, used in his extensive practice for half a century. It is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Last year eight million bottles were bought in drug stores.

You can make no mistake in giving Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to your baby.

TRY IT FREE

Send me your name and address and I will send you a free trial bottle of my Syrup Pepsin. Address me Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 513 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Everybody now and then needs a laxative, and it is well to know the best.

Paintings and Works of Art for the New State House

Description of Decorations Which Have Been or Will Be Placed in Capitol at Jefferson City.

(By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.)

Twelve of the magnificent decorations for the Capitol building at Jefferson City, referred to in the accompanying article, are published in the Rotogravure section of today's Post-Dispatch.

Of the artists whose work appears in the Rotogravure section, three are St. Louis men. Richard E. Miller of 3806 Arsenal street is quite as well known in Eastern art circles and in Paris as in his home town. His canvasses of the Lewis and Clark Expedition and Benton's speech have been placed in the Senate chamber. Oscar E. Berninghaus of 3939 Castleman avenue has won wide recognition as a depictor of Indian themes. Frederick G. Carpenter is an instructor in the Washington University School of Fine Arts. N. C. Wyeth, two of whose paintings appear, is from Chadsforth, Pa. Frank Brangwyn of London, noted English etcher and artist, is now engaged in painting the four pendentives and eye of the dome.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 8.—Following is a description of the paintings and other works of art which will decorate the new Capitol at Jefferson City, together with a brief sketch of the artists. Many of these paintings have already been placed in position in the Statehouse and were accepted by the State with impressive ceremony last Friday. The others will be finished by the artists as rapidly as possible:

Lower Rotunda.

"The Signing of the Treaty, 1803," by Karl Bitter, who was born in Austria 1867; came to this country in 1889; won prize in competition for Astor Memorial gates, Trinity Church, New York; received gold medal Pan-American Exhibition 1901, in Philadelphia 1902, at the St. Louis Exposition 1904; director of sculpture for Pan-American Exposition 1901 and chief of department of sculpture, St. Louis Exposition, 1904.

This great relief represents the signing of the treaty by which the United States came into possession of the Louisiana Purchase in 1803 in Paris, France.

The American commissioners were James Monroe (in the relief standing at the left) and Robert R. Livingston (seated). The representative of France, Marbois (at the right) is in the act of affixing his signature. Since this treaty rendered possible the existence, formation and growth of this gerat State of Missouri, it is appropriate that this group should be the first work of art to greet the visitor as he enters the Capitol.

House of Representatives.

Mosaic glass window, designed and executed by Herman T. Schladormundt, Bronxville, New York, who also executed the skylight over the State staircase of the Capitol Building. Mr. Schladermundt is a well-known American artist who has executed many important mural paintings and mosaic and stained glass windows, some of his works being: The Thomas F. Ryan Art Museum, New York City; the Denver Postoffice, the grand jury room in Newark (N. J.) Courthouse, mosaic and stained glass in Congressional Library, Washington, D. C.; Flagler Memorial Church, St. Augustine, Fla., etc.

"The Glory of Missouri in Peace." This is a window of mosaic stained glass, 31 feet long by 14 feet high, in the west wall of the House of Representatives. The central figure, of great dignity and nobility, representing the State of Missouri in times of peace, is seated in a niche on a raised platform. To either side are standard bearers with United States flags. At her side and feet are grouped children. On the two corners of the platform are seated figures, the one on the left representing Industry, holding a web, the one to the right, Learning, with the scroll and books.

In the left panel are the industries Commerce, Mining and Agriculture, with a background showing ships, etc. In the right section the Arts, Science and Justice are represented.

The entire picture panel is surrounded by a border of rich design symbolizing Missouri as the mother of states. It contains the shields of various states which have been particularly influenced by Missouri, connected by figures of children with ornaments. Incorporated in the side borders are two circular panels with picture subjects, one a Mississippi River boat and the other the ruined columns of the old university at Columbia.

Senate Chamber.

Two panels by Richard E. Miller, born in St. Louis, Mo., descendant of Missouri pioneers. Student in St. Louis School of Fine Arts and in the Julian Academy, Paris, France. Gold medal, Paris Salon; Temple gold medal, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts; Potter Palmer gold medal, Art Institute of Chicago; gold medal of honor, San Francisco Exposition; Knight of the Legion of Honor, France. Represented in most of the art museums of Europe and of America.

On the left as you face the Lieutenant-Governor's chair the Benton panel. Through his long political career Benton was ever the champion of the West, urging its development, predicting its greatness. He is here represented at the conclusion of his great speech at the Pacific Railroad meeting in the rotunda of the St. Louis courthouse in October, 1849. On the platform behind him are seated Mayor John M. Krum and Stephen A. Douglas. In the audience are Thomas Allen, first president of the Pacific Railroad, later owner of the Iron Mountain Railroad System; Isaac H. Sturgeon, first president of the North Missouri (now Wabash) Railroad; and Trusten Polk, later Governor and United States Senator from Missouri. On the wall beyond the speaker is a map on which the proposed transcontinental railroad is indicated. In a magnificent peroration Benton advocates the construction of "This line which will be adorned with its crowning honor," the colossal statue of Columbus, whose design it accomplishes, hewn from the granite mass of a peak of the Rocky Mountains overlooking the road, pointing with outstretched arm to the Western horizon and saying to the flying passenger, "There is the East, there is India."

On the right as you face the Lieutenant-Governor's chair the Lewis and Clark panel. On their return from their wonderful expedition across the continent the two hardy exployers repair to Washington to make their report to the great President who sent them forth. In the center of the picture Jefferson warmly greets Capt. William Clark, whom he now meets for the first time. At the President's left stands Capt. Meriwether Lewis who had formerly been Jefferson's private secretary. Indians, soldiers and servants are also shown against the background of the White House before its destruction by the British in 1813.

Senate Lounge.

Tapestry panels by the Edgewater Tapestry Looms. This corporation was founded in 1912 by Lorentz Kleiser, the present art leader of the institution. They are the largest and most important tapestry manufacturies at the present time in the United States. These two panels in the Senate lounge illustrate the industry and commerce of the early period of the State of Missouri, the fur trade and the Santa Fe Trail. These tapestries are of a very fine quality of wool and silk, are woven entirely by hand on a low lisse loom, the kind of loom used for hundreds of years by all important weavers of tapestry.

Soldiers' and Sailors' Museum.

Two lunettes by Oscar E. Berninghaus, who was born and lives in St. Louis and was a student of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts. His specialty is Indian and Mexican life of the Southwest. He is represented in the City Art Museum, the public libraries and the public schools of St. Louis and in numerous private collections. As awards, he has received the Dolph prize, 1907; Chicago fine arts building prize, 1913; Bascom prize, St. Louis Artists' Guild, 1915; Chamber of Commerce prize, 1918; Sedalia State Fair, 1919; public vote prize, 1919; Carl Wimar prize, 1919; Art League prize, 1920.

Attack on St. Louis, 1780. For more than a year the English had been planning with a force of Indians under Canadian leaders to launch an attack on St. Louis, well knowing that with this post destroyed nothing would prevent them from sweeping down the Mississippi even to the gulf. Rumors of this expedition reached St. Louis. The Spanish commandant, De Leyba,

$119,838 UNCLAIMED DEPOSITS REPORTED IN BANKS OF STATE

Money to Be Absorbed by Banks, if Not Claimed, After List Is Published.

Six hundred and eight unclaimed deposits in Missouri banks and trust companies, in amounts of $50 and upward, aggregating $119,838.64, which have remained unclaimed for five years or more, prior to Aug. 1, 1920, have been reported to C. F. Enright, State Banking Commissioner.

The list will be published next Wednesday in one newspaper in St. Louis, Jefferson City, Kansas City and St. Joseph, as required by law. The names of the persons entitled to receive the deposits, the amounts and the names and addresses of the banks reporting them will be given. If after the publication the deposits are not claimed they will be absorbed by the banks holding them.

The 608 unclaimed deposits reported are not all that the banks hold. Thee law does not require them to report unclaimed amounts under $50.

In the alphabetical list there are six items aggregating $1,503.63 reported by the Boatmen's Bank of St. Louis, credited to depositors designated by "X." Leroy C. Bryan, assistant cashier of the Boatmen's Bank, said the "X" does not represent the "hi smark" of depositors unable to sign their names, for in that case the bank would have a record of the names and addresses of the depositors who made their marks.

The "X" deposits, he said, were those of persons whose names and addresses were rendered illegible by water during the Missouri Athletic Club fire, when the bank was in the club's building. The unclaimed amounts, he said, represent certificates of deposit or cashier's checks, and are the bank's own instruments of obligation showing that these amounts are still outstanding. He said that some of the amounts might represent deposits made as far back of 1860.

NINE PAINTINGS AND OTHER ART WORKS DELIVERED TO STATE

tried to allay the fear of the people to such an extent that there were grounds for suspecting him of being in league with the attacking party. To assure the inhabitants that there was nothing to fear he sold all the powder in the settlement.

Early in May, 1780, 1500 Indians came. Landing near Baden on the 26th of the month they struck their swift and cruel blow. When they began to fire on the farmers in the fields the settlers rushed into the stockade, which had been built the preceding year by planting logs on end and filling the cracks with mud.

There were but 97 male householders in St. Louis at the time, but their vigorous defense, the stockade and the roar of their one cannon, which frightened the Indians, soon caused the fury of the attack to abate and the town was saved. The battle for the soil of Missouri was won.

Indian surrender to Gen. Dodge, 1814. The war of 1812 reached Missouri only indirectly. The English continued their policy of inciting the Indians from the North to make forages against the settlers. After Gen. Wayne had decisively beaten the Miami Indians in Ohio they migrated westward and settled in the Boonslick country in Missouri. Here along with the Sacs and Foxes they harassed the western border settlements until Colonel (afterwards General) Henry Dodge was ordered to deal with the situation in a summary manner.

Dodge had under his command a company of regulars. These were reinforced by rangers and friendly Indians. The Miamis were taken by surprise near what is now known as Miami, in Saline County, and easily compelled to surrender. In this surrender of the Indians to Col. Dodge we witness practically the end of that border warfare which had harassed Missouri for more than a generation.

Two lunettes by Fred Green Carpenter, who was born in Nashville, Tenn., but who has been a resident of Missouri since 1885. Student of St. Louis School of Fine Arts and of the Julian Academy in Paris. Pupil of Laurens Baschet, Royer, Simon and Richard E. Miller. Received honorable mention in the Paris Salon, 1912. Represented in the permanent collections of the Pennsylvania Academy, John Herron Art Institute and City Art Museum of St. Louis, and in many private collections.

Battle of Sacramento—Doniphan's expedition to New Mexico and to Old Mexico in the Mexican War, easily ranks as one of the most remarkable military achievements in the annals of time. The culminating moment in the series of brilliant victories was reached in the Battle of Sacramento in 1847. At this place 4000 Mexicans had for weeks been awaiting the arrival of the Missourians. The Mexicans occupied strongly fortified heights; they were thoroughly equipped and well supplied with cannon. So sure were they of victory that they had prepared "Strings and handcuffs" in which they meant to drive the Americans as prisoners to the City of Mexico. Doniphan's force numbered hardly more than 900 effective fighting men, yet the victory was won by the men from Missouri, the American loss being but one killed and 11 wounded.

In the painting Gen. Doniphan, on horseback in the left foreground, is directing the charge up the hill to the strongly fortified Mexican position on the heights. In the center of the picture Capt. Weightman of the famous St. Louis company of artillery, orders the unlimbering of one of the guns preparatory to a shot up the hill.

Below are dismounted men, grim and determined, while beyond the mounted Missourians cover the steep incline, a seething, plunging mass of men and horses led by Capt. Hughes. In the immediate foreground is a group of Mexican dead, their elaborate costumes contrasting strongly with the motley and ragged garb of Doniphan's men.

Military Occupation of Havana. The Sixth Missouri Volunteers is shown entering Havana amid the great acclaim of the grateful Cuban population. In the foreground a group of Cuban ladies, gentlemen and children, in holiday abandon, from a veranda facing the Plaza des Armes, review the marching troops. A typical Cuban building in the background on the left is festooned with flags, American and Cuban, side by side, while through a vista of palm trees on the right is a glimpse of the Governor's palace. Col. Hardeman, on a spirited white horse, accompanied by several of his staff, escorted by a pair of ragged urchins, rides at the head of his regiment.

Two lunettes by N. C. Wyeth, who was born in Needham, Massachusetts. Pupil of Charles W. Reed, the Massachusetts State Normal Art School, Joseph de Camp, Eric Pape and Howard Pyle.

The Battle of Wilson's Creek, Aug. 10, 1861. This was one of the most important and desperate battles fought in the early part of the Civil War, in the long struggle between Federals and the Confederates, for the control of Missouri. The action took place on Aug. 10, 1861; the opening gun from Totten's Battery signaled its beginning, at the dawn of a hot, summery day, the battle lasting well into noon.

The Federal forces, numbering about $5,000 men, were in command of Gen. Nathaniel Lyon, who had marched out of Springfield to surprise and attack the Confederate forces encamped at Wilson's Creek, 12 miles away. The latter were under Gens. Ben McCulloch and Sterling Price, and numbered about 10,000.

Although McCulloch was the ranking officer, it was Sterling Price (on horseback at the right of the painting) who was the outstanding hero of the victorious Southerners. Whenever the danger was greatest and the battle most doubtful, thither would he hasten, and there would he stay until the danger was past. He would ride far into the firing line and peer into the thick smoke which tangled itself among the trees and bushes and clung to the ground as though it wished to hide the combatants from each other; would peer into it until through its rifts he could discern what the enemy was doing, and then his voice would ring out and officers and men would quickly spring forward to obey it. Long before the battle was over they had learned that they were fighting under one of the best and truest of soldiers.

Price's men were armed almost exclusively with shotguns, which forced the very close fighting. They had little or no other equipment except what they brought from their homes. It was the deadly work of the shotguns and the desperate intrepidity of the men that made the battle of Wilson's Creek one of the bloodiest of history. The total casualties in five hours' fighting were 2547. This is an engagement of 20,000 men.

This view of the battle represents a glimpse of the fighting about 8:30 in the morning, as the blue and gray fought on the natural barrier of the placid little stream from which the battle gets its name—Wilson's Creek.

The Battle of Westport, Oct. 23, 1864.—This pictured cavalry charge and countercharge, represents the desperate attempt of the Confederates to rush the Federal batteries in position along the ridge to the right. They were met by the Unionists of Missouri in one of the most spectacular cavalry engagements of the war. It happened at near the end of a seven-hour battle in the bright sun of a clear autumn day. The two masses of horsemen crashed at full speed "The Sound of the Impact,"

Can You "Whip Your Weight In Wild Cats"—Are You A Strong Red Blooded American?

That knows neither FEAR NOR FAILURE or a pale thin watery blooded man—WEAK, NERVOUS and IRRITABLE?

Think of the IRON FORCE, the grim determination and the MIGHTY COURAGE shown by the man in this picture. A pale thin watery blooded man would have probably turned and fled and been devoured by the beasts, just as SUCH A MAN IS OVERCOME AND DEVOURED BY REVERSES IN BUSINESS, HARD TIMES, by an attack of ill health or disaster of any kind.

With an IRON WILL, backed by plenty of iron in your blood, you are ready to tackle any job—nothing can stop you—but without it, you worry, fret and "stew," you are full of excuses and tales of bad luck but you do not bring home the "bacon." Don't try to "fool yourself" into thinking you are [illegible] blood and [illegible] when you have [illegible] to [illegible] the RED [illegible] BANK [illegible] and [illegible] you [illegible] in it.

Back West a few years ago, a strong [illegible] red-blooded man who was always ready to face any danger, who never thought of FEAR OR FAILURE, was often referred to as a man who could "Whip his Weight in Wild Cats."

In those days historians even wrote of us as a nation of RED-BLOODED AMERICANS but today about one person out of every [illegible] is said to suffer more or less from malnutrition or lack of [illegible] nourishment which is caused NOT by lack of food but [illegible] by LACK OF SUFFICIENT IRON in the blood to enable us to GET THE STRENGTH out of our food.

FOOD IS WORTH NOTHING UNLESS YOU GET THE STRENGTH AND NOURISHMENT OUT OF IT. In fact it often happens that the more you eat the more you starve as your digestive organs are unable to handle much food, when your blood LACKS IRON and you often think you have stomach trouble when it isn't that at all—SIMPLY EAT LESS AND TAKE IRON.

OUR FOREFATHERS ATE COARSE FOOD: the husks of grains, the skins of potatoes, and fruits which are RICH IN IRON but modern cookery throws all these things away—hence the alarming increase of IRON STARVATION OF THE BLOOD and its attendant ills.

Without iron your blood not only loses its power to change food into living cells and tissue but it can no longer carry oxygen to your brain. Without oxygen your brain becomes dull and heavy; your memory poor; your will power weak; you make bad decisions; things always seem to turn out wrong; you are often overcome by an overpowering sense of fear and failure. All the "fight" and "go-ahead" in you is taken out—A MAN IS ONLY PART OF A MAN WHEN HIS BLOOD LACKS IRON. When you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you find yourself nervous irritable and easily upset; when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night or have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease but take some organic iron like NUXATED IRON at once to help enrich your blood and revitalize your wornout exhausted nerves. Organic Nuxated Iron often increases the bodily and mental vigor of weak, tired, wornout, nervous people in two weeks' time. It's like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. You can even eat it if you wish. It will not blacken or injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It is entirely different from ordinary metallic iron which people usually take, and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron.

Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "NUXATED" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet.

Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

as related by a witness, "was heard above the roar of the guns."

The action depicted represents the critical and deciding engagement, not only of the Battle of Westport, but for the control of Missouri. The Confederate Gen. M. J. Thompson, in his official reports, claims that this charge turned the tide of battle disastrously against Gen. Price and his men.

Never again in the Civil War was Federal control of Missouri in danger.

Among the Union officers in this battle may be seen John F. Philips, later, for many years, Judge of the Federal Court of Kansas City, and Thomas T. Crittenden, who became Governor of Missouri.

Lunette by Adolphe Blondheim of Provincetown, Mass. — Vauquois Heights, the most perfect example of German fortification along the Meuse-Argonne front, was attacked and captured on the morning of the 26th of September, 1918, by the Thirty-fifth Division (Missouri and Kansas troops.) The victory came after four years of unsuccessful attempts on the part of France to dislodge the Germans from their stronghold.

To add to the many difficulties confronting our troops—the heaviest fog of the season had fallen on the valley. This dense fog, and the smoke from the barrage, made it impossible for the men to see the enemy 40 yards distant.

The painter has endeavored to show in our picture a detachment of the Thirty-fifth Division, advancing through the smoke of bursting shells. In the immediate foreground is a group of infantry in action. The fire from the machine guns has been stopped, and the Germans are about to surrender. However, there are similar nests to be "mopped up."

Cured His Piles

Now 88 Years Old But works At Trade of Blacksmith and Feels Younger Since Piles Are Gone.

The oldest active blacksmith in Michigan is still pounding his anvil in the town of Homer—thanks to my internal method for treating piles.

Mr. Jacob Lyon, Homer, Mich.

I wish that you could hear him tell of his many experiences with ointments, salves, dilators, etc., before he tried my method. Here is a letter just received from him:

Mr. E. R. Page, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir: I want you to know what your treatment has done for me. I had suffered with piles for many years and used suppositories and all kinds of treatments, but never got relief until I tried yours. Am now completely cured. Although I am 88 years old, and the oldest active blacksmith in Michigan, I feel years younger since the piles have left me. I will surely recommend it to all I know who suffer this way. You can use my letter any way you wish and I hope it will lead others to try this wonderful remedy.

Yours truly,
J. L. LYON

There are thousands of afflicted people suffering with piles who have never yet tried the one sensible way of treating them.

Don't be cut. Don't waste money on foolish salves, ointments, dilators, etc., but send today for a Free Trial of my internal method for the healing of Piles.

No matter whether your case is of long standing or recent development—whether it is occasional or permanent—you should send for this free trial treatment.

No matter where you live—no matter what your age or occupation—if you are troubled with piles, my method will relieve you promptly.

This liberal offer of free treatment is too important for you to neglect a single day. Write now. Send no money. Simply mail the coupon—but do this now—TODAY.

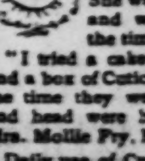
BABY DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES

On Face and Head. Hard and Red. Itching Terrible. Cuticura Heals.

"When my baby was two weeks old hard red pimples began breaking out on her face and head. They caused terrible itching and when they broke would form a scale, which took her hair all out. She was cross and fretful and was disfigured for the time being.



"I tried a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. By the time they were gone her face and head were healed." (Signed) Mrs. Mollie Fry, Hest, Missouri.

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum usually prevents skin troubles.

Buying an Income for Old Age, When Personal Earning Stops

Among the thousands of Missouri men and women who have bought Union Electric 7% preferred stock during the past three years, a great many are buying the income that will make them safe, comfortable and independent in old age.

They know this business is PERMANENT—because it is an indispensable public service. They know it is honestly capitalized, as proven by a thorough State appraisal. They know it cannot issue any security except with the State's approval, for purposes approved by the State. They know the business is honestly and well managed. They know its relations with its employes and its customers are fair and friendly. They know that while the business remains in corporate ownership, under State regulation, its 7% preferred stock dividends are little if any less certain than the income from Government bonds, which pay much less than 7% interest. They know that if City or State ever buys the business, their preferred stock shares will INCREASE in market value, because of the placing of public credit back of the business. Knowing these facts, these investors who are buying income for old age regard Union Electric 7% preferred stock as thoroughly safe for that purpose.

Meanwhile they have the satisfaction of knowing that their savings, so invested, help to develop the State they live in: help to make more work and wages here in Missouri.

The price is par, $100 a share for cash, or $102 a share on a ten-payment plan, under which buyers pay $10.20 a share down and $10.20 a month for nine months and draw 5% interest on their installment payments with the privilege of withdrawing all such payments, WITH INTEREST, any time before the last payment is made.

Break Chest Colds With Red Peppers

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings the quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

When heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints, relief comes at once.

Nothing has such consentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub for colds, backache, sore muscles, stiff neck, lumbago, or the pains of rheumatism or neuritis, you feel the tingling heat.

In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering so you can hardly get about, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known.

NINE PAINTINGS AND OTHER ART WORKS DELIVERED TO STATE

in action firing at a possible periscope. Right behind the gun are two racks of depth bombs, the "ash cans," some of them painted in red lead.

The figure in the foreground on the aft conning tower is that of Capt. Taussig, who at sea wore a Western lumberman's coat over his uniform. To the right are the shell men, each carrying a four-inch flatnosed projectile, which because of its peculiar shape will not glance off the water, but find and penetrate its submerged target. On and around the depth bomb racks are some officers and men, then the rest of the gun crew. On the horizon on a following sea come the transports, resplendent in their camouflage, which by the way, were drawn right from the camouflage models supplied by the Navy Department. Their khaki colored load can be plainly seen.

The painting also conveys the idea of the convoy scheme, and furthermore, shows the heroic personal touch, and that the navy was there with the fighting punch. Here is the bluejacket as he really is, and on a real navy ship, not on an ex-German liner. After all the story of the navy in the war will center on the convoy and the destroyers, and Taussig's "We Are Ready Now" will stand forever as the cry.

It is a notable fact that this is the first monumental mural painting in honor of the navy in this country to be placed on the walls of a public building not under the control of the naval authorities.

Decorative painting, by Carlo Gino Venanzi, who was born at Assisi, Italy, and is a resident of Kansas City, Mo. Venanzi is responsible for all of the decorative painting in the Soldiers and Sailors' Museum.

WILL TRY TO EVANGELIZE RUSSIA

Pastor William Fetler Going Back With Well-Equipped Band.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Pastor William Fetler, formerly head of the Baptist Church at Petrograd, who fled to America in 1915, after having been exiled to Siberia by order of the Russian Emperor, is going back to try to evangelize Russia. He is taking a band of about 25 Russians who are to travel with him as evangelists.

The band is well equipped and is taking a large quantity of clothing, a nurse, an American musical director and an expert translator. The evangelists have had three years' training in theology and all are expert musicians. "We shall teach the Bolshevists to sing 'The Glory Song,'" said the musical director.

YOU'LL GET RID OF BLACKHEADS SURE

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin. Pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get the blackheads out after they become hard. The calonite powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.

For your coffee—
a constant supply of rich milk

How annoying it is to want to serve coffee and not be able to because there's no cream in the house!

Many women first used Libby's Evaporated Milk in emergencies like this—and when they found how rich and cream-like this milk was—and what a delightful flavor it gave—they began to use it for all milk purposes.

Now there are thousands of women who have learned the joy of using Libby's Evaporated Milk, the convenience and economy of having a constant supply of pure, rich milk—and they will use no other.

This milk comes from some of the richest dairying sections of the United States—districts that are famous for their rich milk and cream.

It is selected by Libby's experts—packed with the famous Libby skill—and comes to you as pure and perfect a product as human intelligence can provide.

FAMOUS OLD RECIPE FOR COUGH SYRUP

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU WASH YOUR HAIR WITH

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

SERATO NEXT SOLOIST AT ZACH'S CONCERTS

Eminent Italian Violinist Returns as Symphony Artist After Long Absence.

Arrigo Serato, a distinguished Italian violinist, who has not been heard in this city for several years, will be the soloist at the symphony concerts next Friday and Saturday, at the Odeon. His offering will be d'Ambrosio's Concerto for Violin in B Minor, Op. 29. The same concerts give opportunity for Director Zach's annual tribute to Richard Wagner. The second half of the program is devoted to excerpts from three of his operas, "Tannhauser," "The Dusk of the Gods" and "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg." The complete program follows:

Overture to Sakuntala, in F Major, Op. 13....................Goldmark
Concerto for Vilin, in B Minor, Op. 29 ....d'Ambrosio
I. Grandioso; Molto moderato e sostenuto.
II. Andante.
III. Allegro.
Selections from the operas of Richard Wagner:
Tannhaeuser:
Overture and Bacchanale.
Dusk of the Gods:
(a) Siegfried's Rhine Journey.
(b) Siegfried's Death Music.
The Mastersingers of Nuremberg:
Prelude.

Albin Steindel, who this year shares the first desk of the first violins with Concertmaster Gusikoff, will be soloist at today's popular concert at the Odeon, and will play Saint-Saens' Concerto in B Minor, for violin, No. 3, Op. 61. The program follows:

Overture to Zanetta............Auber
Four Indian Love Lyrics—Woodforde-Finden
I. The Temple Bells.
II. Less Than the Dust.
III. Kashimiri Song.
IV. Till I Wake.
A Night in Lisbon.......Saint-Saens
Concerto in B Minor, for violin, No. 3, Op. 61.
I. Allegro non troppo.
II. Andanntino quasi allegro.
III. Molto moderato; Allegro non troppo.
Nocturne, from Music to A Midsummer Night's Dream ...Mendelssohn
Waltz, Artist's Life..........Strauss

Leo Sowerby, an American composer and pianist, will be the soloist at next week's regular concerts, presenting his own pianoforte concerto, in addition to which the orchestra will play his overture, "Comes Autumn Time." The third number on the program will be Rachmaninoff's Second Symphony.

WASHINGTON U. GLEE CLUB TO GIVE CONCERTS THIS WEEK

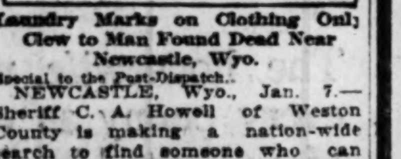
The eighth annual concert of the Washington University Glee and Mandolin Clubs will be given at the Odeon Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Wednesday evening will be "College Night" and Thursday evening "Society Night." The clubs are now on a tour of the Southwest.

R. E. Russell, soloist of the club, was an "overseas man," and following the signing of the armistice he toured Europe as a soloist, giving public and private concerts. He was made an entertainer under special orders from general headquarters of the American Expeditionary Force then at Chaumont, France. In May, 1919, he was assigned the leading role as soloist in the famous "Hello Yanks" theatrical troupe, and with this troupe he toured France in all the cities where the American troups and hospitals were located, closing his engagements at Antwerp, Belgium, 1919.

Another specialty feature of the concert will be "Piano Specialty" by Jerry Simon, who gives an imitation of saxophone playing.

The clubs consist of 70 members. The program will include ensemble numbers, both classic and popular; solos, both instrumental and vocal, and black-face comedy numbers. The clubs will be supported by the Bella Vista Orchestra, a group of Washington University students which has won more than a local reputation and is rated with the "Louisiana Five," the leading orchestra of the Southwest. The members of the Bella Vista Orchestra are: Jerry Simon, piano; Reginald Little, xylophone; George E. Heimuller, violin; Gerard Johnston, banjo; Douglas Wood, saxophone; Dean Eaton, cello; Irwin Cloud, drummer.

NATION-WIDE ATTEMPT TO IDENTIFY MURDERED MAN



Laundry Marks on Clothing Only Clew to Man Found Dead Near Newcastle, Wyo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWCASTLE, Wyo., Jan. 7.—Sheriff C. A. Howell of Weston County is making a nation-wide search to find someone who can identify the remains of a man who was found shot to death several weeks ago a short distance from this town, the county seat. The body was in a bad state of decomposition. The man was about 5 feet 9 inches tall. He had been shot through the head twice.

The only marks of possible identification were laundry marks on the underclothing. The markings on the underdrawers are shown above. A khaki shirt which the man wore was marked either 7000, 7600 or 7800.

Get Rid of Piles or Fistula and Improve Your Health

READ WHAT THE LATE EUGENE DAUER OF CAHOKIA, FORMER STATE SENATOR OF ST. LOUIS, WROTE:

Cahokia, Ill., April 10, 1918.

W. P. Henrich, Ph. G., M. D.

Dear Doctor—It is now two years since you treated me for a very bad case of Bleeding Piles from which I had suffered for over four years and lately you cured me of two complete Fistulas. I am now satisfied that I am permanently cured and I feel so glad and thankful over the matter that I am anxious that any other person suffering with any of the above complaints should know that there is a Reliable Specialist that can cure them without the knife or chloroform.

I will give you permission to refer them to me and I will very willingly answer any inquiries they wish to make me in regard to your treatments of the above mentioned diseases. I will further state that I have not been hesitating in recommending you to all sufferers from the diseases you so successfully make a specialty of treating. I am Yours very truly, EUGENE DAUER.

Now don't hesitate any longer about improving your health by getting rid of your Piles or Fistula as Mr. Dauer did, but call at once in the Scott Building, Room 205, for a Free Examination and Advice. Consultation Hours from 9 to 1 and 2 to 4 daily except Sunday.

W. P. HENRICH, Ph. G., M. D.,

Widow Preferred to Meet Death at Home

"For many years I suffered from stomach trouble. All the doctors I tried helped me but little. All said I would have to go to hospital and be operated on for gall stones or I would not live much longer. I told them I preferred to meet death at home. One day I picked up an advertisement of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and since taking a course of it more than a year ago have not had a single pain in my stomach, have good appetite and can eat anything." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph (3 stores), Enderle Drug Co. (5 stores), Cloughly-Koppenbrink, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., H. J. WINTER GARDEN SHOW AND MUSICAL COMEDY

"Cinderella on Broadway" and "Honey Girl," Adapted From "Checkers," Tonight.

"Cinderella on Broadway," another of the New York Winter Garden extravaganzas, and "Honey Girl," a musical comedy version of "Checkers," the racing play by the late Henry M. Blossom of St. Louis, are tonight's theatrical arrivals, the former at the Shubert-Jefferson, the latter at the American.

The usual Winter Garden procedure is to borrow a hint of plot from fable or fiction, connect it in some way with modern life and dress it up with lavish scenery, a big chorus and a musical score. Thus were fabricated "Sinbad," "Monte Cristo Jr." and others; and thus was made "Cinderella on Broadway," which utilizes the fairy story of Cinderella and Prince Charming.

There are 21 scenes, including the "Toy Shop," "The Slipper Staircase" and "Cinderella Ball," and 29 musical numbers, provided by Bert Grant, author of the one-time popular success, "Everybody Works but Father."

Some 30 comedians, vocalists and dancers are listed as principals, among them John T. Murray, Brendel and Burt, Vivien Oakland, Llora Hoffman, Alexandra Dagmar, Ernest F. Young, Walter Brower, Al Sexton, the Purcella brothers, Harmose Jose, Burtress Dietch, the Glorias and Glen Darling. A chorus of 75 is promised and an augmented orchestra. Owing to the length of the performance, the curtain will rise throughout the week at 8 o'clock for evening performances and at 2 for matinees.

Von Tilzer's Music.

The adaptation of the book of "Checkers" into that of "Honey Girl" was made by Edward Clark, who changed the locale from Chicago to New Orleans. Neville Fleeson wrote the lyrics and Albert von Tilzer contributed the music. Blossom's plot is said to have been adhered to closely.

The company seems virtually the same as that with which the work opened at the Cohan & Harris Theater, New York, on May 3, 1920. Edna Bates retains the title role of Honora ("Honey") Parker, as does Lynne Overman that of David ("Checkers") Graham. Others of the original cast listed to appear here are Peter Lang, Rene Riano, Robert Armstrong, William Mortimer, Edmund Elton, Mercer Templeton, Cissie Sewell, Charlie Yorkshire and Lucretia Craig. The work is in three acts, and introduces a "Bluebird" number, with characters from Maeterlinck's play.

Next week's announcements are "The Sweetheart Shop," a musical comedy backed by St. Louis capital, at the American; and a return engagement of the famous extravaganza, "Chu Chin Chow," at the Shubert-Jefferson.

"Bathing Girls" at Orpheum.

Bothwell Browne and his "Los Angeles Bathing Beauties" are announced as the feature of this week's bill at the Orpheum. Others listed are Harriet Rempel in a romantic playlet, "The Story of a Picture;" Thomas F. Swift and Mary H. Kelley in a farce, "Gum Drops;" James Mullen and Anna Francis in an act called "I Can Get What Is Left;" Joe Rome and Al Gaut, comedy dancers; Neal Abel, who makes faces; Clyde Rinaldo, presenting "La Graciosa," in a scenic production called "Visions in Fairyland," and Cummings and White, gymnasts.

Headliners at other vaudeville houses are announced as follows: Columbia—Maurice Downey, Irish comedian, in "O'Brien, Mgr. and Prop." Grand — Billie Burke's "Tango Shoes." Rialto—Elsie Pilcer and Dudley Douglas in songs, dances and chatter. Empress—A Greenwich village romance called "A Little Cafe." The Gayety offers Sam Howe's "Jollities of 1920," a musical show in two acts and 10 scenes.

A Splendid Hair Grower

Found at Last—Shows Results in Few Days or Nothing to Pay.

This Man Is Getting Bald. Parisian Sage Is Just What Is Needed for All Such Cases.

Here is good news for all men and women whose hair is faded, dry, streaked and scraggly—is falling out badly and whose scalps are covered with dandruff and itch like mad.

Your druggist can now supply you with the genuine Parisian Sage which is guaranteed to quickly and safely banish every sign of disgusting dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair and stimulate a new growth, or money refunded.

Thousands can testify to the excellent results from its use: some who feared baldness now glory in their abundant hair, while others who were annoyed for years with dandruff and itching head got a clean, healthy scalp after just a few days' use of this simple home treatment.

Parisian Sage is a scientific preparation that supplies hair needs. It's easy to use, perfectly harmless, not sticky or greasy, and even the first application usually makes the hair and scalp look and feel 100 per cent better.

If you want to save your hair, make it always look its best, and start a new growth, don't delay—begin using Parisian Sage now—tonight. A large bottle costs you nothing if it does not give perfect satisfaction.

RUPTURE CURED WITHOUT KNIFE

Protection

There may be a million dollars worth of merchandise loaded in trucks, hurrying to freight depots and wharves, stopped dead by the upraised hand of this Guardian of the Law.

There may be financial giants and dignitaries of the highest rank fussing and fuming in luxurious limousines because of the delay.

That doesn't matter. The only thing that does matter is the safety, the welfare of the public—of everyone; whether that person has but a few pennies jingling in his purse or a bank account that mounts into dizzy figures.

That is the duty of the traffic cop—and he does it. He doesn't stand alone. It isn't his star, shiny buttons or size that give power to his commands. It is the force back of him—the will—the wealth—determination of a great city.

Stationed at the buying corners of America for nearly a third of a century, has been a staunch, true guardian of Baking Powder value, the Calumet trade mark, the well known blue and orange Calumet label with the Indian head.

It is the firm, upraised hand against inferior quality—against impurity, uncertainty, unfair dealing and greed of excessive profits. It is the protector of those who are not acquainted with Baking Powder quality—of those who are striving to raise food standards and reduce food costs.

And it does protect. It protects because back of every can of Calumet Baking Powder is an inflexible policy of honesty in manufacturing and honesty in selling. Back of every can is a set purpose to give every buyer of Calumet the highest of quality, the utmost of purity and to do this at the lowest possible cost to the consumer.

Back of every can, are the big Calumet Factories—the largest baking powder plants in the world, the most modernly equipped, the most sanitary. Here a corps of food experts, of chemists and of bakers are constantly testing, testing, testing; proving the purity of every ingredient proving the leavening strength of Calumet—proving its economy—protecting you against all possibility of an inferior or an uncertain leavener; fulfilling in every way our every obligation to the buying public.

The housewife who must count every penny as well as the women of unlimited means gets this protection—no matter where she buys Calumet or when.

Calumet has no equal—no superior. It received highest awards at the World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago. It was granted highest honors at the Paris Exposition, Paris, France. It is sold at a moderate price. It contains only such ingredients as have been officially approved by U. S. Food Authorities. It is pure in the can—pure in the baking.

Calumet is the biggest selling baking powder in the world today, because—and only because—it is the most dependable, "Best by Test" and never anything else.

MORE THAN NINETEEN MILLION AGATE LINES

The Advertising Figures for the entire year 1920, emphasize that the

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Is pre-eminently first choice of both Home and National buyers of space, a position retained for many, many consecutive years.

ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS WERE BROKEN

With the Tremendous Volume of 19,062,680 Agate Lines!

Notwithstanding the fact that the Post-Dispatch gained 5,726,560 agate lines during the previous year (1919), the gain for 1920 was practically two million lines—to be exact, 1,979,880 lines.

The following four tables show how this tremendous volume was placed and also show how the other three St. Louis newspapers compare with St. Louis' giant of newspaperdom, the Post-Dispatch.

Total Paid Advertising (Exclusive of City Legal or Exchange)

Entire Year 1920

		Agate Lines
POST-DISPATCH		19,062,680
Globe-Democrat		13,487,700
Star	(No Sunday)	8,671,200
Times	(No Sunday)	4,203,600

Post-Dispatch broke all records by nearly two million lines, not including more than 5000 columns omitted for lack of space.

Post-Dispatch exceeded the Globe-Democrat, the next largest St. Louis paper, 5,574,980 lines.

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Star and Times, the two other evening newspapers combined, 6,187,880 lines.

Home Merchants' Advertising

Entire Year 1920

		Agate Lines
POST-DISPATCH		11,389,280
Globe-Democrat		6,885,300
Star	(No Sunday)	6,635,100
Times	(No Sunday)	3,105,900

Post-Dispatch exceeded its best previous record by 1,835,120 agate lines.

Post-Dispatch exceeded the Globe-Democrat, the next largest newspaper, 4,503,980 lines.

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Star and Times, the other two evening papers Combined, 1,648,280 lines.

National Advertising

Entire Year 1920

		Agate Lines
POST-DISPATCH		3,154,480
Globe-Democrat		2,927,700
Star	(No Sunday)	1,198,500
Times	(No Sunday)	750,600

Post-Dispatch exceeded the nearest newspaper, the Globe-Democrat, more than 200,000 lines.

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Star and Times, both other evening papers combined, 1,205,380 lines.

Post-Dispatch omitted more than thirteen hundred columns for lack of space during the acute print paper shortage of the earlier months of 1920.

Real Estate and Wants

Entire Year 1920

		Agate Lines
POST-DISPATCH		4,518,920
Globe-Democrat		3,674,700
Star	(No Sunday)	837,600
Times	(No Sunday)	347,100

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Globe-Democrat and Star combined, 6620 lines. Wise buyers of newspaper advertising space when placing their business never overlook the volume of "classified" advertising carried by a newspaper. They realize that the medium with the big volume of real estate, wants, etc., is the paper that has the most readers. Every large city has one newspaper that is pre-eminent in this branch of advertising. The above table proves that in St. Louis that one newspaper is the Post-Dispatch.

Post-Dispatch Makes Tremendous GAINS In Total Paid Advertising

The figures for the entire year of 1919 show a Gain of more than Five Million Lines over 1918. On top of this, 1920 shows a Gain of nearly Two Million Lines. This makes the total gains for the past two years 7,706,440 lines. Truly this growth is a remarkable achievement, aggregating almost as many lines as the St. Louis Star printed during the entire year of 1920, and more than that paper printed in Total Paid Advertising for the entire year of 1919.

The city circulation of the Sunday Post-Dispatch is DOUBLE that of any other St. Louis newspaper, and 50% greater daily.

IMPLEMENT DEALERS' CONVENTION THIS WEEK

1200 From Nine States Expected to Attend Gathering Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The Mississippi Valley Implement Dealers' Association will hold its fourteenth annual convention at the Planters Hotel Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Advance reservations indicate that there will be more than 1200 implement, vehicle and hardware dealers in attendance from Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky.

St. Louis is the leading implement, vehicle and hardware market of the United States, and is the center of the greatest agricultural production of the world. The sales for the year of 1920 in implements and heavy hardware were over $35,000,000, while the vehicle sales—buggies and farm wagons—was $6,000,000.

Tuesday's program will be devoted entirely to the business of the association, reports of the officers and various committees.

Wednesday morning the main address will be by William McC. Martin, chairman of the Board of Federal Reserve Banks of St. Louis, who will speak on "Financing Agricultural Trade Through the Federal Reserve Banks."

T. N. Witten of Trenton, Mo., originator of "The Trenton Idea," will instruct the implement dealers in "Selling the Country Community to Its Own People."

F. R. Todd, Moline, Ill., vice president of Deere & Co., who has made a careful study of the implement, agricultural and commercial conditions of the United States, will speak Tuesday morning on "The Present Outlook of the Implement Industry."

The annual banquet will be held Thursday evening. Mayor Kiel will be the guest of honor. The St. Louis Implement, Vehicle and Hardware Association will be host at the banquet. The Entertainment Committee is composed of A. T. Stevens, chairman; P. E. Ebrenz, J. N. Leonard, W. R. Campbell, W. R. Ellis, L. A. Geserich and Norman Champ.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce will entertain the visiting implement and vehicle dealers with a smoker Wednesday night.

450,000 Autos in Texas.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 8.—State highway officials declare that indications are that automobile registrations in Texas for 1920 will reach approximately 450,000. A total of 331,310 were registered last year. With only a few days of 1920 remaining, registrations totaled 426,058, and reports from tax collectors of a number of counties still were to be received.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, A. N. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Get Rid of Fat Where It Shows

Do you realize that nothing but good, substantial food, and plenty of it, will build muscular energy and that you must eat, and eat heartily, in order to retain your strength? Dieting weakens you and over-exercise tires you, because the former retards the development of muscular energy and the latter consumes too much of it. That is why you find the old-fashioned method of fat-reduction such a hardship. Why not get rid of your excess fat in the harmless, scientific, easy way by taking a harmless Marmola Prescription Tablet after each meal and at bedtime? Marmola Prescription Tablets are prepared in exact accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription, are perfectly safe to use and have been used by hundreds of persons in this country and Europe with wonderful success. Within a short time you can be getting rid of two, three or four pounds of fat a week. No starvation diet or tiresome exercises are needed. You can be comfortable and you can enjoy the food you like and want. Even after taking off many pounds there will be no flabbiness or wrinkles remaining, and you will feel 100% better. Any good druggist can supply Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar per case, or they will be mailed direct in plain wrapper and postpaid if you send the price to the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich.

The Famous Players-Missouri Corporation Presents the Week's Attractions in St. Louis' Leading Theaters:

THE FIRST PARAMOUNT SUPER-PRODUCTION FOR 1921

Will be presented to the people of St. Louis today, beginning an engagement of one week in the city's finest photoplay theaters. Picture enthusiasts who saw "Male and Female," "Why Change Your Wife?" and "Humoresque" are familiar with Paramount super-productions. They know that Paramount pictures are supreme and that the Paramount trademark is an absolute guarantee of good entertainment. If you wish to purchase your amusement with the discretion you exercise in buying commodities, see

WILLIAM DE MILLE'S GREATEST ACHIEVEMENT

Based on Cosmo Hamilton's novel, "His Friend and His Wife," this photoplay tells an amazing tale of human love and human passions. It will startle and appeal; and it has dramatic punches that will bring you right to the edge of your chair. It is the story of an impulsive youth and a neglected wife, who, under the kiss of magic moonlight, yield to—

"MIDSUMMER MADNESS"

WITH

LILA LEE JACK HOLT CONRAD NAGEL LOIS WILSON

The cast, made up of two well-known actors and two women equally as famous, is one of the best ever seen in a single picture. Jack Holt for years has been recognized as one of the screen's most popular leading men. Conrad Nagel played opposite Alice Brady in the famous stage production of "Forever After" and played the lead in "The Fighting Chance." Everybody knows Lila Lee, who was a star as a child. Lois Wilson has been seen as Wallace Reid's leading woman in many productions. Appearing in roles which fit their talents perfectly, this group of players gives "Midsummer Madness" the final touch of perfection that makes it one of the greatest pictures ever produced.

TODAY AND ALL WEEK IN ST. LOUIS' THREE FINEST THEATERS

MISSOURI

Grand and Lucas

Today's program will include an overture, Offenbach's "Orpheus;" Missouri News; "Will You Remember," a duet from "Maytime," sung by Doris Kesner and Grant Kimbell; "Bungalow Troubles," a Mack Sennett comedy featuring Louise Fazenda; and the prologue from "Pagliacci," a solo by Giovanno Petrucci.

DeLuxe performances are given at 2:00, 4:00, 6:45 and 9:00 p. m. on Sundays and Saturdays. DeLuxe performances are given at 3:00, 7:00 and 9:00 p. m. week days. Sunday prices are 50 cents at all times. A bargain matinee is given week days and Saturdays at 30 cents. The performance is continuous daily from 1:00 to 11:00 p. m.

CRITERION

Broadway near Olive

The Criterion News, Topics of the Day and the Sunshine Comedy, "All Wrong," will be supplementary features on the programme, together with the musical selections by the Criterion Orchestra.

The performance is continuous from 11:00 A. M. to 11:00 p. m. daily. An admission price of 50 cents is charged at all times Sunday, with the bargain matinee week days and Saturdays at 30 cents.

The Criterion is the world's most beautiful little theater and is the rendezvous of St. Louis shoppers.

DELMONTE

Delmar at Clara

The Sunshine Comedy, "All Wrong," "Mutt and Jeff," the Delmonte News Weekly and Topics of the Day will make up the programme of short features at the Delmonte, which is the world's largest one-floor theater.

The Delmonte performance is continuous on Sunday from 2:00 to 11:00 p. m.; week days 2:30 to 11 p. m. Sunday the admission price is 50 cents; week days a bargain matinee is given at 30 cents.

Continuous 2:00 to 11:00

KINGS

KING'S HIGHWAY NEAR DELMAR

The Kings Theater, changing its programme Sunday and Thursday, is offering more genuine entertainment than any theater in St. Louis. First-run photoplays and five acts of vaudeville at the Kings popular prices unquestionably is the city's best amusement bargain. The Kings actually gives you five acts of vaudeville free, as the photoplay programme is as good, week in and week out, as that presented in any other theater.

CONSTANCE BINNEY In "Something Different"

AND VAUDEVILLE

"Something Different" is from the pen of Alice Duer Miller, who wrote "The Charm School," Wallace Reid's latest starring vehicle. It tells an amusing story of a young heiress who is bored with life and craves excitement. The Kings performance is continuous today from 2:00 to 11:00 p. m. A daily matinee is given week days at 2:30, with evening performances at 7:00 and 9:00. The prices for today and evenings are 28 and 44 cents; all seats are 28 cents at the week-day matinee.

"Hearts Are Trumps" will begin a three-day engagement Thursday. The Kings is the only theater in St. Louis changing a vaudeville programme twice weekly.

THIS ADVERTISEMENT IS WORTH MONEY—PRESERVE IT!

In an effort to direct the attention of the people of St. Louis to motion picture advertising, and to offer encouragement to those who read the advertisements, any of the above theaters will allow five cents in part payment for an admission ticket from January 17 to 22, inclusive. If you clip this entire advertisement and use it as a directory all this week, you can reduce the price of your movies five cents next week. This is not a money-making scheme, but a sincere effort to furnish the public with a complete list of attractions for the entire week and to get the public to read and preserve this advertisement.

The Tell Tale of Gray Hair

To be judged ten years older than you actually are is the tell-tale of gray, streaked hair, which detracts from a youthful appearance as much as a wrinkled face does.

Women, everywhere, prefer the easy, harmless "Brownatone" method that tints gray, streaked, faded or bleached hair, instantly, to any shade of brown or black.

Without injury to hair or scalp, "Brownatone" imparts natural, lasting colors that defy detection. Does not rub or wash off, and requires just a few moments to apply.

Guaranteed absolutely harmless. Druggists everywhere sell and recommend "Brownatone." Two sizes—50c and $1.50 with easy, complete directions. Two colors—shading from "Golden to Medium Brown" and "Dark Brown to Black."

Special Free Trial Offer.

For a free trial bottle of "Brownatone" send to The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 660 Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky., enclosing 11c to pay postage, packing and war tax.

MACK TRUCK MOVES TO MARTIN BUILDING

The International Mack Corp., of which J. C. Smith is St. Louis manager, which has been located for several years at 2109 Olive street, has taken a long-term lease on the premises at the southwest corner of Twenty-eighth and Pine streets, which was formerly occupied by the Martin Motor Car Co.

The company there has large sales and service quarters which will be well equipped for the handling of repairs and service on Mack trucks.

EXIDE FACTORY TAKES OVER ST. LOUIS SALES

The Electrical Storage Battery Co. of Philadelphia, makers of the Exide Battery, has taken over the business of the Exide Battery Depots, Inc., which, since 1901, has handled the distribution of the Exide products throughout this territory. H. B. Marshall will act as manager of the St. Louis branch, and the two service stations at 3408 Lindell avenue and Twenty-first and Walnut streets will be continued. The executive offices will be in the Federal Reserve Bank.

The Exide Battery Depots, Inc., was formed in 1901, to install for the Union Electric Co. the huge storage batteries which acted as a reserve supply during the World's Fair. These batteries are still in service, and are thrown on the line in case of accident in cutting off the current from the power plant.

REPUBLIC RUBBER TO RESUME OPERATION

The Flynn-Guentler Rubber Co. has been informed that the Republic Rubber Corporation will resume operations a week from Monday and by the following week will be in full operation.

The tire, tube and solid tire departments will resume on three eight-hour turns on Monday, Jan. 10, while the mechanical departments will resume on Monday, Jan. 17.

Orders received since the plant shut down, Dec. 23, for inventory and repairs, are expected to keep the plant in operation for some time.

AMRINE WITH DORRIS CO.

Webster Colburn of the Dorris Motor Car Co. announces that L. H. Amrine has connected himself with the truck sales department of the Dorris Co. in an important capacity.

Amrine has, for the past three years, been vice president of the Scudder Motor Truck Co. in St. Louis. He is one of the best-known of the commercial car men in St. Louis, and for the past year has served as chairman of the Commercial Car Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association.

It is the purpose of the Dorris Motor Car Co. to extend its production of trucks and their sale very materially, and it is to enter this extension that Amrine has connected himself with the company.

Drug Co. Leases Planters Suite.

A suite of rooms on the parlor floor of the Planters Hotel has been leased by the St. Louis Drug and Chemical Co. in order to meet the requirements of an increased membership. A formal opening is being planned at which time the club rooms will be open to inspection. The quarters of the club have been on the main floor.

PACKARD DRIVERS INSTITUTE MEETS

The first meeting of the spring term of the Packard Drivers' Institute, held on Tuesday evening, Jan. 4, was attended by 350 men.

Mr. J. E. Mills, chairman, gave a short talk welcoming all students to the spring term, in stating the reasons for the organization of the P. D. I., namely, welfare and safety on the streets of St. Louis; also better automotive transportation by training drivers to become more careful and efficient.

Mr. P. S. Jones, president P. D. I. Benefit Association, delivered a short address, extending an invitation to all new members of the P. D. I. to join the P. D. I. Benefit Association as associate members.

The chairman introduced Mr. P. S. Russell, president and general manager of Packard Motor Car Co. of Missouri, who talked on what he desired the Packard Drivers' Institute to accomplish. Prof. Harry Lane King was appointed lecturer for the spring term and P. S. Jones director of the institute.

Mr. Clarence L. Howard, president of the Commonwealth Steel Co., was introduced and gave an interesting talk on safety. Mr. Howard said that the spirit of good fellowship if spread by the P. D. I. boys will tend to reduce the large number of accidents on our streets.

Others to talk were C. A. Bothell, manager truck sales department; Harry Lane King, Mr. Todd of the General Motors Corporation, and J. L. Garnage, graduate of 1920 P. D. I.

The following instructors were present: Mr. Bredenkoweter, Mr. Tiefenbrunn, Mr. Reeder, Mr. Thorell, Mr. Richter, Mr. Gaston and Mr. Todd.

TO HOLD MEETING OF KOKOMO TIRE DEALERS

On Tuesday there will be a meeting in St. Louis of all Kokomo Tire dealers in this territory. Zerweck-Grayson & Co., who are distributors for several states, has arranged for a number of Kokomo factory officials to be here to confer with the dealers.

In the afternoon a Kokomo Cord Tire will be built before the dealers. Technical men from the factory have arranged to bring to St. Louis the necesssary materials and machinery in order to show the dealers the various processes in the construction of cord tires.

The meeting will close with a dinner at 6:30. Among those who will be in St. Louis from the Kokomo factory are: D. L. Spraker, vice president; E. P. Logan, director of sales; W. W. Napier, district sales supervisor.

LEASES NEW QUARTERS FOR USED CAR DEPT.

The building at Twenty-third and Olive streets, until recently occupied by the Battery Service Co., has been leased by the Newell Motor Car Co., and will be used as a permanent location for its "Re-Conditioned" car department. The entire building will be devoted to display purposes, the partitions having been removed, and numerous other improvements made.

The proper name for a used car department has been long a matter of controversy. Numerous expressions have been used by various dealers. Newell believing the words such as "Rebuilt" and "Renewed" convey the wrong impression to the public, has coined the word "Re-Conditioned," which he believes will convey the idea that the car has been put in condition, although not actually rebuilt.

NEW COMPANY TO SELL DIAMOND T.

The distribution of Diamond T Trucks throughout the St. Louis territory has been taken over by a new organization, formed for that purpose, and it will be known as the Diamond T. Motor Truck Co. of St. Louis.

Joseph M. Grossmann, who, for sometime, has been connected with the automobile business in St. Louis, will be in active charge of the new concern. "Billie" Deitzel, formerly with the service department of the Martin Motor Truck Co., will be in charge of the shop and service work.

A temporary location has been secured at 3327 Locust streea. Arrangements are pending for the erection of a building centrally located as a permanent home.

TRAFFIC RESUMES TRUCK PRODUCTION

Production was resumed last week at the Traffic Motor Truck factory. A short time ago the factory ceased producing trucks in any quantity, due to the very unsettled condition which prevailed at that time in the motor truck business. Sufficient orders have accumulated during the period of inactivity to make it necessary to resume production. Conditions have so greatly changed that in the opinion of H. H. Hawke, sales manager, it will be but a short time until the factory is again running on full schedule.

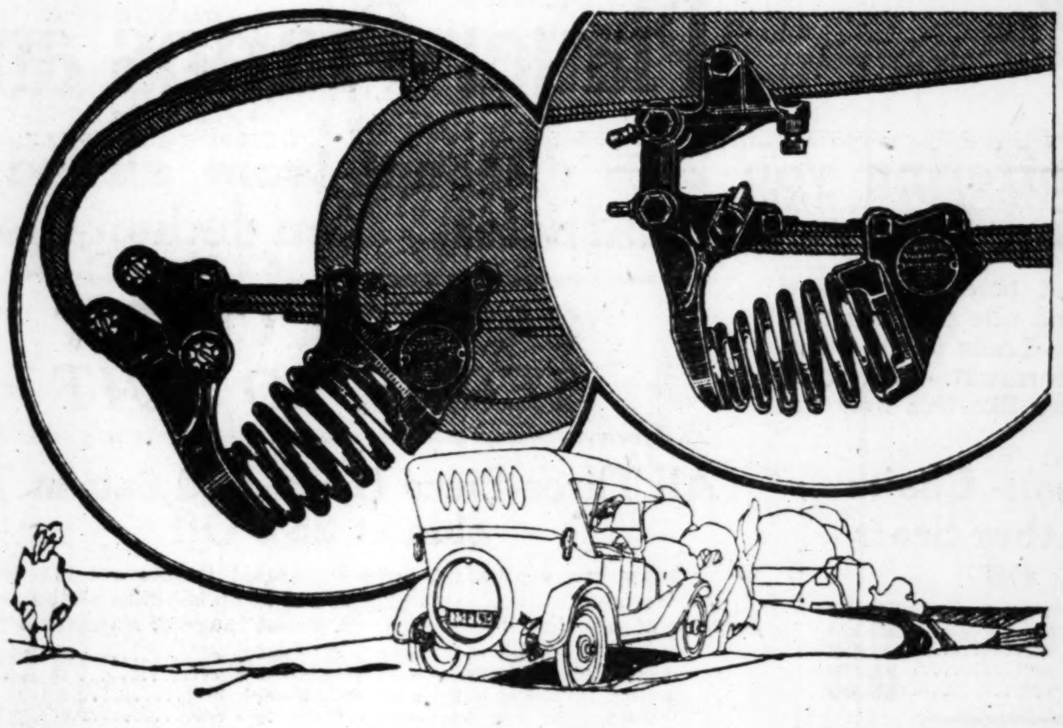
QUALITY NEWELL SAINT LOUIS



Announcing "Hasslers" for the Dodge Car!

YOU can now obtain Hassler Shock Absorbers for all models of Dodge Brothers Cars. The new "Hassler" embodies all the characteristic Hassler principles of design and construction—possessing all the advantages and attractiveness that caused one million car owners to buy Hasslers in the past.

With a set of Hasslers on your Dodge, you will have luxurious comfort, even while driving over roads that once seemed rough. Long trips will no longer fatigue the driver. The soft, resilient action of Hassler Shock Absorbers will give increased tire mileage, and will materially reduce depreciation.

A set of Hasslers consists of two front and two rear absorbers as shown in illustration. They are installed quickly and easily without changing any part of car. They are neat and smart in appearance—and decidedly unobtrusive. Most Dodge dealers have them.

As factory distributors for this territory we carry, at all times, a complete stock of Hassler Shock Absorbers. If your particular dealer cannot supply you—phone or write us.

Auburn Beauty-SIX prices for 1921 are commanding attention.

This is proved conclusively by the enthusiastic reception of Auburn's new price announcement. A saving of $200 on a car with twenty-one years' reputation for true quality and dollar for dollar value, presents a rare buying opportunity.

The response has been immediate and conclusive.

Without Auburn quality this price cut might be inconsiderable; with those features of time-tested utility and distinctive beauty which you have always associated with this car, the present price cannot help but create in your mind the desire for instant ownership.

Piston Rings

For cars which have poor compression or pump oil a set of "TELL-TALE" Rings is a good investment. "TELL-TALE" Rings have a patented "easy-wearing" surface which seats itself into a compression-tight fit within 100 miles, even when cylinders are worn and out-of-round.

The only non-clogging, patented, oil-controlling groove is guaranteed to stop oil pumping. It saves oil and keeps spark plugs clean.

THEATER TO COST $500,000 PLANNED FOR TRANSIENTS

Terminal Railway Said to Be Interested in Motion Picture House Projected on Chestnut Street.

NEW YEAR'S START INSPIRES REALTORS

Four Transactions Cited as Basis for Anticipation of Early Revival of Activities on Large Scale.

By BERRY MOORE.

The first week of the new year was of the most inspiring nature, events heralding a general revival of activities in the real estate field, according to agents and operators.

The noteworthy features were found in plans for a large moving picture theater in the Union Station district and in purchases of North Grand avenue and West Delmar properties, effected respectively by Edward Thornhill, for the James M. Carpenter estate and the Frank Obear Real Estate Co. As a South Grand avenue feature, the Hildenbrandt & Noble Real Estate Co. negotiated the sale of a large tract for the estate of the late Adolphus Busch.

The theater is to be erected on the south side of Chestnut street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, for a company headed by Albert E. Morelock, with offices in the Carleton Building. The site, which has been acquired through the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. and Albert T. Terry & Co., representing different interests, embraces 160x109 feet, beginning 30 feet west of Eighteenth street. It is vacant and available for immediate improvement. The plans contemplate a fireproof structure with a seating capacity of 2500. The cost is placed by Morelock at $500,000, not including the site. The theater is to be open both to white and negro persons, but the plans provide for separate reservations and entrances.

Morelock stated that the Terminal Railway Association was interested in the project, which has been promoted primarily to provide amusement for travelers passing through Union Station, he stated.

Third Chestnut Street Project.

This is the third operation launched recently on Chestnut street and the second carrying building plans on a large scale. The deal by which Isaac T. Cook, general manager of the Arcade Building, will obtain control of the half block on the south side of Chestnut street, from Tenth to Eleventh streets, recently announced in the Post-Dispatch, is to be finally executed tomorrow. While the nature of the building to be erected on this site has not been disclosed, it is understood that construction is to be started at once.

According to real estate circles, other plans for the upbuilding of downtown Chestnut street are in the formative stage, the most notable of these involving acquisition of the old city hall block at Eleventh and Chestnut streets, extending through to Market street.

The James M. Carpenter estate has purchased the three-story business block at the northwest corner of Grand avenue and Hebert street, recently constructed by Wayne Stedlin, who was the grantor in the transaction. The price paid was not made public, but it is understood that it will run well into six figures. The deal was handled by Edward Thornhill.

The first floor of the building is divided into commodious stores, the corner being occupied by the Ebelling Jewelry Co., an important interest of North Grand avenue. The upper floors are divided into offices.

The corner which is regarded as one of the most attractive on North Grand avenue, was acquired by Clarkson Carpenter and James M. Carpenter Jr., as a permanent holding for the James M. Carpenter estate.

Clarkson Carpenter in discussing the transaction yesterday, said that six acres at Grand avenue and North Market street formed the nucleus of the James M. Carpenter estate, which was purchased by his father in 1865.

Bought for $200 an Acre.

"As I recall it from conversation with him," said Carpenter, "my father gave $1200 for this little tract, paying $600 cash, which he found it necessary to go back to Kentucky to borrow. Within a year he had resold three of the six acres for as much as he paid for the whole. Sometime ago I ran across some papers which recalled this early transaction and which, doubtless, swayed us more or less in the purchase of the Grand and Hebert corner."

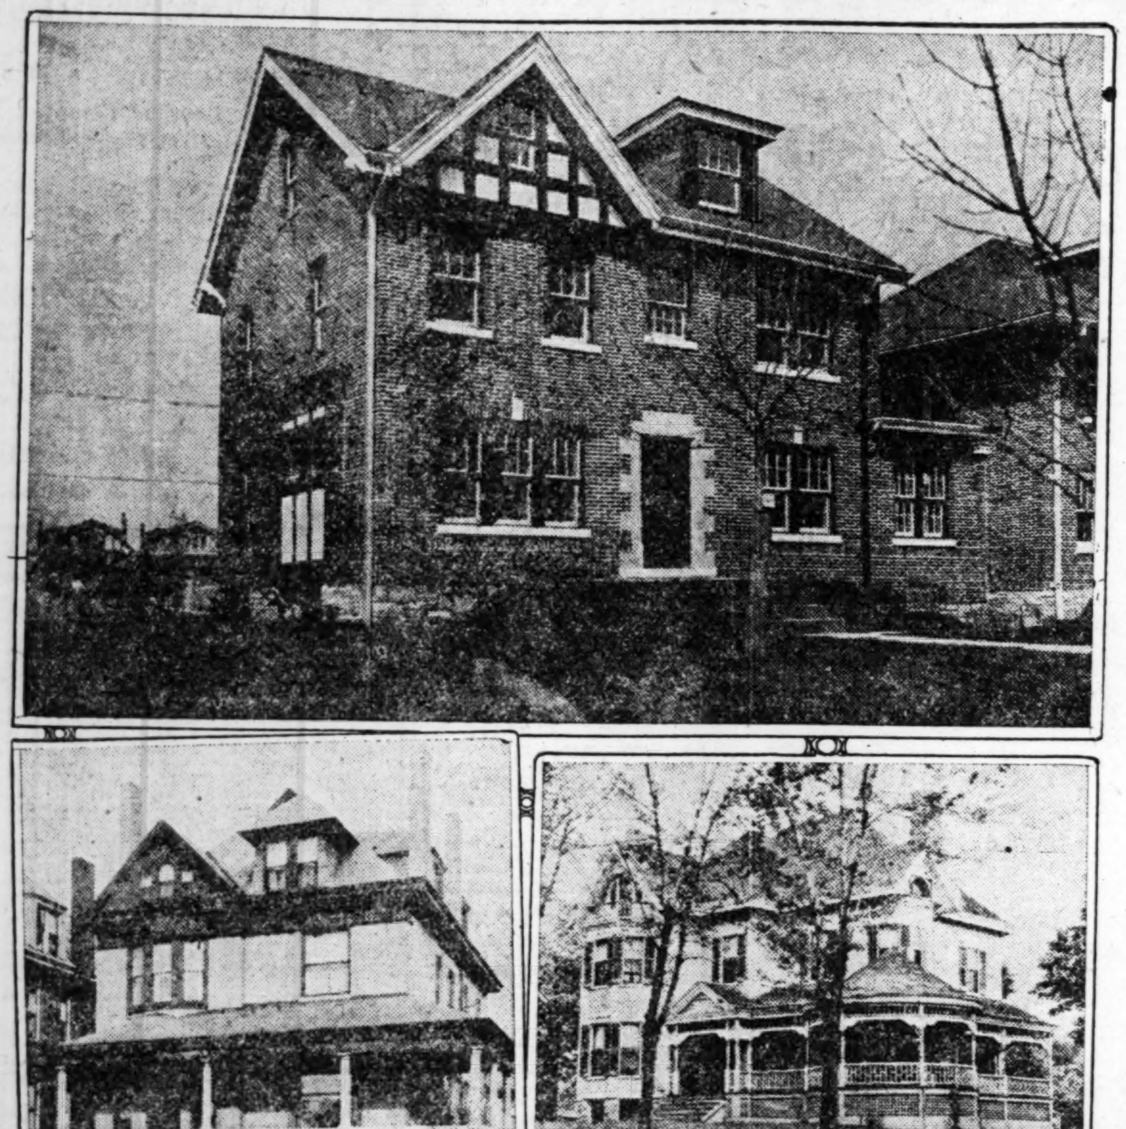
Franciscus & Kunz have also effected the sale of a North Grand avenue block, the deed to which will be executed this week.

A. Magin, president of the Anderson Suit & Cloak Co., purchased, through the Frank Obear Real Estate Co., 5614-18 Delmar boulevard, a one-story building, 67x140 feet, divided into stores, for a price said to be about $55,000. The seller was Harry Horwitz. The building is just east of and adjoining the site of the Delmonte Theater, erected by F. L. Cornwell and Sam Hamburg.

The Obear company also effected the sale of 5631 Delmar boulevard, 28x157 feet, a new building occupied by the Piggly-Wiggly Co., formerly owned by W. C. Culver, to Max Kuppel for $18,000.

Plans are progressing for the upbuilding on a big scale of the southeast corner of Delmar boulevard and De Baliviere avenue, 140x200 feet, which was recently acquired for 99 years by a syndicate of which Frank Obear is the chief figure, through Charles H. Zeibig of Cornet & Zeibig.

Handsome Residences Which Figure in Recent Sales



THE upper picture of the foregoing group shows a house at 6641 Waterman avenue, in Ames place, sold during the week by the Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Co. to Walter S. Grant, president of the St. Louis Tin and Sheet Metal Working Co. It has nine rooms, two baths, a sunroom, a hot-water heating plant, and is finished throughout with hardwood floors. There is a garage for two machines, while the lot is 50x140 feet.

The former residence of Alexander Hoyt at 4463 Lindell boulevard, shown in the right-hand corner, was sold by the Weisels-Gerhart Realty Co. to Joseph L. Andren. The price paid was not mentioned. The home is in the Queen Anne style of architecture. It has 12 rooms, a large sun parlor, three baths, hot-water heat and hardwood floors. There is a brick garage.

The picture in the left-hand corner, formerly the home of Charles W. Ferguson on Lockwood avenue just east of Gore avenue, Webster Groves, was purchased by the Young Woman's Christian Association of that district through the Trembley-Wilson Real Estate and Loan Co. of Webster Groves.

The house has 12 rooms and a large lot. The association has already taken possession of its new home.

With larger and more modern quarters, the restaurant service, which has been provided for several years by the Y. W. C. A., and which has been a boon to the merchants of that community, is expected to be greatly improved.

REALTY COMPANY BUYS BUSCH SUBDIVISION

Tract Five Blocks in Area on South Grand Said to Have Met Prompt Demand.

The Hildenbrandt & Noble Realty Co. announce the sale of the Cleveland subdivision to Federer-Arendes Realty Co. This tract comprises five blocks, which was owned and subdivision by the Adolphus Busch estate. It fronts 312 feet on Grand avenue, Thirty-seventh street, Grace avenue, Dewey avenue and Thirty-eighth street, and is bounded on the north by Bingham avenue, and on the south by Osceola street.

The tract has been graded, the streets are partly made, and it is sewered, thus being ready for immediate building. It is only one block from the Grand avenue car line, and opposite Cleveland High School, while the new Scruggs School is one block south. It is expected that this tract will be a second Tower Grove Heights.

Although the deed has not been passed, it is learned that the Federer-Arendes Realty Co. has deals on which will dispose of more than half of the tract to homeseekers, who have been unable to purchase heretofore, as the Busch estate would not sell individual lots.

GROWING HAT COMPANY ENLARGES ITS PLANT

APPLE HAT CO
APPLE HAT CO.

THE Apple Hat Co. recently obtained through the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co., a lease on the seven-story building at Seventh street and Lucas avenue, and later leased the nine-story building at 1128-30 Washington avenue for executive offices, salesrooms, etc.

L. T. Apple, vice president of the company, says that the hat company has confidence in the country and in St. Louis organization and is looking forward optimistically to a steady and reasonable demand for merchandise. The Apple Hat Co. advertises the St. Louis market throughout various parts of the world.

SEVEN-STORY CORNER BUILDING LEASED BY PUBLISHING COMPANY

The National Publishing Co., has acquired a lease of the seven-story building at the northwest corner of Seventh street and Lucas avenue, through the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. The present building of the publishing company at 714 Lucas avenue, is embraced in the site at the northeast corner of Seventh street and Washington avenue, recently acquired by the Marcus Loew Theater Co. through the Mercantile Trust Co. for a theater to cost $1,000,000.

BRECKINRIDGE JONES JR. TO OPEN AN INSURANCE AGENCY

Breckenridge Jones Jr., son of the president of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., and for several years a dealer in investment securities, will open a general insurance agency in the Pierce Building tomorrow, as an associate of the Insurance Agency Co., handling all forms of insurance.

Until yesterday Jones was connected with the Stifel-Nicolaus Investment Co., in its sales and advertising departments. He is married and resides at 5854 Cates avenue.

Realty Inquiries on Increase.

The C. M. McDonald Real Estate Co. reports that inquiries for business and investment properties are increasing. It states that not a dwelling or a flat is on the company's rent list.

Month's Sales Exceed $500,000.

The Federer-Arendes Realty Co. reports the sales of vacant and trading of investment properties is very active. Sales for the past 30 days total more than $500,000.

Dickmann Takes Offices in Arcade.

Joseph F. Dickmann Jr., former assistant Circuit Attorney, has taken a lease of a suite of offices on the eighteenth floor of the Arcade Building.

Gen. Nivelle Sails for Home.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Extending thanks to the American people for their "most enjoyable" welcome, General Robert Nivelle, of the French army, sailed for home today on the steamship La Lorraine.

"From north to south and from east to west," said the General, "I have been received and overwhelmed with the kindest treatment. There is an important event awaiting my presence as my daughter Yvette is to be married immediately after my arrival to a former young officer of aviation during the war."

EAST ST. LOUIS TO GET NEW TRACTOR PLANT

Dependable Truck and Tractor Co. Buys Tract in Washington Park for Factory Site.

C. V. Morse of Galesburg, Ill., president of the Dependable Truck & Tractor Co., announced yesterday that his company had purchased an 11-acre tract of land in Washington Park, in East St. Louis, from Harding Bros. & Co., and immediately would begin the construction of a large plant. He added that the company already had leased half of the second floor at 231 Collinsville avenue for its general offices, which would be moved to East St. Louis immediately. A. E. Patchin of South Bend, Ind., vice president, will arrive in East St. Louis this week, and, with Morse, will arrange to let construction contracts.

The company has been in operation for three years in Galesburg and has assets of nearly $1,000,000. At the start about 100 men will be employed in the East St. Louis plant, but this number will be increased up to 500 as fast as the construction work proceeds. Excavating will be begun in a week or so, the foundations of the initial units will then be laid, and the buildings will be commenced early in the spring. The plant in Galesburg will be operated until the East St. Louis plant is completed, when the company will dispose of it and systematically develop its new properties in East St. Louis.

"We regard the Dependable company as an exceptionally desirable acquisition," said Secretary-Manager J. N. Pining of the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. "Messrs. Morse and Patchin realized that the company had progressed up to the point at which expansion was necessary on a large scale, and that it was necessary to begin this expansion in a locality which offered the most extensive trade territory. They quickly decided that East St. Louis offered advantages which could not be secured in any other part of the United States.

"As rapidly as possible the company intends to put in manufacturing units and as soon as possible dispense with assembling altogether. It will also turn out several additional types of trucks.

"Many parts which the company has had to buy at distant points it will be able to get from East St. Louis industries; some from the St. Louis Structural Steel Co and National Tank & Tube Co. whose plants are in Washington Park."

The company's distributing offices for Southern Illinois are at Ninth street and St. Clair avenue, in charge of J. W. Jameson. The equipment for the general offices was transported from Galesburg in the company's own trucks.

ST. LOUIS AS TOY CENTER OF WORLD IS CONCERN'S AIM

Metallic Industries, Inc., to Begin Production in New and Spacious Plant Tomorrow.

Installation in its new home, 4127-35 Forest Park buolevard, recently bought from the Dorris Motor Co. for $40,000, was completed Friday by Metallic Industries, Inc. "When the wheels begin to turn in that modern and spacious plant on Monday, it will be the real start toward our aim and purpose to make St. Louis the center of the United States as new leader in world toy production," said Norris R. Fill, general manager of the company yesterday.

The first effort on the part of Metallic Industries, Inc., in its new plant with its 20,000 square feet of factory space, will be to complete its exhibit for the annual toy show at Hotel Imperial, New York City, Feb. 1 to March 12. This show is given by the Toy Manufacturers of U. S. A., an organization that hitherto has required two years of active toy production as a requisite to membership but which waived this regulation in the case of Metallic Industries, Inc., because of its basic importance in the toy world. Last year the aggregate of toy orders booked at the show was $8,000,000.

"While this company was incorporated about a year ago, many months were occupied in perfecting our designs, patterns, etc., and our first toy, the teeter-go-round, was put on the market in October. Since then we have designed about a dozen metallic toys, which will constitute our main line for a while. These include, besides the teeter-go-round, a pla-kar, merri-whirl, row-kar, skate-kar, taxi-plane, winsum-koaster, koaster-kar, bike-kar and jack rabbit-racer," Fill stated.

"We have not only formed a well-nigh perfect national distribution system, but have made substantial progress toward international as well. Hardly a day passes that does not bring us inquiries or orders from a foreign field." Evidence of this appeared in the shape of a letter from Chile, which lay open on the general manager's desk.

DOWNTOWN ACTIVITY ERA AT HAND, REALTY AGENT SAYS

Investment Operations, Deferred Because of Demand for Homes in 1920, Expected by Dockery to Set in Early in 1921.

James D. Dockery of John Dockery & Son, emphasizing the fact that the buying of real estate during 1920 embraced principally dwellings and flats for residential purposes, as a result of the acute house shortage, that for investment having been apparently deferred. The current year, he says, the indications are, will be characterized by an extraordinary demand for investment holdings, both for revenue and speculation, illuminated by the execution of big building projects in the central business district.

"The year 1920 will prove historic and unique in real estate annals," said Dockery. "Never in the history of the city was there such activity as in the first nine months of the past year. The principal buying, however, was done by the homeseeker. Real estate from the standpoint of investment was not so eagerly sought.

Began With the Year.

"Beginning as early as last January, a season notably lethargic in real estate, the market showed remarkable activity. Residences and flats were eagerly sought. Students of real estate conditions had been predicting this demand, which by all lines of reasoning should have developed, but no one had realized that the buyers would materialize so early and so intensely.

"The dearth of houses, on account of war-time prohibition of building, should of itself have created a large demand, but a factor often lost sight of played a most important part in the whirlwind operations. Prosperity had stalked abroad and the average artisan and business man had emerged from his war-time season prosperous and ready to turn his attention to housing conditions.

"Theretofore he had been prone to view the home problem lightly and without interest. It had been cheaper to rent than to buy. But the situation not only had suddenly been reversed, but the emphasis on the other side had become so great that the home he had disdained owning but a short while since now loomed before him, elusive but earnestly sought.

"The modesty of his requirements, too, had faded in the distance and the space and appointments he had enjoyed a short while ago were not large or fitting enough in his now vastly improved financial condition. Hence the shortage of houses was materially increased by the expansion of space. The result was an activity and demand in this branch of real estate unheard of. As a matter of fact, real estate for investment has yet to have its market.

Downtown Activity at Hand.

"The overdue activity in downtown St. Louis is at hand, and the keen student of affairs has noticed those unfailing signs on the horizon which indicate the rising of an active sun with the new year.

"This city is coming into its rightful position, somewhat slowly, but surely, somewhat handicapped by a zealous planning that may retard substantial improvement, but nevertheless heralded by civic societies which are presenting its merits to the world. The outside world is noticing St. Louis with its enviable situation in the heart of the richest part of the United States, on its largest, if neglected, river, the natural gateway to the great Southwest, and linked, if she only chooses, with the wealth and commerce of South America.

"By concerted effort St. Louis may shake off the shackles that so unjustly bind her, in the shape of arbitraries, and bring within her confine those industries and establishments which are compelled to be content on her outskirts."

LOEW COMPANY EAGER TO COMPLETE THEATER

Washington Avenue Site for $1,000,000 House to Be Cleared as Soon as Practicable.

As soon as possession can be obtained of the premises, it is understood that the Marcus Loew Theater Co. will begin razing the building on the site at the northeast corner of Seventh street and Washington avenue in order that construction of its proposed $1,000,000 theater can be started without further delay.

The site, which extends through to Lucas avenue and embraces almost a half block, was acquired through the Mercantile Trust Co. It was completed only after extensive negotiations, and comprises several different ownerships, held in fee and by lease, by the Loew company, which was halted in the execution of its plans by tenants' leases.

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE BOARD ANNOUNCES MEETING FOR JAN. 20

Directors of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange will hold their first meeting in 1921 on Jan. 20, when plans for the year's activities will be made.

President Hannauer has been actively aiding the organization of real estate boards at Columbia, Hannibal, Jefferson City, Kirksville, Moberly, Mexico and Poplar Bluff, in order that Missouri may have larger representation at the midwinter meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at Atlanta, this month.

Prettyman & Choisel, who are publishing the 1921 Year Book, Manual and Diary for the exchange, will have a rough draft of the book for inspection by the directors.

OUTLYING REALTY COMPANY TAKES CHESTNUT ST. CORNER

The Pryor-Stephenson Realty Co., with offices for several years at 5016 Delmar boulevard, has removed its offices to the northeast corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets, where it has taken ground floor quarters.

The company, which is composed of Charles B. Pryor and Rodger A. Stephenson, is one of the best known and most aggressive in realty circles.

Ernest Edwards Out After Injury.

Ernest Edwards of Cornet & Zeibig, who suffered severe injuries several weeks ago when struck by an automobile, is at headquarters again. His right foot was crushed and he was otherwise badly bruised.

80 Realty Deals Closed in Six Months.

The Hartwig-Dischanger Realty Co., 3022 North Grand avenue, reports it has closed 80 deals aggregating $460,000 and made over $200,000 in real estate loans.

GEORGIANA APARTMENTS GO TO L. C. PENNINGTON

Price Paid for Fremont Investment Co. Holding in West End Not Disclosed.

The Georgiana Apartments, at the southeast corner of Kingsbury boulevard and De Baliviere avenue, have been purchased by Louis C. Pennington. The building, which forms an annex to the Georgian Court Apartments, on Kingsbury, were built by the Fremont Investment Co., of which Alexander M. Cornwell of F. J. Cornwell & Son is president. The apartments have a frontage on Kingsbury boulevard of 125 feet.

These are apartments of five-room efficiency. The price paid has not been disclosed.

The Fremont Investment Co. was the grantor in the transaction.

SALE OF TWO PROPERTIES FOR $33,500 BY WANSTRATH

The George J. Wanstrath Real Estate Co. announces the sale of the southwest corner of Hodiamont and Garfield avenues, having a frontage of 121 feet by a depth of 125 feet.

The Hodiamont avenue front is improved with three double flats and that on Garfield avenue with a two-story building with store on first floor and four rooms on the second. It was sold for Jacob Bongner of Jacksonville, Fla., to Nathan Weintraub and wife for $25,000.

The Wanstrath company reports having sold the southeast corner of Cora and Garfield avenues to Harry L. Howard, represented by the Easton-Taylor Trust Co. The site of 50x125 feet is improved with a double flat. The property was sold by H. L. Glusenkamp and wife for $8500.

OPENING OF NEW SUBDIVISION TO BE ANNOUNCED NEXT SUNDAY

The Olive Street Terrace Realty Co. expects to announce the opening of its new subdivision next Sunday. The property is said to be near the northwestern industrial district.

The company closed its offices Wednesday and took all members of its organization, about 100 in number, on an inspection trip to the new property. Following the trip the party had a dinner dance in the large ballroom at the Statler Hotel.

HOMES OF CLIENTS PICTURED ON REALTY COMPANY CALENDAR

The Trembley-Wilson Real Estate & Loan Co. of Webster Groves is sending a novel New Year remembrance to its clients and customers. It is in the form of a calendar containing a photograph of the home of each party addressed. The company was able to do this because it always takes a picture of each house placed with it for sale, and therefore, had all the negatives from which to get prints.

5-ACRE TRUCK OR CHICKEN FARM
Get into this to be ready for spring. Take St. Charles (through car) to Edmondson rd. (just 4 blocks past end of one-fare zone). See first house north. Mrs. Klaus owner. By automobile, same directions. It will pay you to investigate this. Land lies fine; house is well built, so are barns. EDWARD GOCKE, Agt., 721½ Chestnut.

LIVE IN THIS 3-ROOM
House for year or so, then build in front. The lot is excellent, has lots of bearing fruit of all kinds; house is comfortable. It's a fine opportunity to get started and live on the ground while preparing for finer house later. Take Creve Coeur car to Wise rd. (one fare by commutation tickets), walk north 2 blocks to F. W. Lynde's place. EDWARD GOCKE, Agt., 721½ Chestnut.

DETERMINE RIGHT NOW
That the end of this New Year will not see you in a house owned by anyone except yourself—even if that be only a temporary house, just so it's your very own. This can easily be done. Where there's a will there's a way. We'll help you by letting you have the lot $5 down and $5 a month. Come out this afternoon, even if it is cold, between 2:30 and 4, and look at Acmar No. 2, one subdivision of several where we can do this for you. Take Creve Coeur car to Overland Sta., walk north 3 blocks, east side, or take through St. Charles car to Woodson rd. (one fare), walk south 2 blocks. EDWARD GOCKE, Agt., 721½ Chestnut.

Apartment Renters

Loaf with us today in beautiful

Maryland Terrace

See the part of life you are missing. A few beautiful homes which have just been completed can be bought on rent terms. If you are not ready for your home, come and pick out one of the lots where you have a deep building line and wide streets; lots 220 feet deep; prices will go up this Spring. You can save $15 to $25 a front foot by buying now ahead of the Spring rush.

Take advantage of Midwinter prices on Maryland Terrace. Build now or build later. Choice Washington University property is becoming scarce. It's an opportunity to solve the home question. If St. Louis is to be your home, then provide your family with either a real home or secure (while you can) the right location on which you can later build and avoid congestion.

Drive to Pennsylvania av. (West boundary of campus). Maryland Terrace extends West on both Maryland and Westmoreland drives.

FARMS!

The placing on the market of 20,000 acres of splendid land opens up an exceptional opportunity for the man interested in good productive land at a low price. Adjoining our hardwood holdings in Antrim and Kalkaska counties, Mich., this new tract in Otsego Co. offers the advantages of good roads, markets, schools, railroads, and combined with the good soil, fine climate and plentiful supply of water, makes a 100 per cent location for a farm home. Choice selections—some of them on lakes and streams—are available now at the bargain price of $15 to $35 per acre. Besides a liberal credit offer of small down payment, balance on easy terms, our colonization plan includes many special features for helping settlers. You can investigate our proposition without expense and without obligation. Just send a post card with your name and address and we will cheerfully mail our big illustrated booklet and full information. Start the New Year right. DON'T PUT THIS OFF.

BRIDEGROOM ARRESTED ON COMPLAINT OF MOTHER-IN-LAW

Jessie Dixon, Steam Fitter, Denies He Is Bigamist as Charged by Mrs. Jane Shelton.

Jessie Dixon, 36 years old, a steam fitter, and a bridegroom spent yesterday afternoon and last night in a cell at Police Headquarters following his arrest on charges by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jane Shelton of 1221 St. Ange avenue, that Dixon had another wife from whom he was not divorced when he married his present wife, Mable M. Shelton, 20, last Wednesday.

Mrs. Shelton laid her complaint before the Circuit Attorney and the police. Her attorney said that Dixon's first wife, Mrs. Hester Dixon, was living at 1322 Rutger street and because of Dixon's failure to support her was working as a waitress in a restaurant on Pine street.

Dixon told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had not thought it necessary to get a divorce from the first woman as there had never been any marriage ceremony. He said they had been known as man and wife for three years prior to the fall of 1918 when they separated. They were living at that time on Cottage avenue. Fifteen days later he said he met his present wife.

Mrs. Hester Dixon, he said, caused his arrest last summer in Bonne Terre, Mo., where he was working, telling officials he was a bigamist. He said she never appeared to prosecute the case any further and he was released. He was not married to his present wife at that time. He said he and his present wife were married by Justice of the Peace Edward Ric Since their marriage, he said, they had been living at 1311 St. Ange avenue.

Canadian Post to Burnham.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Viscount Burnham, the Daily News says today, will be offered the Governor-Generalship of Canada, in recognition of "his long and valuable services to the Government."

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

A VICTIM.—In playing stud poker you can check the bet at any time, but if anyone bets you must see it or drop out.

F. A. C. STEPANEK.—Address Dr. Bedrich Stepanek, plenipotentiary of the Czecho-Slovak Republic to the United States, at 1734 N st., Washington, D. C.

J. R. M.—The Illinois and Missouri passenger rate per mile is 3.6c, the Interstate Commerce rate being the same. The Federal rate is charged on all interstate tickets. Navigation on the Mississippi River is closed for the year.

READER OF P.-D.—A reader advises us that there is an auxiliary of the wives, mothers and daughters of printers, known as Woman's Auxiliary No. 29 to Typographical Union No. 8, which meets at the different members' homes on the third Wednesday of each month. Any information on the subject may be obtained by addressing the secretary, Mrs. J. H. Mason, 5033A Wells av., St. Louis.

CURIOUS.—Canapes are made by cutting bread in slices ¼ inch thick, and cutting the slices in strips 4 inches long and 1½ inches wide, or in circular pieces. The bread is then toasted, fried in deep fat, or buttered and browned in the oven, and covered with a seasoned mixture of eggs, cheese, fish or meat, separately or in combination. Canapes are served hot or cold, and may be used in place of oysters at a dinner or luncheon.

A. B. C.—The mirror may be resilvered completely, if necessary, but it is a rather difficult process. Bare portions of the mirror may be resilvered by cleaning the places by rubbing them gently with fine cotton, taking care to remove any trace of dust and grease. If the cleaning is not carefully done defects will appear around the place repaired. With the point of a penknife cut upon the back of another looking glass around a portion of the silvering of the required form, but a little larger. Place a small drop of mercury upon it; a drop the size of a pin's head will be sufficient for a surface equal to the size of the nail. The mercury spreads immediately, penetrates the amalgam to where it was cut off with the knife, and the required piece may now be lifted and removed to the place needing repair. This is the most difficult part of the operation. Then press the renewed portion lightly with cotton; it hardens almost immediately and the glass presents the same appearance.

LADY.—The word "genius" is derived from the Latin "gignere," Greek "gignesthai," meaning to be born. It was the name given by the ancients to the lesser divinities, good and bad, to whose charge are committed the destinies of the individual human being. This usage is still retained, metaphorically, in such phrases as "his good (or evil) genius prompted him." The current meaning of the word, however, is one who has very extraordinary gifts or native powers, especially as displayed in original creation, discovery, expression or achievement, "an ability that is exceptionally high, and at the same time inborn," (Galton). The man of talent, says Galton, is one in 4000; the man of genius is one in a million, or even in many millions. Many attempts have been made to define genius. Carlyle remarks that it means, first of all, "the transcendent capacity of taking trouble;" while Lowell declares that "talent is that which is in a man's power; genius is that in whose power a man is." This contrariety of descriptions shows how foolish is the attempt to put a technical interpretation upon the word, or to charactirize a "typical" genius. However, we might use as examples Shakspeare, Mozart, Newton and Napoleon.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

F. Z.—See answers to "Blackheads" which appeared in this column on Jan. 5. This treatment will also probably rid you of your pimples, if not, dab on at night (omitting the ointment) one part of Vlemnickx's solution to five parts of water, gradually increasing the strength by lessening the water. Let it dry on and in the morning wash off and rub in a good quality of cold cream.

SUFFERER.—There are many forms of rheumatism and treatment will vary accordingly. We are presuming you refer to the chronic form, and answer accordingly. Internal remedies are on the whole not of great service. The digestive functions and the general health should be kept at the highest possible standard. Potassium iodide, sarsaparilla and guaiacum are sometimes beneficial. Salicylates, so useful in acute forms, are useless. Local treatment is very beneficial. Counter irritation and massage are helpful, also baking with super heated, dry air. Electricity is not of much benefit. Climatic treatment is very helpful, selecting a climate free of damp and cold. Great relief is sometimes attained by wrapping the affected joints in cold cloths, covered with a thin layer of woolen cloth and protected with oiled silk. The turkish bath is useful.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire herewith to extend our sincere and most heartfelt thanks to our relatives and friends for their kind expressions of sympathy and the beautiful floral offerings tendered us during the hours of sadness occasioned by the loss through death of our beloved mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, Mrs. Maude Herhold. We wish also to thank the Rev. R. E. Foard for his prayers and kind words of consolation, the pallbearers for their assistance, and Ziegenhein Bros., undertakers, for the excellent services rendered. THE BEREAVED FAMILY.

We wish to thank our many friends for their sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our brother, Frank A. Kroeger, and for the many beautiful floral offerings sent us. We especially thank the reverend clergy of Holy Ghost Parish and visiting clergy, the pallbearers, employes of George D. Bernard Co., and Typographical Union No. 8.
REV. JOSEPH KROEGER,
BERNARD H. KROEGER,
GESINA M. KROEGER,
ELIZABETH S. KROEGER. (c)

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our many relatives and friends for their beautiful floral offerings and kind sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of my dear wife and our dear mother, Mary Yennett-Holmes, also thanking the Rev. Charles Clark for his kind words of consolation, and Mrs. Elizabeth Schnur, undertaker, for her kind services rendered.
THE BEREAVED FAMILY. (c)

We wish to extend our sincere thanks and express our appreciation to our relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our sad hour of bereavement in the loss of our dear daughter, Frieda Warning. We wish to especially thank Rev. F. H. Krafft for his consoling words; to the quartet and choir of Friedens Evangelical Church for the beautiful song service; to the pallbearers for their kindness; to Math. Hermann & Son, funeral directors, for their courteous and efficient attention, and for the many expressions of sympathy and friendship conveyed by the beautiful floral offerings. THE BEREAVED FAMILY. (c)

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to relatives, friends and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy and floral offerings in our bereavement in the death of our dear mother, Theresa Muffler, and our special gratitude to the Rev. Moser of the St. Vincent de Paul's Church.
MUFFLER FAMILY.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of Laura Louise Lewis, who departed from this earthly life on Jan. 4, 1916, but her kind and cheerful spirit will never be forgotten by her
HUSBAND, RELATIVES AND FRIENDS
Ever faithful to her dear memory.

In memory of my dear husband, Rudie Kester, who died Jan. 9, 1920.
Surrounded by friends, I am lonesome.
Amidst of my pleasure, I am blue.
A smile on my face, still a heartache—
Aching and longing for you.
Sadly missed by his wife, family and friends. ELIZABETH KESTER. (c)

In memory of my beloved wife, Elizabeth Trunk, who passed away Jan. 12, 1920:
Just one year ago today
When you, our beloved, passed away.
We have suffered in silence and pain,
And hope that we shall meet again.
JACK TRUNK (Husband), BROTHERS AND SISTERS. (c)

In loving memory of my dear son, Oliver Jones, who died Jan. 11, 1913:
Some times, some day, my eyes shall meet the face so dear;
Some time my hands shall press in his and never say farewell.
Sadly missed by his mother,
MRS. JENNIE JONES.

In loving remembrance of our dearly beloved daughter and sister-in-law, Olinda Lindner (nee Hesse), who died Jan. 7, 1920:
A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is still;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
Sadly missed by mother, sisters, brother and brother-in-law.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, grandmother and great-grandmother, Catherine Smith, who died Jan. 10, 1920.

In loving memory of our dearly beloved father, Daniel Early, who departed this life Jan. 3, 1915. Sadly missed by those he loved so dearly. His son, Daniel D. Early Jr. and the late John Early and daughter, Sister Mary Dominic of the Loretto Order, and uncle of William Robert Early.

In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Charles Keller, who departed this life five years ago today, Jan. 9, 1916:
Today recalls sad memories,
Of our loved one, gone to rest;
And those who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND SON, EDWARD.

In memory of Margaret Hall (nee Caskanett), who departed this life, Jan. 10, 1919:
Oft from our hearts comes a bitter cry
Why and oh why did our dear one die.
Then comes the thought so solemn and deep.
She is not dead, but only asleep.
Sadly missed by her HUSBAND, BABY, PARENTS, SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

In loving memory of our dear niece, Sophie Rupp, who departed this life Jan. 7, 1919.
Sadly missed by
ANNIE AND MINNIE NEUNDENDEL.

In loving memory of our dear friend, Lizzie Trunk, who departed this life Jan. 12, 1920:
The Master called her one year ago;
Tears in silence often flow.
One so loving, kind and true,
How hard it was to part with you.
Three close friends,
MR. AND MRS. J. M., MRS. J. B.

In sweet memory of our darling daughter and sister, Mamie Eike, who departed this life Jan. 7, 1915:
Oft from our hearts comes a bitter cry—
Why, oh, why, did our dear one die?
Then comes the thought so solemn and deep—
She is not dead, but only asleep.
Sadly missed by father, mother, brother and sweetheart.

In memory of Patti Marsh Zannow, who passed away four years ago, Jan. 9, 1917:
Gone but not forgotten.
As I look into this pure white rose,
I think of you, so fair so kind, so pure so true.
Patti, dear, four years ago you left me so sad and broken-hearted.
Hoping to meet again.
Sadly missed by
MRS. NORA MARSH (Mother). (c)

In loving memory of my dear son and brother, Edmund B. Siegfried:
It is two years since you left us,
Our hearts are filled with sadness,
For the smile we see no more.
You are gone but not forgotten,
Nor shall you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, SISTERS AND BROTHERS.
And all who knew him. (c)

In memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Louise Franke, who departed from life four years ago, Jan. 10, 1917.
Four years have passed since that sad day,
One whom we loved was called away.
God took her home—it was His will—
But in our hearts she liveth still.
Sadly missed by her daughter, Mrs. Back, and grandchildren Emma and Theodore.

In loving remembrance of my dear grandfather and father, Henry Regel, who died Jan. 11, 1920:
Just one year ago today
Since my dear grandpa passed away.
We saw him suffer, heard his sighs
With aching heart and weeping eyes.
We saw him sinking, hour by hour,
Yet could not stay death's awful power.
But now he calmly sleeps at last—
All pains, all aches, all suffering past.
Sadly missed by his GRANDDAUGHTER AND DAUGHTERS.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, James M. Rollins, who departed from this life one year ago, Jan. 13, 1920:
Sad and sudden was the call,
For our dear father, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
He would be called so far away.
God took him home;
He knew best;
May God grant him eternal rest.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND DAUGHTERS.

In memory of our dear husband and father, Virgil A. Hughes, who entered eternal rest Jan. 8, 1919:
I cannot say, I will not say
That he is dead; he is just away!
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.
Sadly missed by
MRS. V. A. HUGHES AND FAMILY.

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Joseph J. Reitz, who departed this life one year ago Jan. 10, 1920:

Rest in peace, thy cares are ended;
Rest in peace, thy work is done;
You are gone, while those who love you
Soon are coming one by one;
How our hearts are filled with pain,
We hope some day we will meet again.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND DAUGHTER AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Louise Franke, who departed this life four years ago, the 10th of January, 1917.
Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear mother, loved by all.
We never thought that on that day
Our darling mother would be called away.
Although you are gone, but not forgotten,
Never shall your memory fade.
Loving hearts will always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by son and daughters,
AUGUST, LENA, ANNA AND EMMA.

In loving remembrance of my dear mother, Caroline Ahrenholz, died Jan. 8, 1916, and dear brother Emile Ahrenholz, died Jan. 27, 1916:
There loving hearts are now at rest,
God took them home when he thought best.
When work on earth is done we shall meet to part no more.
Gone, but not forgotton, as long as life and memory keep.
I will remember my loved ones at rest.
Mother and brother of the late Hanah Goedecke sadly missed by your loving daughter and sister.
KATE SCHNELL, GEORGE SCHNELL, FRANK GOEDECKE, SON-IN-LAW. (c)

In loving memory of my dear wife, Bettie Ilbright, who departed this life four years ago, Jan. 6, 1917:
Silently the shades of evening
Gather 'round our lonely door;
Silently they bring before us
The dear face we see no more.
So often do we go to her grave,
Lingering there and trying to be brave.
But, oh, 'tis hard to bear
To go away and leave her there.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, WM. H. ALBRIGHT AND NIECES.

DAVIS REALTY DEVELOPMENT CO., 2d floor Odd Fellows' Bldg.

ON A millionaire's estate, 13 miles from the booming metropolitan city of Tampa, Fla., is now forming the most remarkable club in the world; on the estate is a wonderful 500-acre orange, grapefruit and tangerine grove ready to begin production; a 16-room clubhouse, a golf course and a casino for dancing, motion pictures and other entertainment; tenis courts, croquet grounds, a swimming pool and other features are being installed; daily bus service to Tampa will be free to members; here, at this club, amid rolling hills of fruit-laden orange groves, flowers and perpetual sunshine, there are some life memberships for sale at the astonishingly low price of $750. These memberships include a beautiful building site on the property and a share in the groves that should soon pay 20 per cent on the investment. This is the most liberal and unusual offer ever made and Florida's prominent men are now joining. I want a few very high-grade salesmen, either all or part time, who can get desirable people for members. The commission for selling is 5 per cent and there are no advances, but sales will be easier than anything you have handled. The salesman who secures the most members within 60 days will be given a free membership and a $2500 bungalow on the estate. Secretary, Valrico Hills Club, Box 52, Valrico, Florida. (c)

GROCERY SALESMAN—Active; local or traveling, to sell side line; will pay highly for any time invested; good, staple advertised article. Box O-306, Post-Dis. (c)

PEANUT VENDING MACHINES—Salesmen calling on candy, cigar and drug trade to sell our "world's best" penny vending machines; $5 commission. Felsenthal Candy Co., Dept. 300, Louisville, Ky.

REPRESENTATIVES—Line with great economy and producing features; makes demand at all times. Exclusive field. Pocket outfit. Box 2, Sta. E, Cleveland.

RETAIL COAL SALESMAN—Good proposition for hustler with selling ability. Apply at Robinson Coal Co., 1579 Tower Grove.

SPECIALTY SALESMEN—We manufacture Ford accessory which interests every dealer and owner on sight; you can make $150 weekly. Motor Products Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

WE are about to launch a new deal. We want a few high-class salesmen—men with record, men that can prove they have the ability to get out and make $10,000 per year or better. This is no idle dream, but a proposition that is absolutely sound and backed by an old-established company with high rating and is one you can go to your prospect with a guaranteed stated profit. Not stock or bonds. All applications received in strict confidence. Call Olive 7580 for appointment. Ask for Mr. Philbrook. (c8)

WE express our appreciation to our patrons for the largest year's busines in our history of over 10 years' "fighting for low prices." "We say" we are rocking the boat of high prices. We will sell our present "stock of clothing at cost," to start the new year at new year prices. What this means to you: $14.98, $16.98, $19.98, $24.98, $27.98 and $29.98 will buy a suit or overcoat; 490 in the lot; former prices, $25 to $55. "We are with you" for 10 years; have led the way fighting for low prices, assisting thousands to "help keep up that prosperous appearance," which "means everything today," by dressing them up at little or no cost. We have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. "We're out of the high-rent district." "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you money. All we ask you is to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." "Buy more, pay less." Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. We again announce our "Trade-In Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "Abrams," "The Place to Buy Clothes." 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau av. (c)

REMARKS

Last week's business has been better than we expected; looks like buyers are willing to buy if the prices are low; all they asked has prices come down? Yes, we are cutting the prices. We bought goods for the last three months at same low price. We knew it was coming that way—that the public won't stand for high prices. They don't expect 1914 prices, but they will buy if prices are right. Notice to our country dealers: Don't wait till the rush is on; come early; you get better pick; shipping is good; you get good service; we can load carloads at short notice.

U. S. ATTORNEY TOO EASY WITH OPIUM VENDORS, MIX CHARGES

Police Judge's Criticism in Freeing of Negress Answered by Higgs.

Police Judge Mix yesterday expressed to reporters a criticism of the United States District Attorney's office for what he characterized as lack of prosecution of opium vendors.

He said that a negress who had an opium smoking outfit in her possession on Dec. 27 when she was arrested had indicated her ability to identify persons from whom she bought the drug and had named a house to which she went to smoke opium.

Judge Mix declared that he sent the negress in company with a policeman to the District Attorney's office, where an assistant declared there was insufficient evidence under which to proceed and sent the negress back to him.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Higgs, who is in charge of the prosecution of narcotic cases for the Government, in reply to Judge Mix's criticism said the negress sent to him by the Police Judge had given information to the revenue office which had been investigated but had been worthless. There was no basis of prosecution of the woman herself, he said, as she had not been found with opium in her possession at the time of her arrest.

MCADOO URGES DEMOCRATS TO ORGANIZE FOR NEXT CAMPAIGN

Tells Californians Recent Defeat Was Largely Due to Poor National Organization.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 8.—Immediate steps to organize the Democratic party for future campaigns under a national chairman who will "devote all, or practically all of his time to party affairs," were urged tonight by William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, at the Jackson day dinner of the Southern California Democratic Club here.

McAdoo said the recent Democratic defeat "was due in large measure to a lack of effective national organization, and to the failure to get the Democratic side before the people through proper publicity." He declared he wished to criticise methods rather than individuals, and continued:

"The officers of the National Committee are the business managers of the party and political parties in these days require business management of the highest order. It is not the duty of the national officers to determine party policies nor to select the presidential candidates nor to use the powers of their offices to influence the selection of party candidates, nor to champion the cause of any candidate for the presidential nomination. Nothing could more certainly destroy the usefulness of national officers than to become involved in matters of this sort. The establishment and maintenance of permanent national headquarters with sufficient force to carry on its legitimate operations, the raising of necessary funds for this purpose, the educational work to be done through proper publicity, are all objects of the highest importance, and should receive the whole thought and attention of the national officers."

MOVE MADE TO REVOKE 8 BREWERY PERMITS

Pennsylvania Concerns Alleged to Have Manufactured Beverage Exceeding Alcohol Limit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Action has been begun to revoke the permits of eight Pennsylvania breweries for alleged violation of the prohibition laws in the manufacture of a beverage containing alcohol in excess of the legal limit, Commissioner Kramer announced tonight.

The breweries named by the Commissioner are: The Pennsylvania Central Brewing Co., E. Robinson's Sons, Scranton; Pennsylvania Central Brewing Co., Casey & Kelly, Scranton; Pennsylvania Central Brewing Co. and Lackawana Brewing Co., Scranton; Lion Brewing Co., Wilkesbarre; Standard Brewing Co., Scranton; Keystone Brewing Co., Dunmore and Stegmaier Brewing Co., Wilkesbarre.

Notice has been served on the breweries, the Commissioner, said, to show cause at Scranton Jan. 17 why their permits should not be revoked and canceled on the ground that they have not in good faith conformed to the provisions of the national prohibition act in that they have been manufacturing and placing upon the market a beverage containing in excess of one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume, contrary to the provisions of the law.

Government guards at bonded warehouses throughout the country are being increased at the larger plants while guards are being withdrawn from those in which but small quantities of liquor are stored, Bureau of Internal Revenue officials said today. The course has been decided on, it was indicated to afford greater protection to the more important places and to save expense.

Government guards, however, will only protect whisky in bonded warehouses produced prior to Sept. 1, 1917, according to instructions sent to collectors of internal revenue. Also warehouse agents will not be assigned to industrial alcohol plants or to warehouses at such plants, nor to a warehouse at a distillery which has been converted into an industrial alcohol plant.

Warehouse agents under the instructions will be assigned, when necessary, at general or special bonded warehouses heretofore established, but not at general or special bonded warehouses hereafter established. Furthermore general bonded warehouses, which are unsafe for the storage and protection of spirits or from which any spirits are stolen or unlawfully removed, will not be permitted to receive further deposits of spirits therein.

The assignment of agents to bonded warehouses by the Government does not release the distiller, the instructions declared, from his duty to guard his own spirits or relieve him of his bonded obligations to pay the tax on spirits stolen from the warehouse.

Brewery at Edwardsville, Pa., Seized by U. S. Official.

By the Associated Press.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 8.—Acting on instructions from Washington, Internal Revenue Collector Fred Kirkendall today seized the Bartels Brewery at Edwardsville, which is alleged to have been brewing beer of illegal alcoholic content.

FUNERAL OF MISS MARY KENNEDY PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHER, HELD

She Was Also an Officer of the Carondelet Women's Club and Catholic War Council Worker.

Miss Kennedy was an officer of the Carondelet Women's Club and an active worker in the Catholic Women's War Council. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. John Walsh, with whom she made her home.

HENRY BRUNNER, BANKER, DIES

Was Interested in Large Institutions in Europe.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Henry Brunner, 63 years old, internationally known banker, died in a hospital here tonight from pneumonia. He was a native of Switzerland. He had been in the banking business at Cincinnati, O., and organized and controlled a number of banking institutions in California, among them the Anglo-French Bank, in San Francisco. He was interested in many large banking institutions in France, Italy and Spain, was a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor and a Knight of the Crown of Italy, and had been decorated in Spain as the author of agricultural laws.

Besides his widow, who was Mlle. Clare Vautrer of Paris, he leaves relatives in Oklahoma.

22 Ships Taken Out of Service.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Orders withdrawing from service 22 vessels aggregating more than 110,500 deadweight tons were issued today by the Shipping Board. The vessels are to be tied up at Norfolk, New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Orange, Tex. The largest vessel withdrawn under the orders is the 12,500-ton steamer John Adams, which is to be tied up at Orange.

SPRING FUR AUCTION TO OPEN ON FEB. 7

Sales of Several Million Dollars' Worth Held for Dealers Set for First Day.

A list of several hundred fur dealers and shippers in St. Louis, other parts of the United States and a number of foreign countries, is published in today's Post-Dispatch by the International Fur Exchange, Fourth and Market streets, in connection with a special notice to these persons and companies that furs consigned by them to the exchange will be auctioned at the exchange on Feb. 7 in payment of indebtedness to the exchange.

The furs consigned by the debtors mentioned have a total valuation, made by the shippers on the basis of the present low market, of $10,000,000 to $12,000,000. Nelson R. Darragh, vice president of the International Fur Exchange, told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night. Feb. 7 will mark the beginning of the annual February sale of the exchange, at which furs with an estimated value of $27,000,000 are expected to be sold.

Darragh said that publication of the names of these debtors is in compliance with a legal technicality under the Missouri laws. He said all the debtors had received advances of 30 to 60 per cent of the value of their shipments, made by the exchange upon receipt.

"Because the market is much lower than it was a year ago a great many of these shippers will want to pay back their advances and bid the furs in themselves," Darragh said. "This is customary on a low market. Many others of those called debtors in the notice expect their furs to be sold by us and the proceeds to be greater than the amount of the advances, in which case they will receive the difference.

"It must be understood that for the most part at least the firms named in the notice are financially all right and would be able to pay the advances, and that we are only publishing their names as a legal technicality. We have sold furs in this way before, but on a much smaller scale, and without publication of this sort."

MEMBERSHIP INCREASE OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A minority report opposing the Siegel bill, under which the House membership should be increased to 483 based on the last census, was filed today by six members of the House Census Committee. The minority, three Republicans, announced that they would fight the measure on the floor, in the belief that "popular opinion and a majority of the members of the House" were opposed to further increase in the present size, 435.

The proposal agreed to by the majority, that the membership of the House be limited to 500 by a constitutional amendment, also was attacked. Addition of 48 members, as proposed in the bill, would cost the Government more than $1,000,000 annually, the report said.

GARDNER TO BE 7TH EX-GOVERNOR LIVING

Dockery, Francis, Stephens, Folk, Hadley and Major Other Former Executives.

With the retirement of Gov. Frederick D. Gardner tomorrow, Missouri's list of living former Governors will be increased to seven. Of these, Alexander M. Dockery, now Third Assistant Postmaster-General, is the oldest. The other living ex-Governors are: Ambassador David R. Francis, Lon V. Stephens, Joseph W. Folk, Herbert S. Hadley and Elliott W. Major.

Arthur M. Hyde, Governor-elect, and the seventh native born Missourian to be elected Governor of this State, will be the thirty-fifth Governor. He is the first Republican to be elected since Gov. Hadley, in 1908.

Francis was elected Governor in 1889. In 1896 he served as Secretary of the Interior in President Cleveland's Cabinet and in 1904 was president of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, which was held in St. Louis. He was appointed United States Ambassador to Russia by President Wilson.

Stephens, who was elected Governor in 1896, is a resident of St. Louis, and lives at 5836 Cabanne avenue.

Joseph W. Folk, elected Governor in 1904, attracted public attention when, as Circuit Attorney of St. Louis, he exposed a vast amount of political and official corruption and prosecuted numerous bribery cases. After his term as Governor expired he became chief counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission. At the present time he has a law office in Washington, D. C., but retains St. Louis as his voting residence.

Hadley Now Teaching Law.

Hadley was Prosecuting Attorney of Jackson County in 1901, and won public recognition by vigorous and successful prosecution of legal offenders. He was elected Attorney-General of Missouri in 1904 and Governor in 1908. At present he is professor of law at the University of Colorado.

Major served as Attorney-General of Missouri from 1908 to 1912, and was then elected Governor.

Gov. Gardner, who retires tomorrow, was a member of the Board of Freeholders in 1913 and assisted in drafting the present charter of St. Louis.

John Miller, who was elected Governor in 1825 to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Frederick Bates, was the only man to hold the office twice. There is a provision of the Missouri State Constitution which disqualifies a Governor from succeeding himself.

Son of Governor Held Same Office.

John S. Marmaduke, who was elected Governor in 1894, is the only son of a Governor to hold the same office. His father, Lieutenant-Governor M. M. Marmaduke, became Governor in February, 1844, when Gov. Thomas Reynolds ended his life. John S. Marmaduke died while in office and was succeeded by A. P. Morehouse, the Lieutenant-Governor. Morehouse ended his life at Maryville, Mo., three years after the expiration of his term of office.

Only two Governors of Missouri have been elected to the United States Senate, although one Senator was afterwards elected Governor and later became the Liberal-Republican candidate for Vice President on the ticket with Horace Greeley. Trusten Polk was elected Governor in 1856, and in the following year was elected United States Senator by the State Legislature. William J. Stone, Governor from 1892 to 1896, was elected Senator in 1903. Senator B. G. Brown, who served in the United States Senate from 1863 to 1866, was elected Governor on the Liberal-Republican ticket in 1871. He was Horace Greeley's running mate on the Liberal-Republican ticket for Vice President.

WEDDED TO TWO BROTHERS; SEEKS FREEDOM FROM EACH

Woman Files Suit to Annul Marriage to One and to Divorce the Other.

By the Associated Press.

PROSSER, Wash., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Rhoda Carter of Prosser filed suit for divorce here today against two men, brothers. According to Mrs. Carter, she married Thomas S. Carter at Yueka, Cal., in 1907, and says he left her in May of that year. In 1915 she married his brother, C. J. Carter, after, she says, he had told her that Thomas had obtained a divorce.

Mrs. Carter told the Court that upon investigation of records she could find no trace of her first husband having secured a divorce and asks annulment of the last marriage on that ground. Further, she asks to be divorced from her first husband on the grounds of desertion.

29 PER CENT AVERAGE DIVIDEND BY FALL RIVER COTTON MILLS

Total of $9,989,300 Paid in Year on Capitalization of $36,060,000.

By the Associated Press.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 8.—A new high record for dividends was made by the cotton mills of this city during 1920, according to a summary issued today. The total dividends paid during the mill year amounted to $9,989,300, an average of 29.148 per cent on a capitalization of $36,060,000. The best previous record was in 1918, when there was disbursement of $6,085,326 for a rate of 18.489 per cent.

The list shows an unusual number of large dividends paid during the year, ranging from 65 per cent down to 16½ per cent on common stock.

STATE COMMITTEES AT CAPITAL

Headquarters of Both Big Parties There for Next Four Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 8.—Permanent headquarters of the Republican and Democratic State committees have been moved to Jefferson City for the next four years, it was announced today.

The Republican headquarters for years have been at St. Louis, the transfer to Jefferson City being made partly because State Chairman Hughes on Monday will become State Banking Commissioner, with headquarters here. Quarters have been obtained in the Central Hotel, where the office will be supervised by A. C. McKibben of St. Louis County, publicity director of the State Committee. Frank Armstrong, assistant secretary of the Democratic State Committee, is here, arranging for an office for that committee, which will meet here Wednesday.

NO EXTRA TERM FOR SELPH, SAYS SPENCER

Senator Predicts New Postmaster Here Before September Ends —Going to Consult Hyde.

United States Senator Spencer stopped in St. Louis last night on his way from Washington to Jefferson City to confer with Governor-elect Hyde concerning Federal appointments in Missouri. He said that he did not anticipate the slightest bit of friction. He was asked about a report that he desires to name Charles Madison, a Kansas City lawyer, as United States District Attorney for the Western District of Missouri and that Hyde favors Isaac Kimbrell of Kansas City.

"The vacancy does not occur until March 1," he said, "and half a dozen very good men have been mentioned for the place. They are Madison, Beach and Kimbrell of Kansas City, Gorman and Lovan of Springfield, and Otis of St. Joseph. I am not only going to confer with Governor-elect Hyde regarding the appointment, but I also will consult the Congressmen of the western section of the State, particularly the one from Kansas City, the Republican Committee of Kansas City and the leading Republican women and men of that city."

Regarding a rumor that Postmaster Selph's friends had urged Senator Reed to use his influence to have Selph retained in his position until 1922, although his term expires next September, Senator Spencer said:

"I have heard of no such move and Senator Reed has not mentioned the St. Louis postmastership to me. I am uncommitted at this time so far as a successor to the present Postmaster is concerned, but, judging from the number of good Republicans who are being urged for the place, I predict that St. Louis will have a new Postmaster before the end of September."

Senator Spencer said the Ford-Newberry contest is presenting a record for expediency and lack of friction.

GRAIN WAREHOUSE OFFICE'S EXPENSES PAID FROM RECEIPTS

Auditing Committee Finds Appropriation for Department Ran Out Last May.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 8.—Report of the Auditing Committee appointed by Gov. Gardner to go over the accounts and transactions of the State institutions and departments, of which State Senator Thomas J. Lysaght of St. Joseph is chairman, will show that the State Grain Warehouse Commissioner's department's appropriation ran out in May, and that since that time, contrary to law, expenses of the department have been paid from its receipts without appropriation by the Legislature.

The department, of which James T. Bradshaw of Kansas City as Commissioner, is head, has 102 other employes, of which 48 are in the Kansas City office, 41 in the St. Louis office, 10 in the St. Joseph office and 5 at other places in the State.

Audit of the department's accounts was made at Kansas City Friday, and Bradshaw at that time informed the committee that when the appropriation became exhausted he consulted Gov. Gardner and Attorney-General McAllister and proceeded under their advice.

It appears that the State will not lose anything by the transaction, as no interest has been paid out, or other expense incurred because of it. On other occasions when such a condition has arisen in the affairs of various State institutions the boards in control at times have borrowed money from banks, on which loans interest was paid.

S. A. THOMPSON WED THIRD TIME

Miss Clara M. Matheson Becomes Wife of Late Banker's Son.

Samuel A. Thompson of the Planters Hotel, president of the William H. Thompson Investment Co., and son of the late William H. Thompson, who was president of the National Bank of Commerce and treasurer of the St. Louis World's Fair, was married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Miss Clara M. Matheson of 4561 Washington boulevard. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John W. McIvor, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, at the home of Thompson's sister in Brentmoor Park.

This was Thompson's third marriage. His other wives divorced him, one in 1910 and the other in 1919. The bride formerly lived in Minnesota.

COMMITTEE MEETING BREAKS UP IN SCRAMBLE FOR TOYS

Pennsylvania Manufacturer Plays Santa Claus to Congressmen After Tariff Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The staid business of tariff making went by the board today in the House Ways and Means Committee room while committee members indulged in a scramble for toys that rivaled a Christmas festivity. The committeemen went home with dolls and animals of all sizes bulging from their pockets for the joy of many congressional families.

J. O. Foote, a toy manufacturer of Stroudsburg, Pa., played Santa Claus. He came to appeal for tariff protection on toys, particularly celluloid toys. Every time American ingenuity turned out a new and appealing toy, he said, Japanese imitators duplicated it and shipped over tons for sale at a lower wholesale rate than American factories could make them.

To support his argument, Foote came armed with a huge box of toys, a regular carload lot, even for a Santa Claus sled. He exhibited them to the committeemen, seated solemnly behind the great horseshoe desk on its high platform which lends pomp and circumstance to Ways and Means Committee deliberations.

His argument finished, Foote said he had no further use for his exhibits and the scramble began. The solons shucked off years as they used to shuck their clothes at the old swimmin' hole. They were boys again in a second and when the rush was stopped the top box was swept clean.

BODIES OF EXILED EMPEROR AND WIFE ARRIVE IN BRAZIL

Members of Former ex-Royal Family Return After 31 Years With Body of Dom Pedro II.

By the Associated Press.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 8.—The last chapter of Brazil's history as an Empire was written today with the arrival from Portugal, aboard the Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo, of the bodies of former Emperor Dom Pedro II and Empress Thereza Christina, who were exiled on the birth of the republic in 1889.

Accompanying the bodies were Baron Muaitba, the former Emperor's secretary, Count Deu, husband of former Princess Isabel, and his son, Prince Pedro de Braganza. All of them are returning to Brazil for the first time in 31 years.

Isabel, who, as Regent, signed the decree freeing the slaves one year before the family was exiled, was unable to come, as she is in bad health.

Eagle Attacking Children Killed.

THEATER MEN PLAN BENEFIT SHOWS FOR CHILD RELIEF

Moving Picture Houses Expected to Give Receipts Jan. 26 Toward $100,000 Fund for Europeans.

Members of the St. Louis Film Board of Trade and managers of several local picture theaters at a special meeting last night discussed plans for giving benefit shows Jan. 26 to raise $100,000 to be given to the fund for child relief in Central Europe.

The meeting was called following the receipt of a letter from Herbert Hoover, director of the nation-wide campaign for the fund, asking aid from the motion picture theaters. It is expected that all of the St. Louis theaters will give benefit shows, and exhibitors in a radius of 150 miles also will be asked to turn over their theaters for one day for the benefit of starving children in Europe.

It was decided to send invitations to all theater owners in towns near St. Louis to attend a meeting to be held here Tuesday at the Elks Club to discuss further plans for the benefit shows. A committee on arrangements was appointed, composed of Barney Rosenthal, Sidney Baker, Barney Fegon, G. E. Aker and F. Fox.

SAMPLE ARMY BLANKETS

Ask for yours NOW!

DEAR MADAM: This offer is especially for you. We have recently undertaken to aid in the distribution of more than a million dollars' worth of Army Blankets. They were made for the Government, and, after the signing of the armistice, were turned back to the manufacturers.

And here is something the significance of which we want you to be sure to get: THEY ARE GUARANTEED TO BE ALL WOOL, not 75 per cent wool; THEY ARE WARRANTED TO BE NEW, not renewed, renovated, or reclaimed; and THEY MUST BE SATISFACTORY IN EVERY RESPECT BEFORE WE SHALL PERMIT YOU TO PAY US A CENT; otherwise they are to be returned at our expense—unused, of course—within ten days.

The size is 59x84 inches; the color khaki; the price during this stupendous, nation-wide distribution is $7.85 each—but remember, not a cent in advance nor at any other time unless you fully appreciate the bargain we have given you. If you are entirely satisfied, remit $1.85 in ten days, and then $2 a month for three months for each blanket ordered, or five per cent less for full payment in ten days.

Order one sample blanket at this special price now by writing us on a postal card or slip of paper, "I accept your Army Blanket offer," with your postoffice address. Then, when you receive it and are pleased with it, order as many more as you like at the same price and on the same terms. We will ship by prepaid parcel-post at our own expense.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

"Edna" writes: "I suffer with rheumatism all the time and I shall be very glad if you can tell me something to relieve me."

Answer: I can give you a prescription which will not only relieve, but should obliterate your rheumatism. This is my favorite remedy and from the number of letters received from people who have used it proves its value in rheumatism. The following is made by mixing well, taking a teaspoonful at meal times and again before retiring: Comp. essence Cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid Balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup Sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs.; iodide of potassium, 2 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half ounce; sodium salicylate, 4 drams.

"O. C. B." writes: "I am seeking some safe method to reduce my flesh. While my frame is large I am getting real fat, and, of course, it is embarrassing."

Answer: For many years I have placed reliance in the formula known as Arbolone tablets packed in sealed tubes with full directions for home use. Some have reduced as much as 40 pounds in a few weeks.

Interested asks: "I am constipated, tongue coated, have headache, dizzy spells and indigestion sometimes. Please advise."

Answer: I advise that you begin using Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). These tablets are laxative, act on the liver, kidneys and bowels and tend to keep the blood pure, by arousing the eliminative functions. Relief should follow quickly.

"Manager" writes: "I have pains in my spine and frightful headache in back of head, fainting spells, twitching and trembling, sleeplessness and loss of appetite.

Answer: In all such cases the assimilative functions have not kept pace with waste functions and a powerful harmless tonic treatment is needed. I find Cadomene tablets unexcelled and astonishingly beneficial in such cases and advise them for you.

"Jane" says: "Some time ago I contracted a very severe cold and I have tried many remedies, but they do not seem to help me at all. I wish you would advise me what to do."

Answer: What you need is a laxative cough syrup, one that will drive the cold from your system. The following prescription will check your cold and cough: Get a 2½-oz. package of concentrated essence Mentho-Laxene and take according to directions on the bottle.

Celia asks: "My hair is too oily and my scalp itches with dandruff. Of late it is combing out too much. What is a good treatment."

Answer: Obtain plain yellow Minyol from your druggist in 4-oz. jar and apply as per direction. This cleans, purifies, cools and invigorates the hair and scalp, thus stopping the loss of the hair. Dandruff and itching are at once relieved. Men and women all over the country now use it regularly.

"Worried" writes: "Have been doctoring for kidney trouble and now want your advice. Also backache affects me dreadfully. Can hardly move when I awake in the morning."

Answer: I think if you will take Balmwort tablets regularly for a few weeks your kidneys and bladder will become normal and such symptoms vanish. This is unequalled for such cases, in my estimation.

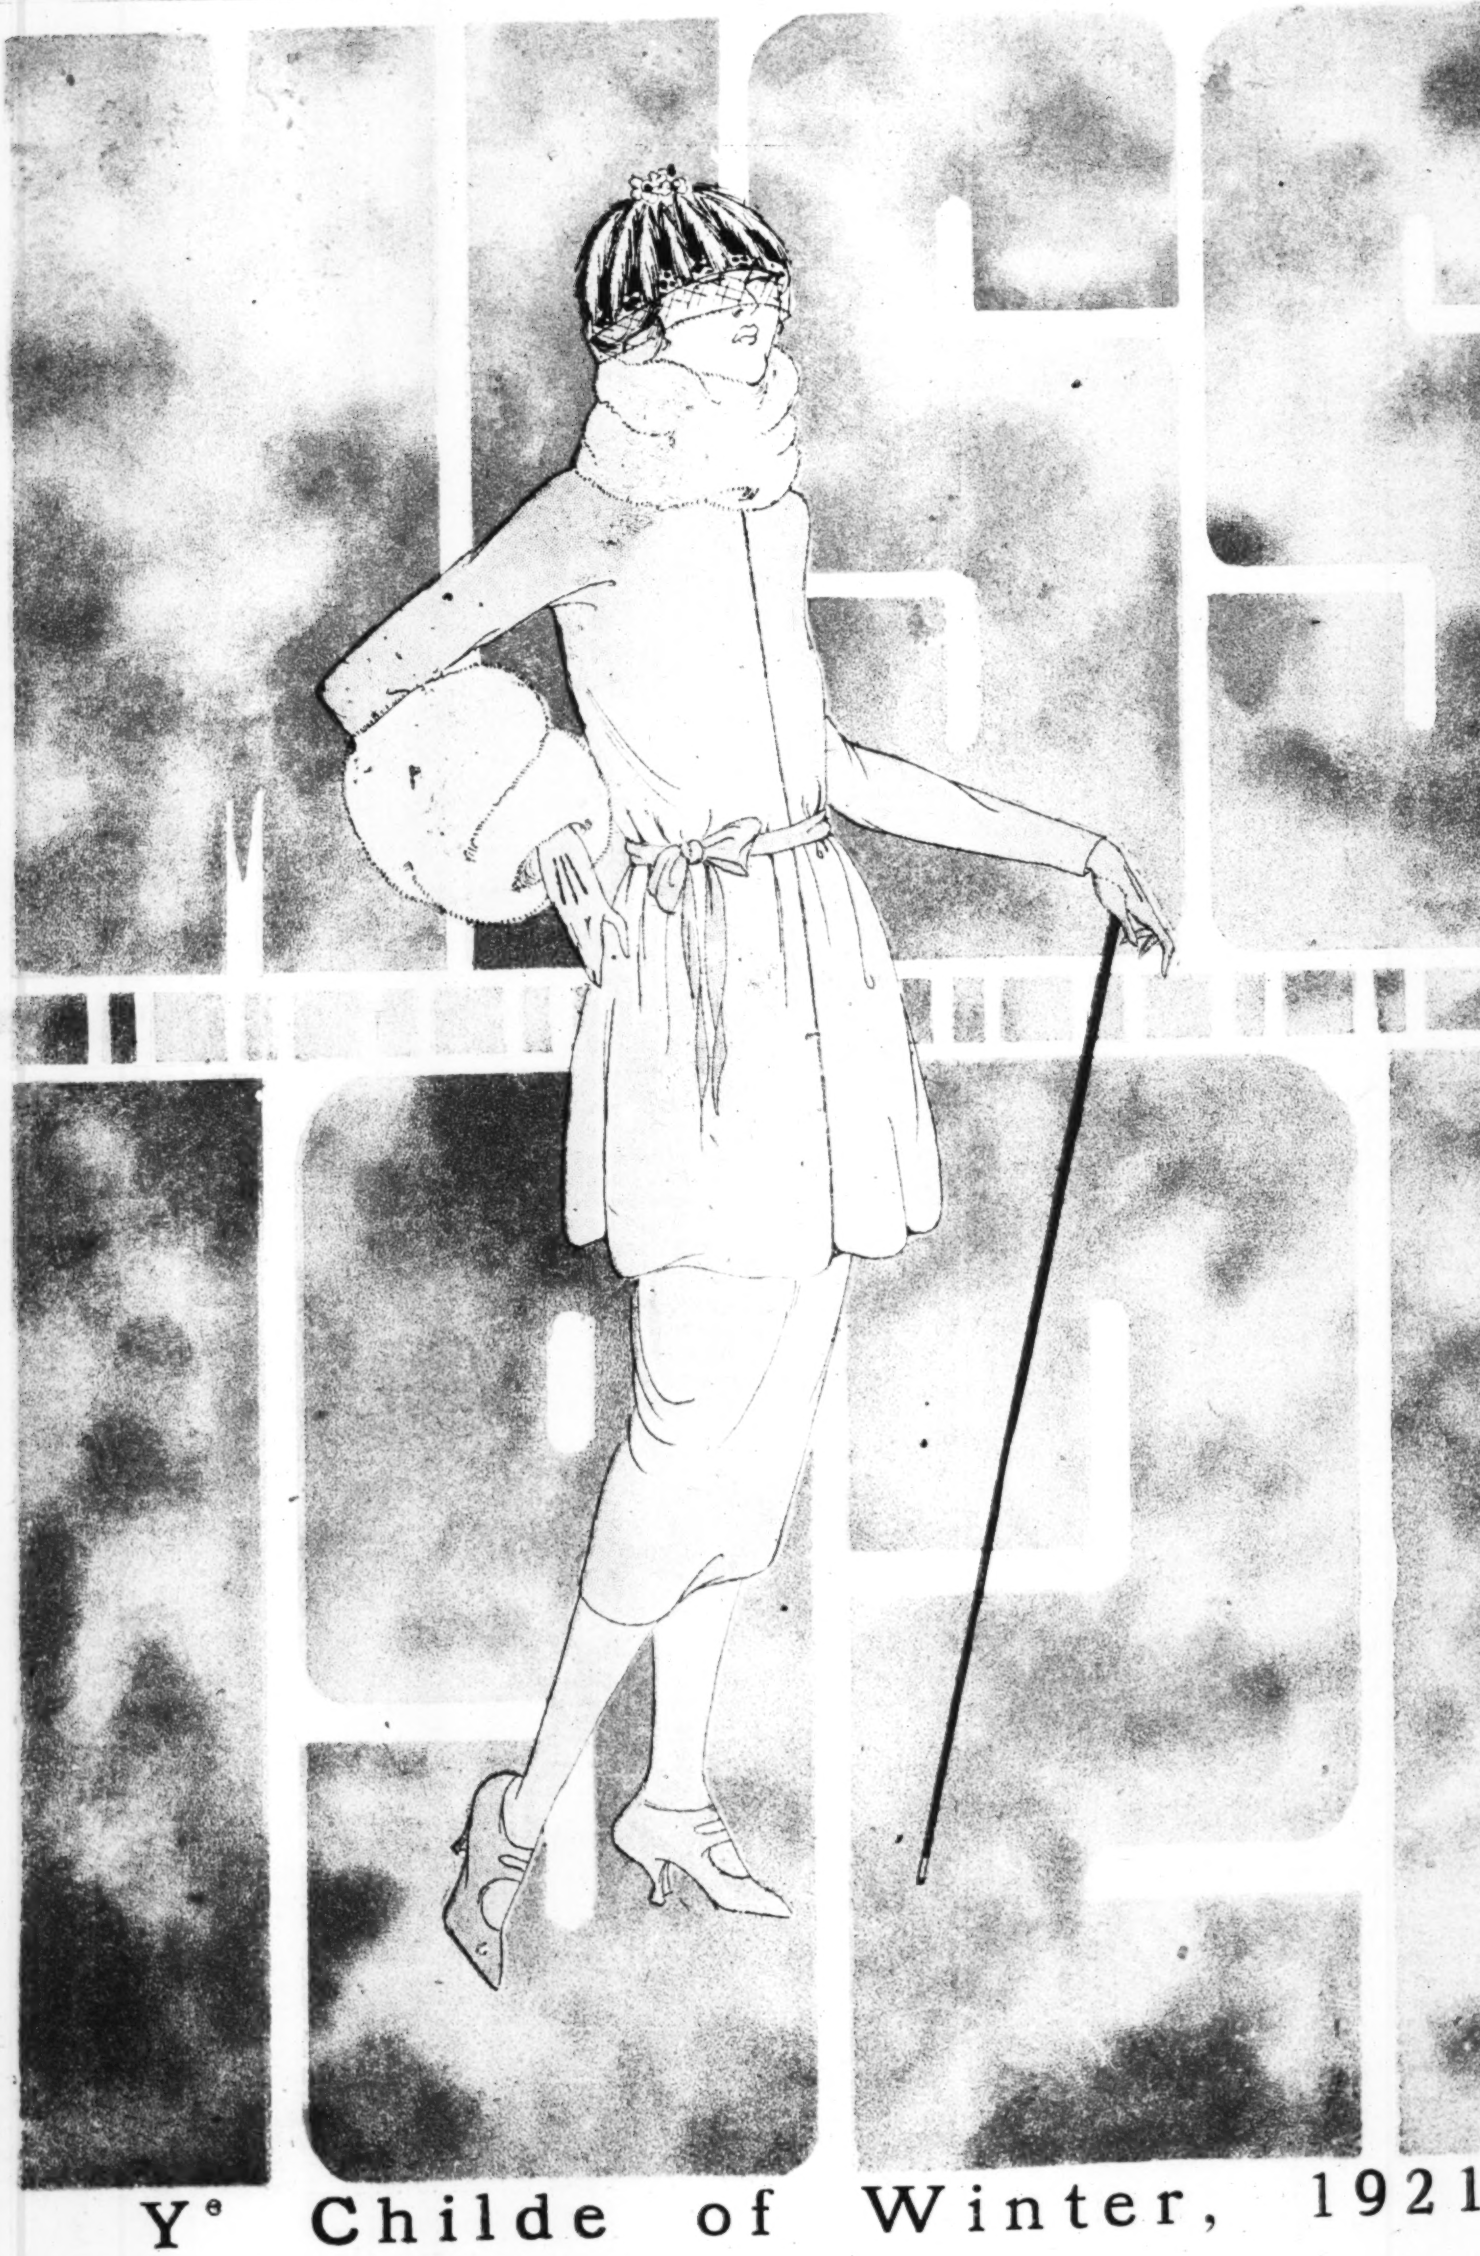
The POST-DISPATCH SUNDAY MAGAZ

ST. LOUIS, MO., JANUARY 9, 1921



Ye Childe of Winter, 1921

New Hunting Ground for Those - Who Prey on the Credulous -

Swindlers who live by their wits have discovered that many of the old schemes, long shopworn in the East, can be "worked" along the Gulf Coast resorts—The case of a bogus "Eddie" Richenbacher and a wire-tapping scheme that cost a trusting farmer his "roll" -o- -o- -o- -o- -o- -o-

THE large cities of the North no longer are the principal hunting ground for high-class confidence men—in the winter season, at least. Summer climes now attain that high position. Gentry who prefer to live by wits rather than by work have found the South a profitable field of late and have realized, delightedly, that many tricks, shopworn in New York, are still new along the gulf coast.

Two recent occurrences may be quoted in this connection.

About a fortnight before Christmas a rather unassuming young man was a passenger on one of the through trains from the North. He was quiet and unobtrusive on the trip to Jacksonville, but, as they neared that city, he confided to an acquaintance that he was Eddie Rickenbacker, noted aviator, whose exploits as an "ace" during the war were of world repute.

The pseudo Rickenbacker explained that he was on his way to Palm Beach and that he preferred to travel—well, not exactly incognito, but without undue publicity. The chance acquaintance promptly vowed eternal secrecy and then, with equal promptitude, disclosed his "friend's" identity in the strictest confidence. It was too good an opportunity to bask in the limelight shed by Rickenbacker.

They stopped off at Jacksonville and the word ran like wildfire. "Rickenbacker" was idolized immediately and did not seem so very much put out over the fact that his presence had been disclosed. One daily newspaper heralded his arrival. Another editor had some doubts. The latter wired out West to a certain training camp near which he thought he might get some information about Rickenbacker.

However, the newly arrived "aviator" played his part so well that no one but the editor nourished doubts. The visitor undoubtedly had the parlance of the air camps down pat and could talk glibly of any man in flying circles.

During his brief stay at Jacksonville, he met a New York salesman for a brass concern. He mentioned casually that he had been intrusted with placing agencies for a well-known make of automobile and that the salesman was exactly the sort of person he was looking for. The two decided to talk it over on a motor trip.

They started for Palm Beach, but became so interested in business that they decided to return from Melbourne, a point on the way. The "aviator" had succeeded in borrowing $1000 from his traveling companion at this point, on the plea that one of his own checks had failed to arrive, but the salesman, with the promise of a profitable agency before him, did not see the significance in the hurried change of plans.

The two returned to Jacksonville, where they visited a lawyer and drew up a contract whereby the salesman was to become agent for a well-known car, at a salary of $25,000 a year. The "aviator" gave a dinner to celebrate the occasion. He paid for both it and the cost of the contract with the salesman's own money.

That this was preliminary to another "touch" now seems certain. But in the meantime a woman had arisen in the case. A Miss Frances Hannan, who had met the aviator at the hotel, had become attracted by the suave ways of the "aviator." He urged an immediate wedding. She consented. Her mother objected, but the girl insisted she had met the aviator before and that she knew all about him. The couple drove by motor to St. Augustine and were married at the Flagler Memorial Church by the Rev. Barton B. Bigler.

Entertainments at the hotel and at fashionable homes in Jacksonville were immediately arranged. But the "aviator" found that his expected checks had not arrived. By aid of the introductions he had secured, he had no trouble in cashing other checks for large amounts. Then he borrowed a $10,000 automobile and went for a drive.

It may have been some premonition that the editor who doubted had at last received a wire from an aerial station along the Mexican border, where the real Rickenbacker happened to be at the time, that impelled the impostor to decide the time was about ripe for a getaway. At all events, he and his wife, immediately on their return, left as if to go to their hotel. That was the last seen of "Rickenbacker."

Delay in disclosing the identity of the impostor was due to two causes. It appears that some friend of the flying colony at the real Rickenbacker's station actually was to be married in Florida, and the aviators stationed there thought he had wired out Rickenbacker's name as a joke. They were in no hurry to respond, therefore. Rickenbacker himself, who might have taken the matter more seriously, was away at the time, somewhere between stations along the border. When the answer to the editor's wire reached Jacksonville, the impostor had had time to complete part of his swindle, at least.

In the meantime, however, his arrival is mourned by W. M. Farrans, the salesman who loaned him the first $1000, by several wealthy members of Jacksonville society, who cashed the imposter's checks, and by the family of the bride.

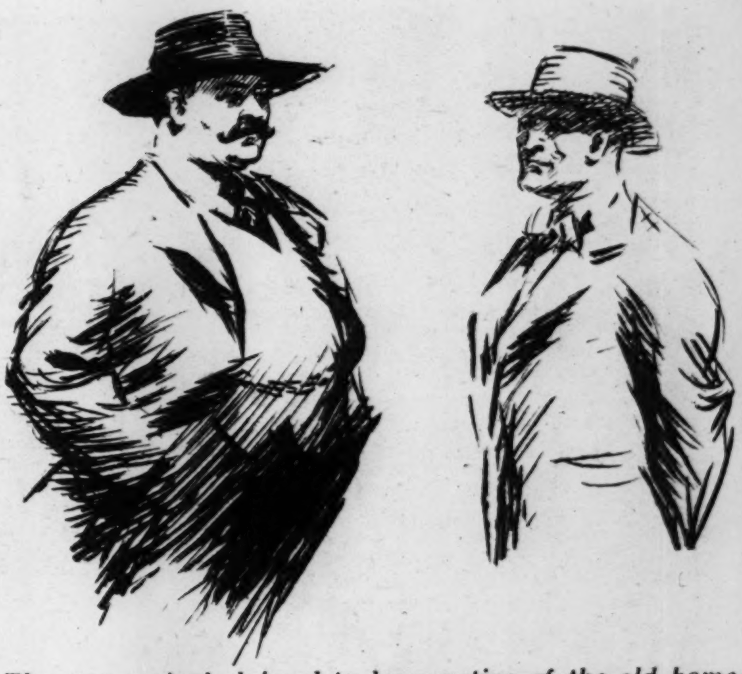
And now for another story:

A man about 50 years of age was seated on a bench overlooking Lake Lucerne at Orlando, Fla. Stamped on his dress and on his face was that indelible mark of "retired farmer." He was one of the hundred thousand who come to Florida in the winter to escape the ravages of the cold winds and sleet and snow of his native land.

Others came and sat beside him for a few moments, passed the time of day, and went on their way—for, be it known, Lucerne Park is a favorite resting spot of the idle rich and those not so rich but idle.

A farmer-looking fellow came up, stood admiring the swans, and then addressed the man on the bench.



The new arrival claimed to be a native of the old home town of Bakersville.

"Pleasant weather?" he advanced.

"Yes," replied the farmer; "a little soft and a little too warm for this time of the year. I expect it will moisten up before the day is passed."

"Here for the winter?" said the newcomer, changing the subject.

"Yes." And he continued, with a show of pride: "My seventh winter. Growing older all the time—maybe I shall settle here permanently ere long."

"What might your name be?"

Now, in the old West, if you asked a man his name and where he was from, it would have been the signal for a gun play, and the man with the quickest draw would have had to place himself in the front of a posse if he desired to continue to admire the scenery and absorb the climate. In Florida, "What's your name and where are you from?" is the natural form of salutation. You are not one bit friendly if you don't make such an inquiry upon his first acquaintance.

"My name's Baker, Samuel G. Baker of Bakersville, Ia. And what is your name and where do you hail from?"

"Glad to make your acquaintance, Mr. Baker. My name is Jones; I am from Newston, Pa. And what business are you in?"

"Farmer—got the best farm in Alachua County—640 acres. Retired, though. Live in town in summer and in Florida in winter. And what is your bsiness?"

"I am not so fortunate. I have a farm, but have to stay by it—labor too shiftless"——

And the conversation drifts to every topic from the League of Nations to the league of rations.

The gentlemen part as old friends and hope to meet each other again.

Jones hastens to the best hotel and confers with his associates. Dun's, the postoffice guide, railroad folders, gazeteers, bank directories and other pamphlets and books referring to Bakersville, Ia., are consulted, and for two days the gang of confidence men rehearse the story of Baker and Bakersville. Every word that Jones wormed from Baker is reduced to the nth power of information.

* * * * *

A short time later, Baker is again enjoying the air by Lake Lucerne, Orlando. He does not know that his late acquaintance has been busy with associates in thoroughly posting themselves on Bakersville and its citizens.

A man approaches him casually. The newcomer is tall, portly, with a black mustache and a wide-brimmed hat. He stops suddenly.

"Well, of all things!" he exclaims in surprise, "if this isn't Mr. Baker! How are you, sir? And how is Mrs. Baker?"

Baker arises and shakes the out-

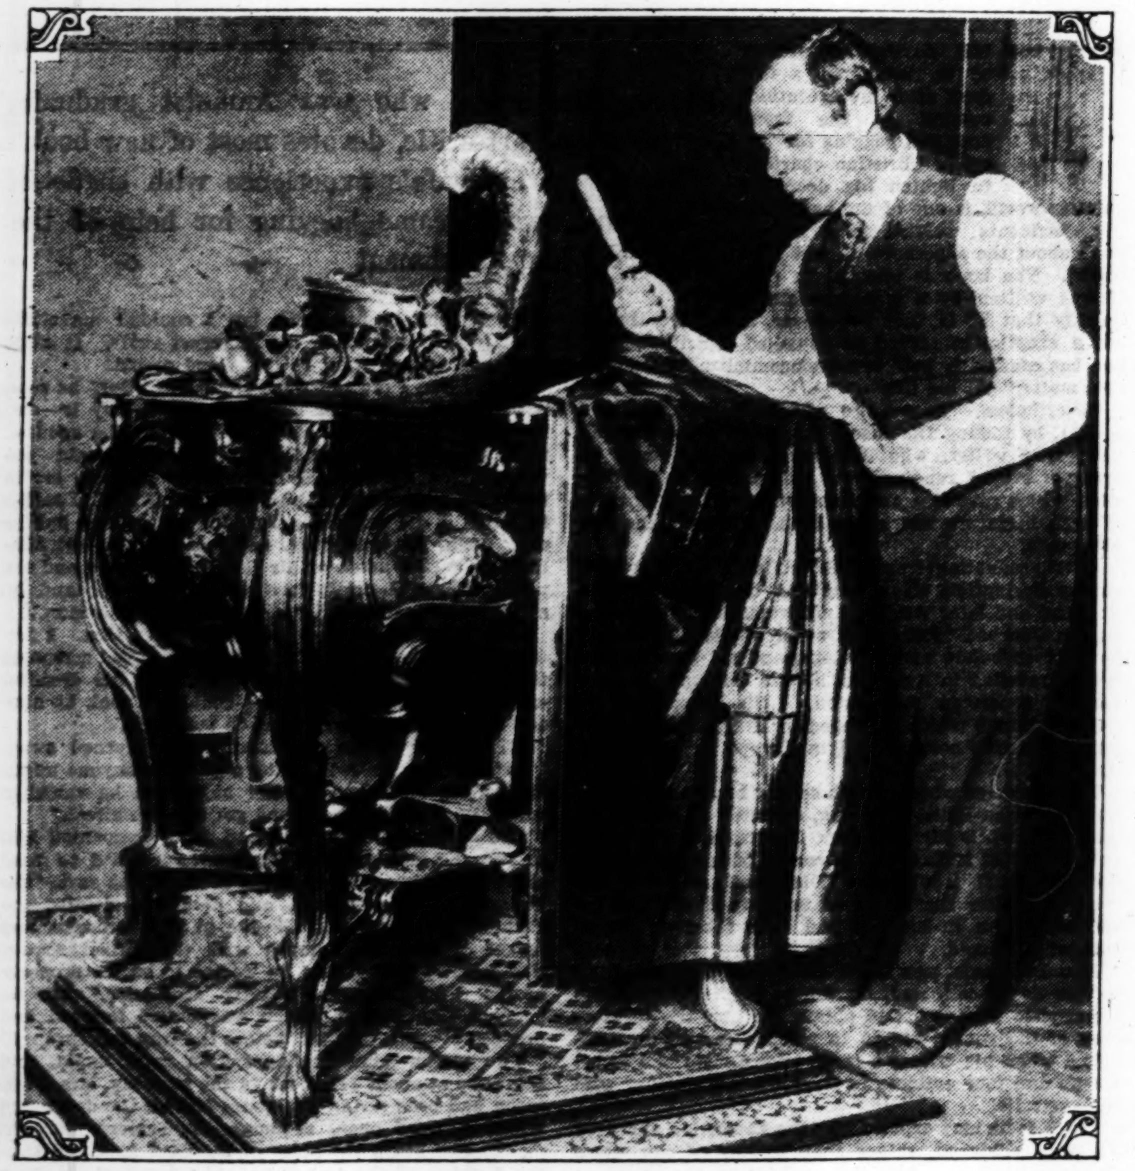
One young woman was completely swept off her feet and agreed to wed the presumed aviator.

THE STORY OF THE WORLD'S MOST WONDERFUL WOOD CARVER

How Rafael Loiza, poor and living in a remote South American village, dreamed of achieving a masterpiece, and how he succeeded — Many people at New York exhibit were "fooled" by his representations of common articles :: :: ::



Rafael Loiza, the wood carver from South America, and some of his examples of astonishing realism.

READERS of the Sunday Post-Dispatch will remember in a recent issue of the Rotogravure Section, three pictures of remarkable wood carvings on exhibition in New York City. They were the work of Rafael Loiza, from far-away Colombia, South America.

The pieces included an ornate vase some nine feet high, a table with a woman's hat and coat lying thereon and a chair upon which were a woman's corset and other articles of wearing apparel. Although carved from hard woods, the artist had used such cunning in imitating the textures of the different fabrics of the articles represented that spectators frequently mistook the articles on the table and the chair for the actual coat, stockings, etc., which they represented.

Curious work, with a curious history behind it!

In the town of Medellin, which lies in a valley deep in the Colombian Andes, the youth Loiza was apprenticed by his father, a poor, hard-working belt maker, first to his own trade and then to a cabinet maker. It was in the coffee-growing country. The people were of old-time Spanish stock. The simplicities of life prevailed. Men were accustomed to die what they had been born. In young Loiza, though, expansive desires moved. He felt vague ambition, and the longing to go out and cut an admirable figure in the great world beyond the valleys of the Andes.

He was small and stocky, pale and stolid, with probably a little Indian blood from away back. There was more doggedness in him than flare. He quieted down to a manhood of building chairs and tables for the haciendas of the coffee-growing hidalgos, married, saw a family of 10 children grow about him, and passed to middle life. Then his desire for glories revived.

He could draw and paint, but better than all was his sculpture. In his cabinet making he was accustomed to carve table legs and chair backs with an ornate exuberance that drew litanies of praise from his patrons. Now, in middle life, he would give himself to ambitious sculpture in wood. Around were the great forests of the Andes, of cedar, of walnut, of mahogany. Thus environed by valuable woods, an aspiring cabinet maker needs must think in the medium of wood.

And, Loiza explained, if there was merit in sculpturing in marble, which was easy to work, there was more merit in sculpturing in wood, which was difficult to work. The ideal of a masterpiece formed in his mind.

Was the subject a cedar-carved puma of the mountains, with yellow boxwood eyes? Or a great Christ crucified, such as stand in the innumerable quaint churches of the Andes? Or the figure of one of the conquistadores of old, of strong Pizzaro himself, or of Boliver of the Independence? It was none of these.

The respectable South American husband and father of 10 children dreamed that his wood carving should represent the boudoir of a pretty, fashionable lady. He would cut out of wood, with affection and the finest detail, those pleasant imagined retreats of the fine senoras and senoritas of the wealthy planters, so that the carvings might be set in a room and one might imagine that milady had just stepped out. He set to work, giving all his leisure time, and began with a table, a lady's hat and coat lying on its top and her shoes, stockings and garters on its lower shelf.

The young wife of one of the hidalgos of the valley owned a coat of the latest mode (according to the modes in the Andes 15 years ago). Loiza fancied the coat for his wooden boudoir. He borrowed it to serve as a model. A dashing senorita loaned him her hat, a jaunty creation and the envy of all the valley. From a third lady he got a pair of shoes of elegant cut and other necessaries. He explained to Donna Clara, Donna Blanca and Donna Innocenza that he, a poor cabinet maker, was not familiar with things to be found in the dressing room of a pretty lady.

Loiza labored for half a dozen years, and completed the first piece of his boudoir, the table.

One morning, with a mule load of children and the precious table on a stretcher borne by a couple of town porters, Loiza set out from his town for the next town in the direction of the capital, Bogota. In this town he rented a shack for a day, set his table on a pedestal and invited the villagers to come and behold a great marvel—20 centavos apiece.

Ambitious of displaying his creation in a world of art and enlightenment such as Bogota, the capital, Loiza had planned to journey across the several hundred roadless miles of mountain and jungle to the great city. All his savings had gone to buy a burro to carry his infants. He would exhibit the table in each village along his route and would gain enough for food and for the hire of carriers to transport his table to the next village.

In the first town two score of the plantation folk came to see the table, and Loiza rejoiced. His progress was a continued success. The simple hill people, with an eye for verisimilitude, cried out in admiration of the table.

The women chattered that they had tried to take the hat and put it on their heads. The men shouted that they would like to own the leather coat when the rainy season came. Youths wanted to know where they could buy such shoes for their sweethearts. Loiza collected centavos in his purse and flatteries in his brain, and the party's journey through the village-strewn wilderness to Bogota was a pleasure.

It is true that one day, while passing through a thicket, the pilgrims saw a jaguar, and nearly fell into a ravine with fright. Once an anaconda swung from a tree along the path ahead. A boy chased a lizard and turned an ankle badly, and shoes, though tough and heavy, wore out astonishingly. But there were always money and glory ahead, and in these two lies most of the earth's blessedness.

At Bogota Loiza's happiness climaxed. He placed his table on exhibition, and hundreds of people paid to see it. He was praised as the genius of the mountains. He made carvings for great people, for the President of the republic, for the Archbishop. When the exposition was held at Bogota, Loiza's work was not given the first prize in the wood-carving class—that was not expressive enough. Some other man was awarded first honors. He was given a certificate saying that there were no other entries able to compete with his.

In this time of glory he continued to work on his ideal conception, the lady's boudoir. He worked day and night, first on a chair with a corset lying on it, and slippers and stockings beneath, and then on a wardrobe according to his own conception. It was a great, ornate vase, with hangers inside. In a drawer at the bottom he carved out a used stocking, tossed in negligently. The wardrobe-vase was much admired, though evil persons mocked and said that it was a curious design for a piece of budoir furniture—why the hiding place? When Loiza had proceeded thus far with his work, new fires flamed in his head.

He felt now that Bogota was not a big enough circle for his ambitions, and, too, Presidents and Archbishops were generous with compliments and certificates—and little money. With these premises, the reasoning was simple. His next step was New York, the metropolis of the West, and money pocket for the artists of the world. He would exhibit his wooden boudoir in New York, where there were 6,000,000 to come and see and pay. And, thus, at the top of fortune, he would complete his creation, bureau, bed and all.

With an adventure so grandiose Loiza felt he must embark upon it alone. He provided for his family as he could in Bogota, and started north. He bought an old barge and, manning it by himself, floated down the romantic Magdalena to the Caribbean Sea. Again he financed himself by exhibiting his work, now on his barge, to the villagers along the river. Twice during the voyage the wardrobe-vase rolled into the water, and twice the devoted Loiza dove and swam among the alligators and recovered it. Once it was half full of sand and he had to struggle like a hero to get it back to the drifting barge.

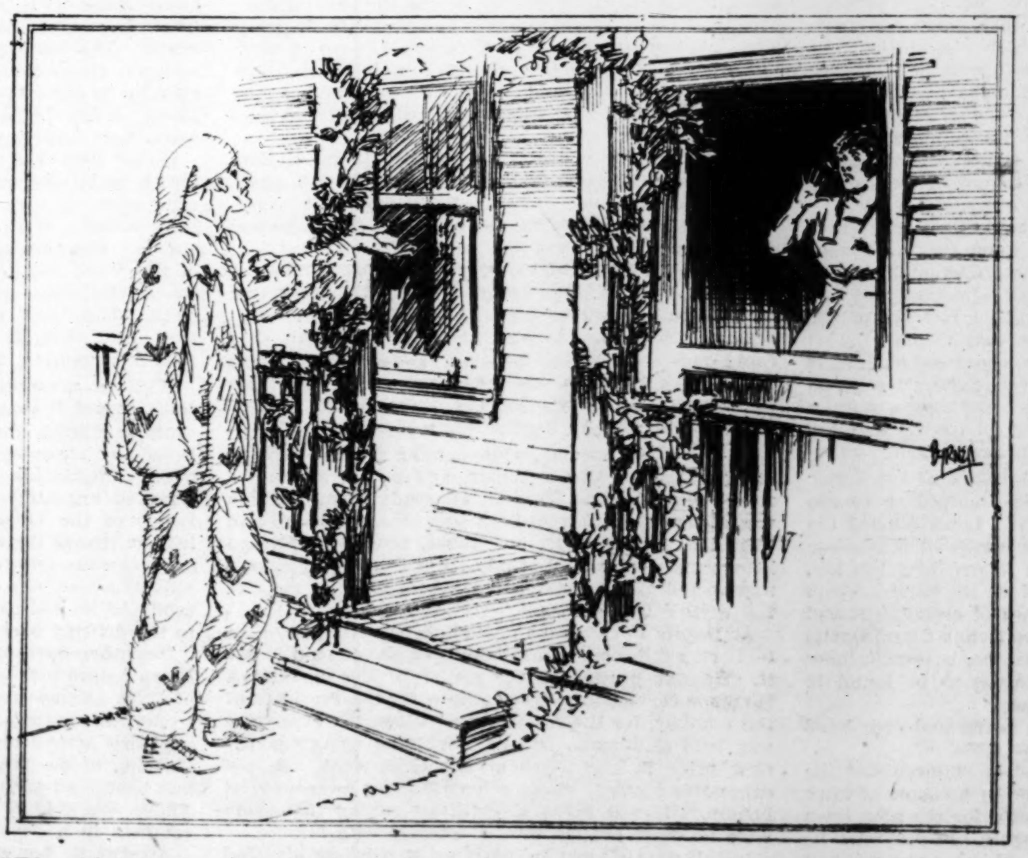
He gathered steamship fare to Cuba. A friendly Costa Rican helped him to New York. He came with visions of Fifth avenue crowds rushing into a gala showroom to see his carvings.

Before arrangements could be made for the first showing of the treasures, his small supply of money had nearly all melted away, and this genius from the Andes was glad to get a job at polishing phonograph cabinets in a department store.

Afterward, however, the public made up its mind that here was something really worth seeing, so Loiza is counting his money now, and planning what he will buy for the wife and ten children at home.

"TRUE" GHOST STORY WRITTEN BY AN UNBELIEVER

Sidney Dickinson, who was Amherst graduate, newspaper writer and art critic, devotes most of new book of "Weird Tales" to his wife's experience with shade of executed criminal, which came begging for help of the living to shorten his punishment -o- o- -o- -o-



"The thing held out something he had in his hand, but I could not make out what it was, and made the strangest reply. It said: 'Madame, do you want to buy some soap?'"

THE daylight apparition of a murderer, a few days after his execution, coming to the front door and begging for "an act of Christian charity" to lighten his doom in another world, is one of the hair-raising incidents related in a unique book about the supernatural, just published. The book is unusual in that it was written by a man who states frankly that he is "not a believer, any more than I am a skeptic, in regard to so-called 'Spiritualism,'" and has constantly held to a "noncommittal attitude in this matter" all his life.

Nevertheless, "True Tales of the Weird" (Duffield & Co.), by Sidney Dickinson, a veteran art critic and newspaper writer, who died recently, sets forth an array of events, ranging from the sportive to the terrible, which give it a grewsome eminence in the mass of such literature which has been printed in the last few years.

After graduating from Amherst in 1874, he worked on the Springfield Republican and the San Francisco Bulletin, and later was art and dramatic critic on the Boston Journal. After protracted studies in Europe he lectured before many colleges and art associations. While traveling in Australia, he was correspondent for various American publications. His book tells of "weird" things which happened to Mrs. Dickinson and himself in this country and in Europe, as well as in Australia.

The murderer whose wraith sought human assistance was Frederick Bailey Deeming, executed at Melbourne, Australia, while Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson were living in a suburb of Melbourne. As correspondent for several New England newspapers Dickinson attended the trial, and after the man's sentence to death had interviewed him in his cell and even taken a plaster cast of his hand.

Mrs. Dickinson, now dead, accompanied her husband to the death cell, and, on the pitiful request of the condemned man, tried to obtain for him the forgiveness of the young woman to whom Deeming was engaged when his crimes became known. He had killed a wife and four children in England, and another wife in Australia.

These facts may explain why the apparition appeared to Mrs. Dickinson, rather than to any of the man's former associates. And the presence in the house of the cast from the man's hand may have had something to do with it.

As Mrs. Dickinson related the incident to her husband, she was sewing, about the middle of the afternoon, when she heard the latch of the front gate click. Thinking it was a peddler, she went to the door, to tell him she did not wish to buy anything. But when she got to the door and looked at the figure, which was standing just inside the gate and facing the house, she said she knew it was "nothing which belonged to this world."

She said its clothes were the strangest looking things she ever saw on anybody. "There was no style or fit to them, and they seemed more like clothes made out of flour sacks than anything else—very coarse and ungainly. And an odd thing about them was that they had queer, triangular black designs on them here and there.

"But the cap the figure wore was the strangest thing of all—it was of dingy white cloth and fitted close to the head, and it had a sort of flap hanging down behind almost to the shoulders."

In Mrs. Dickinson's words: "The figure came up to the two steps leading to the veranda, and I think it would have come up to the door; but I said: 'Stop!' And it stood still where it was. It was still indistinct, and I felt as though it strained my eyes to see it; the face was vague, and did not seem like any face I had ever seen before.

"I said: 'Who are you, and what do you want?'

"The Thing held out something he had in his hand, but I couldn't make out what it was, and made the strangest reply. It said: 'Madame, do you want to buy some soap?'

"I told him I did not want any soap. 'But,' he said, 'I must sell some, and I beg of you to buy it'—and when I again refused, his voice took on the saddest, most pathetic tone, and he said: 'I thought you would. You were kinder to me when you saw me in the jail.' 'I never saw you before in my life!' I said—for truly I did not recognize him even then; but he said: 'Oh, yes, you have, and you tried to get Miss Rounsfell' (the name of his fiancee) 'to come and see me.' 'What!' I cried; 'are you Deeming?' And he said: 'Yes, madame, I am that unfortunate man.'

"I don't quite know what I said after that. I felt as though I should die of fright, and I think I screamed to him to go away, that the thought of his dreadful crimes horrified me so that I could not look at him, and that he must never come to me again.

"He looked at me reproachfully and turned away. I watched him go to the gate, open it as anyone might have done, and close it after him—then he vanished instantly, the moment he had got into the street."

The author says his wife had not accompanied him to see the execution and had even refused to read any of the newspaper accounts of it, yet, he says, "she had described accurately, and in all its details, the garb worn on the scaffold—the uncouth trousers and jacket of sacking, stamped with the 'Broad Arrow' that marked both it and its wearer to be the property of the Crown, and the ghastly 'death cap,' with its pendant flap behind, which was pulled forward and dropped over his face just before the trap was sprung!"

Two weeks later, the apparition came again, and this time at about 11 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Dickinson had been airing the house and all the doors and windows were open, although the screens were in place. She heard the noise of the back gate and then the barking of the two dogs. She went to the back door and looked out, just in time to see the dogs tearing past, with their tails between their legs, and then disappearing around the corner of the house.

Then she saw a man standing just inside the gate. At first his eyes seemed to follow the flight of the dogs, then they turned to Mrs. Dickinson, and she recognized Deeming. Instantly she shut and locked the back and front doors, and wanted to bolt the windows, but was afraid that in doing so she would look out of one of them and see him near her. He circled about the house once, and after a while, hoping he had gone away, Mrs. Dickinson peeped out of a front window and saw him on the veranda, standing near and facing the door.

"He did not seem to notice me, and I watched him for some time," she told her husband later. "He was dressed just as he had been before, and looked the same; but I could see him much more clearly than the first time, and if I had not known who it was, I should have thought it was a living man.

"I don't know how it was, but as I stood watching him I found that I wasn't afraid of him at all. He looked so sad and pitiful, and stood there so patiently, that I began to feel as I might toward some poor beggar; he seemed just like one, waiting for something to eat. Then I thought how he had pleaded the other day for assistance, and how I had turned him away—and, although it was like death to face him again, I went into the hall and opened the door." The screen door was closed and locked and they looked at each other through it. Her narrative continues:

"'I know who you are, this time,' I said. 'I told you never to come here again. Why have you done so?'

"'Madame,' he replied, 'I have come for help.'

"'I told you the other day I could do nothing for you,' I said.

"'But you can, if you will,' he answered, 'and there is nobody else I can reach. Don't be afraid of me—I won't hurt you. I need someone to show me Christian charity, and I thought you were kind and would help me.'

"Those were his exact words, and it seemed almost blasphemy for such a creature to use them. While he was saying this he kept his eyes on mine—great, pleading eyes, like those of a dog—they made me think he was trying to say things for which he could not find words, and—I don't know why—I began to feel sorry for him.

"'I don't understand at all what you mean,' I said. 'Your awful crimes horrify me, and I can hardly bear to look at you. Why should you distress me as you do?'

"'I don't want to distress you,' he replied, 'but I must get out of this horrible place!'

"'What do you mean by "this horrible place"? I cannot understand you.'

"'I can't make you understand,' he said. 'They won't let me.' I don't know what he meant by 'they,' but I thought it was some beings that controlled him, though I could see nothing. Then he went on in a long, confused talk, which I could only partly follow.

"The substance of what he said was this, as nearly as I could gather it: His body was buried in quicklime in a criminal's unmarked grave * * * and as long as a trace of it remained he was tied down to the scene of his crime and punishment. If he could only find someone who would pity him, and show it by 'an act of Chrisitan charity'—he used the term again—his term of suffering here would be shortened, and he could 'go on;' that was the way he put it, although he did not seem to know what it meant.

"His talk was vague and rambling, and seemed to me very incoherent; but his distress was plain enough, and when he stopped speaking (which was not for some time, for he kept going back and repeating, as if he were trying to make his meaning clearer) I had lost all feeling except that here was a creature in great trouble, and that I ought to help him if I could.

"When he had finished I asked him how I could show

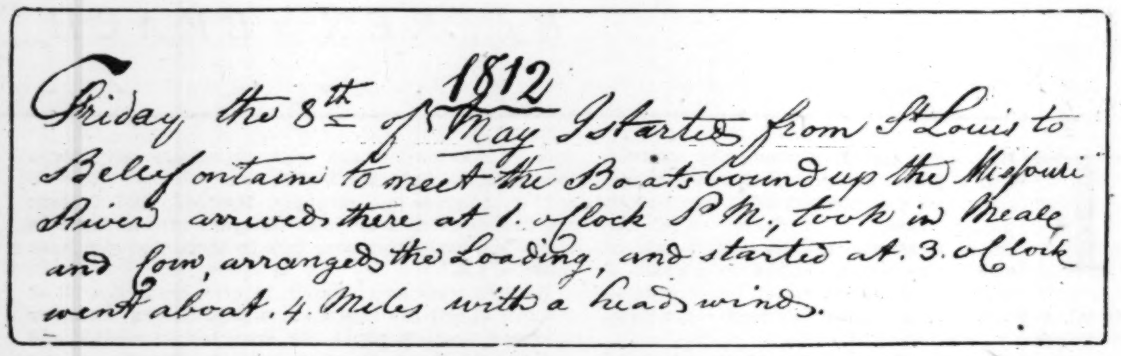
Diary of Fur Trader Sheds Light on Conditions in Missouri Territory More Than 100 Years Ago

Unsigned document in Missouri Historical Society has been identified as the journal of John C. Luttig, who accompanied an expedition to the waters of the Upper Missouri River in 1812, when this country was at war with England—Experiences of the old voyageurs well brought out in the narrative :: :: ::



1812
Friday the 8^{th} of May I started from St Louis to Bellefontaine to meet the Boats bound up the Miſsouri
River arrived there at 1. oClock P.M., took in Meale and Corn, arranged the Loading, and started at. 3. oClock went aboat. 4. Miles with a head wind.

Specimen page of the diary kept by John C. Luttig, a clerk for the Missouri Fur Company, during expedition of 1812 and 1813.

ACTUAL conditions throughout what was known of Missouri in 1812, at a time when this country was at war with England and when St. Louis was a frontier post and headquarters for fur traders, have been revealed with striking clearness in an unsigned manuscript discovered in the collection of the Missouri Historical Society.

This manuscript, which was identified as the journal kept by John C. Luttig, a clerk for the Missouri Fur Co, during an expedition of 1812 and 1813, which was finally broken up by the Indians, gives a vivid yet matter-of-fact picture of the state of affairs prevailing in this territory in that period and also shows to what an extent war with England affected even the interior of this continent.

The average school history relates the episodes in the War of 1812 as if all had occurred in the East and along the northeastern border, bounded by the Great Lakes on the west. Luttig's journal, however, shows that Indian tribes along the Upper Missouri River and all through the Northwest had been aroused against the American settlers by the British and that the numerous attacks and massacres of that time were attributable to this artificially created hostility.

References in the journal are made to many names now permanently linked with St. Louis history. Among them are those of Sanguinet, Archambeau, predecessor of a family still living in St. Louis County; Champlain, member of a well-known family at St. Charles, Mo., Chouteau, Manual Lisa, Clemson, Robidue, Durocher, Richardson and many others. Sacajawea, the Indian squaw who had accompanied the Lewis and Clark expedition some years before as a guide and interpreter and in whose honor a statue was erected at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, was a contemporary of Luttig, and, after her death he brought her two children to St. Louis. They were the children of Toussaint Charbonneau, guide and interpreter for Lewis and Clark.

Luttig, author of the journal, was not a local man, but appears to have come to St. Louis from Baltimore in 1809. The following year his name appears as having served as auctioneer of the property of Julien Dubuque, who had died at Mont d'Espagne, now Dubuque, Ia. This was evidently done on behalf of Auguste Chouteau of St. Louis, for Luttig later sued Chouteau for salary. Luttig later served as agent for a Christian Wilt, who traded between St. Louis and New Orleans and who describes Littig in a letter as a man who "unfortunately drinks, but who is an excellent hand to sell goods, is active and withal a very clever fellow."

It is personal touches of this sort that make the journal of interest. Just to what extent a man had to imbibe in those days, to be regarded as a drinker, is uncertain. The older French inhabitants made a moderate use of wine and probably considered as a "drinker" any man who allowed himself to be overcome at intervals by the spirits which, in those days, could be distilled by anyone who desired. Whisky was readily accessible and one man, mentioned as a voyageur on the party accompanied by Luttig, once traded a land grant given to him near Florissant, in what is now St. Louis County, for a pint of liquor. In a land suit this man testified that his principal occupation was "drinking drams" and that he was "oftener drunk than sober."

Sacajawea, the Indian squaw who had accompanied the Lewis and Clark Expedition and is mentioned in the Luttig diary, as portrayed in statue at Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

Luttig, evidently, went to no such extent, for Gov. Clark, in 1813, wrote that he could not do without his services, and Wilt was always ready to continue employing him.

Luttig also worked for Manual Lisa. The latter was one of the most prominent fur traders in St. Louis in his day was well known throughout a vast territory in the North and Southwest, and it seems extraordinary that the name has not been better known in this city.

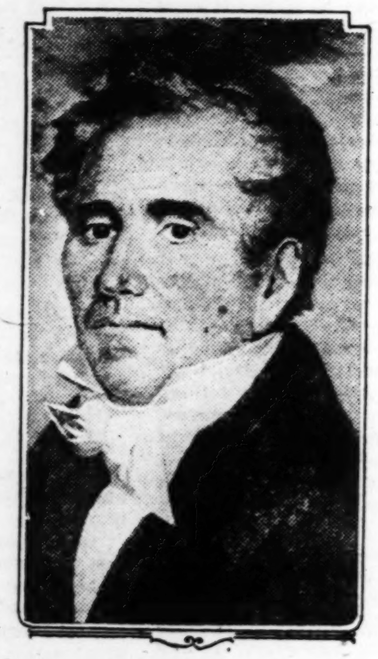
A street was once named for him in the downtown regions of his day, but it was changed in the course of years. So recollection of the man who was once one of the most enterprising traders of the section is dimmed. His influence over the Indians with whom he dealt was sufficient to make many tribes remain loyal to the United States instead of being affected by propaganda from Canada during the War of 1812, and, at a time when the country west of the Mississippi was virtually one vast wilderness, he used to send expeditions to the waters of the Upper Missouri and also to what is now New Mexico to deal with the Spaniards.

That Luttig was able to stand high in the graces of Lisa speaks well for his ability in the trading line. And the journal which he kept during his trip and which has been edited by Stella M. Drumm, librarian of the Missouri Historical Society, is of value as showing under what circumstances the pioneers of this neighborhood conducted their operations in the wilderness.

The fur trade in this section largely depended on keel boats for movement along the rivers. Land expeditions also were sent out. As Luttig was with one of the keel-boat crews—called a brigade in those days—a footnote to his journal, attached by the editor, is of interest as describing such a vessel.

These boats were of large size and sometimes carried as many as 100 men. This total, however, included hunters and trappers, en route to the mountains, who did not form part of the regular crew. Each boat carried in the bow a small cannon, known as a swivel gun from its mounting, which enabled it to be pointed in every direction. The moral effect of these weapons was probably greater than the actual damage they inflicted, due to the scattered fashion in which an Indian atack was always conducted. The captain of the boat, called the "patron," did the steering and his assistant stood in the bow. The boat was propelled by poles, except in the Uper Missouri, where sails could sometimes be used, as the low banks made the breeze available.

Forts and warehouses were established all along the river and it is interesting to read of some of these stations, now within easy reach of St. Louis. For instance, Fort Bellefontaine was located in what is now St. Louis County, on the south bank of the Missouri, four miles above its mouth and 15 miles from the settlement of St. Louis. This was the headquarters of the Department of Louisiana during the War of 1812 and was frequently threatened by bands of marauding Indians. It was abandoned in 1826, but an old stone magazine is still standing there.



Manual Lisa, one of the biggest fur traders of his time, who helped keep many Indian tribes friendly during War of 1812.

St. Charles was established about 1785 and Carondelet existed by that name even in those days. Both were regarded as exposed settlements. Cote sans Dessein was the first white man's settlement in what is now Callaway County, and a blockhouse was established there by the French traders in 1808. In the War of 1812, the settlers fought some battles with the Indians there. On the edge of a bluff near what is now East Boonville, in Cooper County, Hannah Cole, a widow, had erected a fort of her own. Mrs. Cole secured a license to operate the first ferry across the river and the first session of the Circuit Court was held in her home in 1816.

As the fur expedition which Luttig accompanied, and which left Fort Bellefontaine on May 8, proceeded up the river, it encountered many small settlements. An interesting note in the journal from day to day is the account of the number of deer and other animals killed—a vital matter where the food of so many men had to be secured from day to day. The hunters of the party always seemed able to get from one to six deer daily and a bear was killed the first day out from the fort. Bear were killed at regular intervals thereafter.

The abundance of wild game and fish in those days is indicated by almost daily notations. On May 29 the party had reached a point known as Little Osage Island, in the Missouri, evidently somewhere around where Jefferson City is now located. A fort had been erected there as early as 1721 by a French voyageur. Luttig writes in his diary:

"We went fishing with the seine and caught 13 large fish and one turtle. At the Little Osage Prairie we stopped for the little boat, which got aground, met a shoal of catfish close inshore, and the men killed one with a stick that weighed, after cleaning, 40 pounds. Went on a little way and found a small run full of fish. We took our seine and caught 161 bass and other fish, which we salted. We camped and killed two deer."

Little Osage Prairie was in what is now Saline County. He refers a few days later to Fire Prairie Creek, which is located in what is now Jackson County. Fort Osage was reached on June 3 and the voyageurs fired a salute of 17 guns, which was politely returned

THIS is the tale of a wrong that rankled and a great revenge. It is not a moral story, nor yet, measured by the modern money code, is it what could be called immoral. It is merely a tale of sharp wits which clashed in pursuit of business, therefore let it be considered unmoral, a word with a wholly different commercial significance.

Time was when wrongs were righted by mace and battle-ax, amid fanfares and shoutings, but we live in a quieter age, an age of repression, wherein the keenest thrust is not delivered with a yell of triumph nor the oldest score settled to the blare of trumpets. No longer do the men of great muscle lord it over the weak and the puny; as a rule they toil and they lift, doing unpleasant, menial duties for hollow-chested, big-domed men with eyeglasses. But among those very spindle-shanked, terracotta dwellers who cower at drafts and eat soda mints, the ancient struggle for supremacy wages fiercer than ever. Single combats are fought now as then, and the flavor of victory is quite as sweet to the pallid man back of a roll-top desk as to the swart, bristling Baron behind his visored helmet.

The beginning of this story runs back to the time Henry Hanford went with the General Equipment Co. as a young salesman full of hope and enthusiasm and a somewhat exaggerated idea of his own importance. He was selling shears, punches and other machinery used in the fabrication of structural steel. In the territory assigned to him, the works of the Atlantic Bridge Co. stuck up like a sore thumb, for although it employed many men, although its contracts were large and its requirements numerous, the General Equipment Co. had never sold it a dollar's worth of anything.

In the course of time Hanford convinced himself that the Atlantic Bridge Co. needed more modern machinery, so he laid siege to Jackson Wylie Sr., its president and practical owner. He spent all of six months in gaining the old man's ear, but when he succeeded he laid himself out to sell his goods. He analyzed the Atlantic Bridge Co.'s needs in the light of milling practice, and demonstrated the saving his equipment would effect. A big order and much prestige were at stake, both of which young Hanford needed badly at the time. He was vastly encouraged, therefore, when the bridge builder listened attentively to him.

"I dare say we shall have to make a change," Mr. Wylie reluctantly agreed. "I've been bothered to death by machinery salesmen, but you're the first one to really interest me."

Hanford acknowledged the compliment and proceeded further to elaborate upon the superiority of the General Equipment Co.'s goods over those sold by rival concerns. When he left he felt that he had Mr. Wylie Sr. "going."

At the office they warned him that he had a hard nut to crack; that Wylie was given to "stringing" salesmen and was a hard man to close with, but Hanford smiled confidently. Granting those facts, they rendered him all the more eager to make this sale; and the bridge company really did need up-to-date machinery.

He instituted an even more vigorous selling campaign, he sent much printed matter to Mr. Wylie Sr., he wrote him many letters. Being a thoroughgoing young salesman, he studied the plant from the ground up, learning the bridge business in such detail as enabled him to talk with authority on efficiency methods. In the course of his studies he discovered many things that were wrong with the Atlantic, and spent days in outlining improvements on paper. He made the acquaintance of the foremen; he cultivated the general superintendent; he even met Mr. Jackson Wylie Jr., the sales manager, a very polished, metallic young man, who seemed quite as deeply impressed with Hanford's statements as did his father.

Under our highly developed competitive system, modern business is done very largely upon personality. From the attitude of both father and son, Hanford began to count his chickens. Instead of letting up, however, he redoubled his efforts, which was his way. He spent so much time on the matter that his other work suffered, and in consequence his firm called him down. He outlined his progress with the Atlantic Bridge Co., declared he was going to succeed, and continued to camp with the job, notwithstanding the firm's open doubts.

Sixty days after his first interview he had another visit with Wylie senior, during which the latter drained him of information and made an appointment for a month later. Said Mr. Wylie:

"You impress me strongly, Hanford, and I want my associates to hear you. Get your proposition into shape and make the same talk to them that you have made to me."

Hanford went away elated; he even bragged a bit at the office, and the report got around among the other salesmen that he really had done the impossible and had pulled off something big with the Atlantic. It was a busy month for that young gentleman, and when the red-letter day at last arrived he went on to Newark to find both Wylies awaiting him.

"Well, sir, are you prepared to make a good argument?" the father inquired.

"I am." Hanford decided that three months was not too long a time to devote to work of this magnitude, after all.

"I want you to do your best," the bridge builder continued, encouragingly, then he led Hanford into the directors' room, where, to his visitor's astonishment, some 50 men were seated. "These are our salesmen," announced Mr. Wylie. He introduced Hanford to them with the request that they listen attentively to what the young man had to say.

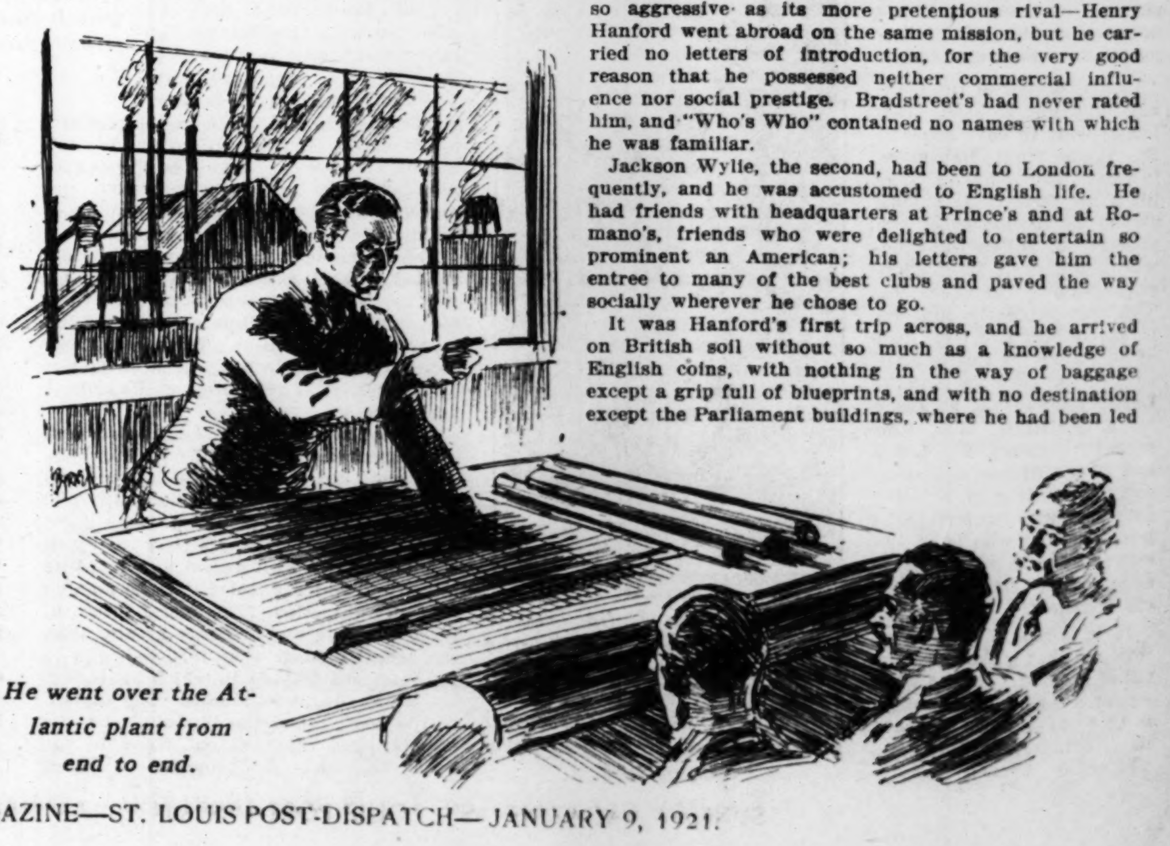
It was rather nervous work for Hanford, but he soon warmed up and forgot his embarrassment. He stood on his feet for two long hours pleading as if for his life. He went over the Atlantic plant from end to end; he showed the economic necessity for new machinery; then he explained the efficiency of his own appliances. He took rival types and picked them to pieces, pointing out their inferiority. He showed his familiarity with bridge work by going into figures which bore out his contention that the Atlantic's output could be increased and at an actual monthly saving. He wound up by proving that the General Equipment Co. was the one concern best fitted to effect the improvement.

It had taken months of unremitting toil to prepare himself for this exposition, but the young fellow felt he had made his case. When he took up the cost of the proposed installment, however, Mr. Jackson Wylie Sr. interrupted him.

"That is all I care to have you cover," the latter explained. "Thank you very kindly, Mr. Hanford."

Hanford sat down and wiped his forehead, whereupon the other stepped forward and addressed his employes.

"Gentlemen," said he, "you have just listened to the best argument I ever heard. I purposely called you in from the road so that you might have a practical lesson in salesmanship and learn something from an outsider about your own business. I want you to profit by this talk. Take it to heart, and apply it to your own customers. Our selling efficiency has deteriorated lately; you are getting lazy. I want you to wake up and show better results. That is all. You might thank this young gentleman for his kindness."



He went over the Atlantic plant from end to end.

When the audience had dispersed, Hanford inquired, blankly, "Don't you intend to act on my suggestions?"

"Oh!" said Mr. Wylie, in apparent surprise. "We are doing nicely, as it is. I merely wanted you to address the boys."

"But—I've spent three months of hard labor on this! You led me to believe that you would put in new equipment."

The younger Wylie laughed, languidly exhaling a lungful of cigarette smoke. "When dad gets ready to purchase, he'll let you know," said he.

Six months later the Atlantic Bridge Co. placed a mammoth order with Hanford's rival concern, and he was not even asked to figure on it.

That is how the seeds of this story were sown. Of course, the facts got out, for those Atlantic salesmen were not wanting in a sense of humor, and Hanford was joshed in every quarter. To make it worse, his firm called him to account for his wasted time, implying that something was evidently wrong with his selling methods. Thus began a lack of confidence which quickly developed into strained relations. The result was inevitable. Hanford saw what was coming and was wise enough to resign his position.

But it was the ridicule that hurt him most. He was unable to get away from that. Had he been at all emotional, he would have sworn a vendetta, so deep and lasting was the hurt, but he did not; he merely failed to forget, which, after all, is not so different.

It seemed queer that Henry Hanford should wind up in the bridge business himself, after attempting to fill several unsatisfactory positions, and yet there was nothing remarkable about it, for that three months of intense application at the Atlantic plant had given him a ground work which came in handy when the Patterson Bridge Co. offered him a desk. He was a good salesman, he worked hard and in time he was promoted. By and by the story was forgotten—by everyone except Henry Hanford. But he had lost a considerable number of precious years.

* * * * * * * *

When it became known that the English and Continental structural shops were so full of work that they could not figure on the mammoth $5,000,000 steel structure designed to span the Barrata River in Africa, and when the royal commission in London finally advertised broadcast that time was the essence of this contract, Mr. Jackson Wylie Sr. realized that his plant was equipped to handle the job in magnificent shape, with large profit to himself and with great renown to the Wylie name. He therefore sent his son, Jackson Wylie, the second, now a full-fledged partner, to London, armed with letters to almost everybody in England from almost everybody in America.

Two weeks later—the Patterson Bridge Co. was not so aggressive as its more pretentious rival—Henry Hanford went abroad on the same mission, but he carried no letters of introduction, for the very good reason that he possessed neither commercial influence nor social prestige. Bradstreet's had never rated him, and "Who's Who" contained no names with which he was familiar.

Jackson Wylie, the second, had been to London frequently, and he was accustomed to English life. He had friends with headquarters at Prince's and at Romano's, friends who were delighted to entertain so prominent an American; his letters gave him the entree to many of the best clubs and paved the way socially wherever he chose to go.

It was Hanford's first trip across, and he arrived on British soil without so much as a knowledge of English coins, with nothing in the way of baggage except a grip full of blueprints, and with no destination except the Parliament buildings, where he had been led to believe the Royal Barrata Bridge Commission was eagerly and impatiently awaiting his coming. But when he called at the Parliament buildings he failed not only to find the commission, but even to encounter anybody who knew anything about it. He did manage to locate the office, after some patient effort, but learned that it was nothing more than a forwarding address, and that no member of the commission had been there for several weeks. He was informed that the commission had convened once, and therefore was not entirely an imaginary body; beyond that he could discover nothing. On his second visit to the office he was told that Sir Thomas Drummond, the chairman, was inside, having run down from his shooting lodge in Scotland for the day. But Sir Thomas' clerk, with whom Hanford had become acquainted at the time of his first call, informed him that Mr. Jackson Wylie, the second, from America, was closeted with his lordship, and in consequence his lordship could not be disturbed. Later, when Hanford got more thoroughly in touch with the situation, he began to realize that introductions, influence, social prestige, would in all probability go farther toward landing the Barrata bridge than mere engineering ability or close figuring—facts with which the younger Wylie was already familiar, and against which he had provided. It also became plain to Hanford as time went on that the contract would of necessity go to America, for none of the European shops were in position to complete it on time.

Owing to Government needs, this huge, 11-span structure had to be on the ground within 90 days from the date of signing the contract, and erected within eight months thereafter. The commission's clerk, a big, red-faced, jovial fellow, informed Hanford that price was not nearly so essential as time of delivery; that although the contract glittered with alluring bonuses, and was heavily weighted with forfeits, neither bonuses nor forfeitures could in the slightest manner compensate for a delay of time. It was due to this very fact, to the peculiar urgency of the occasion, that the commissioners were inclined to look askance at prospective bidders who might in any way fail to complete the task as specified.

"If all that is true, tell me why Wylie gets the call?" Hanford inquired.

"I understand he has the very highest references," said the Englishman.

"No doubt. But you can't build bridges with letters of introduction, even in Africa."

"Probably not. But Sir Thomas is a big man; Mr. Wylie is one of his sort. They meet on common ground, don't you see?"

"Well, if I can't arrange an interview with any member of the commission, I can at least take you to lunch. Will you go?"

The clerk declared that he would, indeed, and in the days that followed the two saw much of each other. This fellow, Lowe by name, interested Hanford. He was a cosmopolite; he was polished to the hardness of agate by a life spent in many lands. He possessed a cold eye and firm chin; he was a complex mixture of daredeviltry and meekness. He had fought in a war or two, and he had led hopes quite as forlorn as the one Hanford was now engaged upon. It was this bond, perhaps, which drew the two together.

In spite of Lowe's assistance, Hanford found it extremely difficult, nay, almost impossible, to obtain any real inside information concerning the Barrata bridge; wherever he turned he brought up against a blank wall of English impassiveness; he even experienced difficulty in securing the blueprints he wanted.

"It looks pretty tough for you," Lowe told him one day. "I'm afraid you're going to come a cropper, old man. This chap Wylie has the rail and he's running well. He has opened an office, I believe."

"So I understand. Well, the race isn't over yet, and I'm a good stayer. This is the biggest thing I ever tackled and it means a lot to me—more than you imagine."

"How so?"

Hanford recited the story of his old wrong, to Lowe's frank amazement.

"What a rotten trick!" the latter remarked.

"Yes! And—I don't forget."

"You'd better forget this job. It takes a pull to get consideration from people like Sir Thomas, and Wylie has more than he needs. A fellow without it hasn't got a chance. Look at me, for instance, working at a desk! Bah!"

"Want to try something else?"

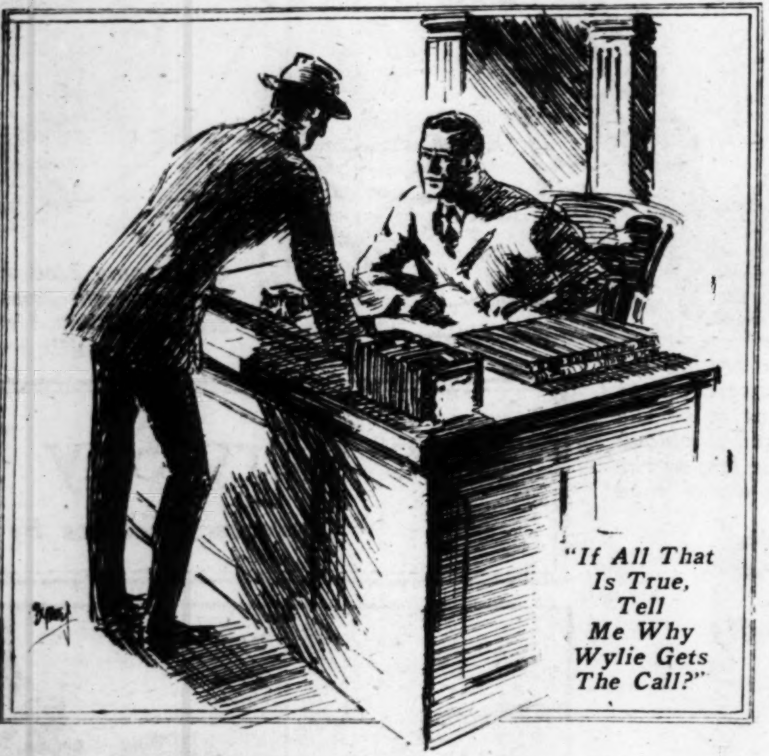
"I do! And you'd better follow suit."

Hanford shook his head. "I never quit—I can't. When my chance at this bridge comes along"——

Lowe laughed.

"Oh, the chance will come. Chances always come; sometimes we don't see them, that's all. When this one comes I want to be ready. Meanwhile, I think I'll reconnoiter Wylie's new office and find out what's doing." Day after day Henry Hanford pursued his work doggedly, seeing much of Lowe, something of Wylie's clerk, and nothing whatever of Sir Thomas Drummond or the other members of the Royal Barrata Bridge Commission. He heard occasional rumors of the social triumphs of his rival, and met him once, to be treated with half-veiled amusement by that patronizing young man. Meanwhile, the time was growing short and Hanford's firm was not well pleased with his progress.

Then the chance came, unexpectedly, as Hanford had declared chances always come. The remarkable thing in this instance was not that the veiled goddess showed her face, but that Hanford was quick enough to recognize her and bold enough to act. He had taken Lowe to the Trocadero for dinner, and, finding no seats where they could watch the crowd, he had selected a stall in a quiet corner. They had been there but a short time when Hanford recognized a voice from the stall adjacent as belonging to the representative of the Atlantic Bridge Co. From the sounds he could tell that Wylie was giving a dinner party, and with Lowe's aid he soon identified the guests as members of the Royal Barrata Bridge Commission. Hanford began to strain his ears.



"If All That Is True, Tell Me Why Wylie Gets The Call?"

As the meal progressed this became less of an effort, for young Wylie's voice was strident. The Wylie conversation had ever been limited largely to the Wylies, their accomplishments, their purposes; and now, having the floor as host, he talked mainly about himself, his father and their forthcoming Barrata bridge contract. It was his evident endeavor this evening to impress his distinguished guests with the tremendous importance of the Atlantic Bridge Co. and its unsurpassed facilities for handling big jobs. A large part of young Wylie's experience had been acquired by manipulating municipal contracts and the Aldermen connected therewith; he now worked along similar lines. Hanford soon learned that he was trying in every way possible to induce Drummond and his associates to accompany him back to America for the purpose of proving beyond peradventure that the Atlantic could take care of a $5,000,000 contract with ease.

"As if they'd go!" Lowe said, softly. "And yet—by Jove! he talks as if he had the job buttoned up."

The Englishman was alert, his dramatic instinct was at play; recognizing the significance of Wylie's offer and its possible bearing upon Hanford's fortunes, he waved the waiter away, knowing better than to permit the rattle of dishes to distract his host's attention.

Meanwhile, with clenched teeth and smoldering eyes, Henry Hanford heard his rival in the next compartment identify the State of New Jersey by the fact that the works of the Atlantic Bridge Co. were located therein, and dignify it by the fact that the Jackson Wylies lived there.

"You know, gentlemen," Wylie was saying, "I can arrange the trip without the least difficulty, and I assure you there will be no discomfort. I am in constant cipher communication with my father, and he will be delighted to afford you every courtesy. I can fix it up by cable in a day."

Hanford arose with a silent gesture to his guest, then, although the meal was but half over, he paid the bill. He had closed his campaign. Right then and there he landed the great Barrata bridge contract.

Lowe, mystified beyond measure by his friend's action, made no comment until they were outside. Then he exclaimed:

"I say, old top, what blew off?"

Hanford smiled at him queerly. "The whole top of young Wylie's head blew of, if he only knew it. It's my day to settle that score, and the interest will be compounded."

"I must be extremely stupid."

"Not at all. You're damned intelligent, and that's why I'm going to need your help." Hanford turned upon the adventurer suddenly. "Have you ever been an actor?"

Lowe made a comical grimace. "I say, old man, that's pretty rough. My people raised me for a gentleman."

"Exactly. Come with me to my hotel. We're going to do each other a great favor. With your help and the help of Mr. Jackson Wylie the Second's London clerk, I'm going to land the Barrata bridge."

Hanford had not read his friend Lowe awrong, and when, behind locked doors, he outlined his plan, the big fellow gazed at him with amazement, his blue eyes sparkling with admiration.

"Gad! That appeals to me. I—think I can do it." There was no timidity in Lowe's words, merely a careful consideration of the risks involved.

Hanford gripped his hand. "I'll attend to Wylie's clerk," he declared. "Now, we'd better begin to rehearse."

"But what makes you so positive you can handle his clerk?" queried Lowe.

"Oh, I've studied him the same way I've studied you! I've been doing nothing else for the last month."

"Bli' me, you're a corker!" said Mr. Lowe.

Back in Newark, N. J., Jackson Wylie Sr. was growing impatient. In spite of his son's weekly reports he had begun to fret at the indefinite nature of results up to date. This dissatisfaction it was that had induced him to cable his invitation to the royal commission to visit the Atlantic plant. Mr. Jackson Wylie Sr. had a mysterious way of closing contracts once he came in personal contact with the proper people. In the words of his envious competitors, he had "good terminal facilities," and he felt sure in his own mind he could get this job if only he could meet some member of that commission who possessed the power to act. Business was bad, and in view of his son's preliminary reports he had relied upon the certainty of securing this tremendous contract; he had even turned away work so that his plant might be ready for the rush, with the result that many of his men now were idle and that he was running far below capacity. But he likewise had his eye upon those English bonuses, and when his associates rather timidly called his attention to the present state of affairs, he assured them bitingly that he knew his business. Nevertheless, he could not help chafing at delay nor longing for the time to come to submit the bid that had lain for a month upon his desk. The magnitude of the figures contained therein was getting on Mr. Wylie's nerves.

On May 10 he received a cablegram in his own official cipher which, translated, read:

"Meet Sir Thomas Drummond, chairman Royal Barrata Bridge Commission, arriving Cunard Liner Campania, thirteenth, stopping Waldorf. Arrange personally Barrata contract. Caution."

The cablegram was unsigned, but its address, "Atwylie," betrayed not only its destination, but also the identity of its sender. Mr. Jackson Wylie Sr. became tremendously excited. The last word conjured up bewildering possibilities. He was about to consult his associates when it struck him that the greatest caution he could possibly observe would consist of holding his own tongue now and henceforth. They had seen fit to criticise his handling of the matter thus far; he decided he would play safe and say nothing until he had first seen Sir Thomas Drummond and learned the lay of the land. He imagined he might then have something electrifying to tell them. He had "dealt from the bottom" too often, he had closed too many bridge contracts in his time, to mistake the meaning of this visit, or of the last word "caution."

During the next few days Mr. Jackson Wylie Sr. had hard work to hold himself in, and he was at a high state of nervous tension when, on the morning of the fourteenth day of May, he strolled into the Waldorf-Astoria and inquired at the desk for Sir Thomas Drummond.

There was no Sir Thomas stopping at the hotel, although a Mr. T. Drummond from London had arrived on the Campania the day before. Mr. Jackson placed the heel of his right shoe upon the favorite corn of his left foot and bore down upon it heavily. He

About the darkest of dark moments in the life of a very shy young man is the plunge into a set of strange young people who all know each other and have a full set of standing jokes based on past encounters. Joe, the strange young man, is doing his best not to look completely out of things while Harry asks: "How's your old straw hat, Marjy?" completely convulsing Marjy and her cohorts. Marjy will come back at Harry with the equally convulsing sally: "Fine, how's the Walla-Walla baby?" and there will be shrieks of merriment.

OVERLOOK HOUSE

By WILL PAYNE

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

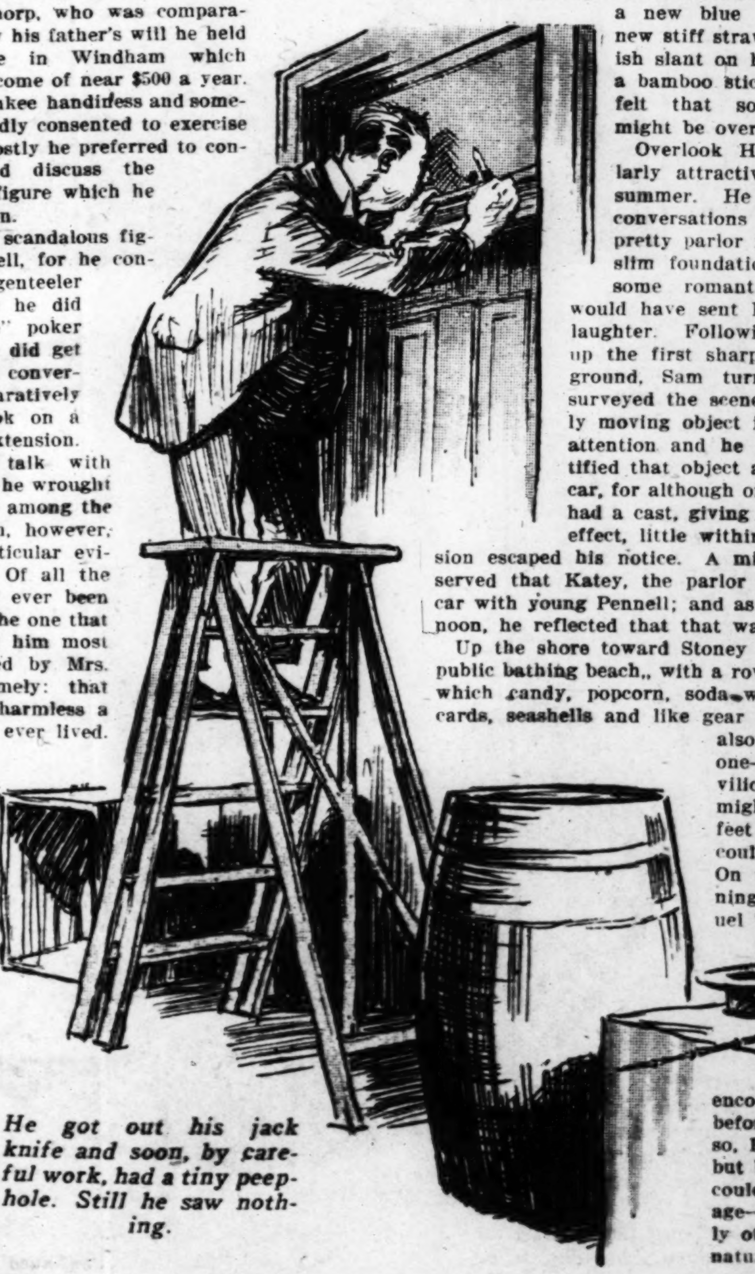
THE STORY THUS FAR—Mrs. Edith Hilton is a guest at Overlook House, the stately home of Judge Tillman Crane, a wealthy owner of oil lands. One afternoon, after making her way furtively to the servants' quarters, she is surprised by Katey, a maid, in the act of carrying off a cloak and hat belonging to the girl. Katey has been quarreling with another maid over a minor love affair, but she is delighted that the aristocratic Mrs. Hilton should want to borrow her clothes, and quickly forgets her troubles. Meanwhile, Mrs. Hilton' in her maid's disguise, slips away to a nearby town to meet her husband, Lester Hilton, who has sent her an urgent summons. Hilton's brokerage firm has been handling Judge Crane's interests and Hilton himself has been misappropriating the Judge's securities. Unwittingly, the firm has sent Judge Crane a letter which would reveal this, and Hilton asks his wife to intercept it and substitute another, which he gives her. Edith agrees reluctantly and on her way back is overtaken by Ted Pennell, son of Hilton's partner, who mistakes her at first for the maid, Katey, and then, discovering her masquerade, gives her a lift in his car. Ted promises secrecy and treats the little adventure as a joke; what he does not know is that Peggy Loughman, his fiancee and the daughter of Judge Crane's one-time partner (now dead), has seen Katey's hat and cloak in the car and is indignant over what she supposes to be young Pennell's philandering with a servant. Back at Overlook House, Mrs. Hilton manages to meet the mail carrier and exchange the real letter for the faked one—a proceeding made easy by the fact that Katey, who usually receives the mail, does not appear. In the servants' quarters they have been looking for the girl without success, and Benjamin, the butler, has sought the Judge with a whispered message, over which the owner of Overlook House evidently is greatly perturbed.

MOSTLY "below stairs" was only a figure of speech in Overlook House, for such servants as slept under its broad roof had their quarters on the top floor. There was, however, a literal below stairs, or cellarage. The furnace room was down there, walled off from the remainder of the basement by a thick cement partition, cave-like, lighted by electrics even in the daytime, with coal bins and many asbestos-covered pipes. At the other, or north, end of the basement was a general storeroom and a laundry. The latter was in operation only two days in a fortnight, when a crew of charladies recruited from outside the house fell upon the accumulation of soiled linen. At other times it was empty, with some hillocks of linen accumulating on the floor against the next period of cleansing.

James Thorp inhabited this subterranean region—not a servant, but an independent and self-respecting American citizen of the village of Windham, where and whereabouts Thorps had dwelt back to far colonial days. Down a side street there, and partly behind a modest frame dwelling, stood a weatherbeaten shed, over whose door appeared the sign, J. Thorp, Plumbing and Tinsmith. But during as many months of the year as Overlook House was open the shed was locked up, for during those months Mr. Thorp plied his trade in Judge Crane's basement, where he was furnace man and odd-jobs man, handy at fixing a leak in the plumbing, handy at almost anything—an industrious, frugal, capable citizen, minding his own business, and duly grateful for the chance which brought him this excellent job, with tiptop, steady wages and comparatively little to do when the weather was warm.

This admirable furnace man had a superior cousin named Samuel Thorp, who was comparatively opulent. By his father's will he held certain real estate in Windham which yielded him an income of near $500 a year. He also had a Yankee handiness and sometimes good naturedly consented to exercise it for hire; but mostly he preferred to contemplate life and discuss the rather important figure which he himself cut therein.

It was a rather scandalous figure, too, by his tell, for he confessed to all the genteeler vices. Sometimes he did play "penny ante" poker and sometimes he did get drunk; but in his conversation those comparatively mild exploits took on a dark, indefinite extension. In confidential talk with his village friends he wrought woeful destruction among the fair sex, of which, however, there was no particular evidence elsewhere. Of all the opinions that had ever been passed upon him, the one that would have galled him most was that expressed by Mrs. James Thorp—namely: that he was really as harmless a loafer and liar as ever lived.



He got out his jack knife and soon, by careful work, had a tiny peephole. Still he saw nothing.

For Cousin Sam, Overlook House had a great fascination. The industrious furnace man never had anything to say about that establishment, partly because he never saw anything there to talk about. But Cousin Sam had all sorts of surprising information about it, even down to the exact amount of Judge Tillman Crane's monthly income. He spent a considerable part of the summer hanging around there—in the main literally below stairs, yet even down in the furnace room his mind was alive to the luxury above.

About noon of this Thursday, having come up from Windham by trolley, Cousin Sam was strolling up through the woods toward the house in a smart suit of light yellowish plaid which he had purchased the day before. It lacked quite a bit of fitting him, for his figure was not custom made. He was tall and strong, but his shoulders sloped to an unusual degree, his neck and head being uncommonly long. He himself had some misgiving about the fit of the suit, but with a new blue four-in-hand tie, a new stiff straw hat set at a rakish slant on his long head, and a bamboo stick in his hand, he felt that some imperfections might be overlooked.

Overlook House was particularly attractive to him this summer. He had held several conversations with Katey, the pretty parlor maid, and on that slim foundation had built up some romantic ideas which would have sent Katey into fits of laughter. Following the roadway up the first sharp swell of wooded ground, Sam turned and casually surveyed the scene below. A swiftly moving object in it attracted his attention and he immediately identified that object as young Pennell's car, for although one of his pale eyes had a cast, giving a fairly wall-eyed effect, little within his range of vision escaped his notice. A minute later he observed that Katey, the parlor maid, was in the car with young Pennell; and as it was then about noon, he reflected that that was going some.

Up the shore toward Stoney Cove there was a public bathing beach,, with a row of little shops in which candy, popcorn, soda-water, picture post cards, seashells and like gear might be bought; also with a square, one-story dancing pavilion, where anyone might exercise his feet for a dime if he could find a partner. On the Saturday evening before this Samuel Thorp had been there—in pursuit of his career as a reckless blade. He had hoped to see Katey, whom he had encountered there before. Half past 9 or so, Katey came alone, but before Sam Thorp could get up his courage—which was largely of a conversational nature to approach her, young Pennell and two others came in. Young Pennell looked about, saw Katey, made directly for her and took her out on the floor. After that dance they sat against the wall talking, both—but especially young Pennell—in high spirits. They danced again. Then they went to the counter in the corner, sat on a high stool, and ate ice cream, after which they danced once more.

For all of which there might have been an innocent explanation, but in Samuel Thorp's opinion innocent explanations were for blockheads. Somewhat later he looked around for Katey and couldn't find her. Young Pennell, too, had disappeared. All of which had set up a lively and worldly wise speculation in Citizen Thorp's mind.

So now Cousin Sam sidled off into the woods and stood carelessly behind a tree, where he could see the roadway. But the car did not come up the roadway; instead Katey came up the bridle path alone. Through the trees Cousin Sam caught various views of her rapidly moving figure as she made for the house. This, at high noon, was certainly going some! By his own route of the roadway he followed Katey to the house, and went down into the furnace room. But he said nothing at all to pokey Cousin Jim as to what was in his mind, for he could be terribly astute when he chose.

He hung about the house all day and, about 5:30, once more sauntered out of the furnace room, meaning to go home. Near the north end of the basement the ground had been scooped away and a wide cement pavement laid, so that a wagon could drive down to the outside door of either the storeroom or the laundry, and that little artificial valley was screened by shrubbery on either side. The kitchen was just beyond and the little valley made a sort of commons in which ladies and gentlemen on Judge Crane's payroll sometimes incidentally met and held sociable conversation. Sam Thorp—on terms of loquacious familiarity with most of the ladies and gentlemen—had drifted out there several times during the day, but had not seen Katey. He was going home that way now.

The most convenient route lay through the storeroom and laundry. Passing through the storeroom, he laid his hand on the laundry door, but found it locked, which was odd. It certainly hadn't been locked two hours earlier, nor ever before within his recollection. A door that was locked now but hadn't been locked before would have aroused his curiosity in any case. Stealthily he tried the knob again and stooped to squint at the lock. Listening at the crack, he could hear nothing; but if the door was locked, it seemed clear to him that somebody was in there—or had been in there—who didn't wish to be observed. That was enough for Samuel Thorp.

Plodding James Thorp, the furnace man, never encouraged any exercise of curiosity concerning Overlook House. The frugal, lowly man had a wholesome fear of getting into trouble and losing his excellent job. So Cousin Sam moved warily now lest he provoke his dull relative's resentment. He at once remembered that there was a stepladder in the storeroom; there was hardly anything he had ever seen there that he didn't remember. Tiptoeing over on his big feet, he got the stepladder, which he cautiously placed against the door and so climbed up to the transom. Lest a passing guest might be offended by sight of the servile operations which went on therein, the outside windows of the storeroom and laundry were of frosted glass. By ill luck, this transom over the door was of the same material and Cousin Sam could see nothing. But in such an affair as this he was not easily balked. Investigation showed him that the frosting was on his side of the glass. He got out his jack knife and soon, by careful work, had a tiny peephole to which he could apply his eye.

Still he saw nothing. The laundry was quite empty. It was not as light in there as one could wish, the sun's rays being obstructed by the frosting on the outer windows and also to some extent by the shrubbery that screened the little artificial valley. But Sam peered with all his might. Several heaps of soiled linen lay against the farther wall. On one of them what looked very much like a man's coat had been thrown down. Then Sam saw something shining below the coat and made out a pair of bronze-colored slippers with imitation diamond buckles. He instantly recognized those slippers—having a good wall eye and one other for such phenomena. Only one servant in that household went about flaunting her trim feet and pretty legs in open defiance of proper servile footwear. Those slippers were undoubtedly Katey's.

By that time nothing less than a stone wall or a minatory eye could have stopped Samuel Thorp. As neither obstacle was present he tiptoed his stepladder back to its place and addressed himself to the lock in earnest. It was a common door lock and the key had been withdrawn from it. Being naturally handy and intensely inquisitive, he had dealt successfully with a situation of that kind before. Before this also he had ranged the storeroom with the mere aimless inquisitiveness of a crow, so he knew exactly where to find a piece of wire and a pair of pinchers.

It was getting on toward 6 o'clock now and he had to hurry lest plodding Cousin Jim step in there, note what he was doing, and interpose foolish objections. But in a minute he had the wire bent suitably and was industriously picking the lock with it. The door opened and he stepped into the laundry. When he came out a minute later he had a mind full and running over. But he carefully locked the door after him, replaced the pinchers and hid the wire.

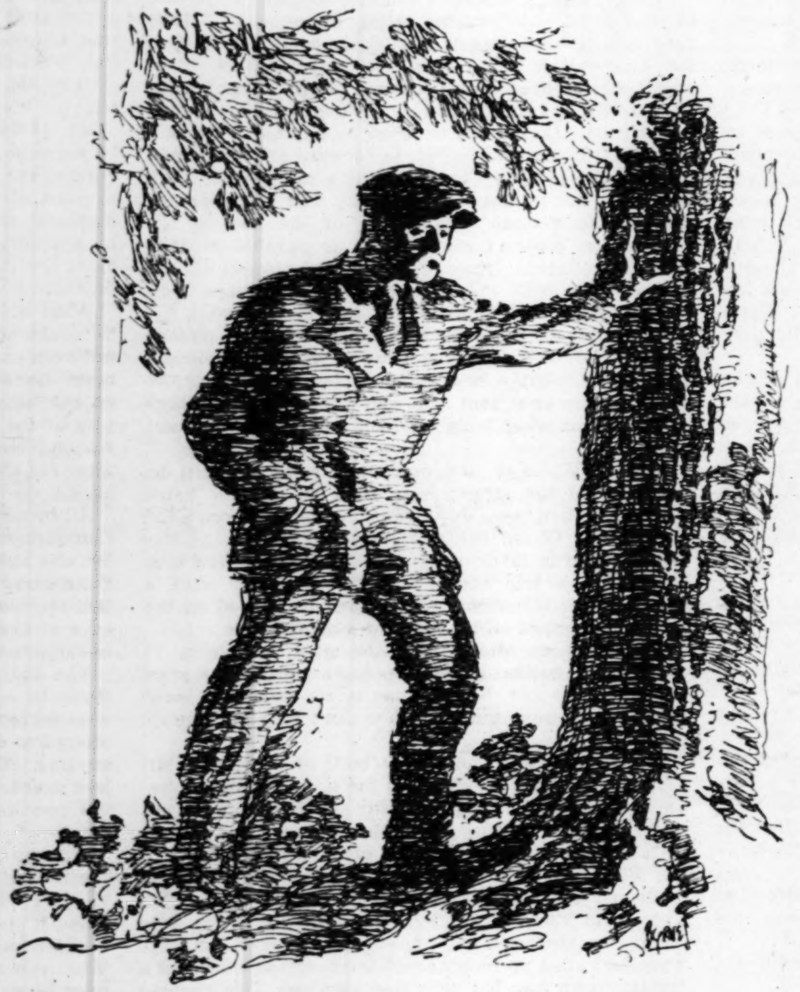
Both the laundry and the storeroom had outer doors opening to that artificial cement-paved little valley, so that a wagon driving down there could receive or deliver bulky objects. And they had inner doors opening to the basement. But there was still another means of gaining access to them. Sometimes bulky objects were moved from them to the floors above, so the automatic elevator ran down into the storeroom. Without risk of being seen by anyone outside the house or by anyone in the open part of the basement, or by anyone who should happen to be looking out the furnace room door, a person could come down from upstairs in the elevator and go back again in the same way. That circumstance was in Samuel Thorp's mind.

A large satisfaction was in his mind, too. No doubt some other people were pretty smart; but not smarter than Samuel Thorp! He possessed, and cherished, a nickel-plated cigarette case, on which the nude figure of a female was stamped in colors. Taking that object from his pocket, he got a cigarette and lighted it, casually setting his straw hat at a little sharper angle on his long head. He had meant to go back to Windham by dinner time, but now changed his mind and sauntered over into the cavernous furnace room. Hopeless Cousin Jim—a somewhat undersized person, with a bullet head and stubby red mustache, clad in overalls that came up almost to his armpits, an undershirt and a greasy blouse—was sitting there on the end of an overturned packing case and taking the cover off an ample tin dinner pail.

"Got a little nourishment to squander on a felleh pilgrim, Jim?" Cousin Sam asked jauntily—for he usually spoke in an ornate manner.

"Sure," said Cousin Jim, without enthusiasm, but without resentment.

"My corporosity could assimilate a little manna right now," Cousin Sam observed, and he stood expectantly by while Cousin Jim's stubby, toil-marked hand lifted thick sandwiches, hard-boiled eggs, doughnuts, pickles and a wedge of pie out of the dinner pail. As a matter of course, Jim divided the wedge of pie in halves with his jack knife, sharing the meal equally with Sam. To Cousin Jim, relatives were an obligation, like going to church when one was able. Avoiding one's obligations was an expedient which never occurred to his simple mind. He realized Sam's failings, but relatives were relatives, as one's hand was one's hand.



Meanwhile, Louis, in the rich sunset light, had taken up a position beside a big tree.

Cousin Jim commonly stayed on duty until 8 o'clock or so, then tramped down through the grounds to the public road and took the trolley to his home in Windham, returning to Overlook House at 6 o'clock in the morning. He supposed Sam would hang around and ride home with him. But soon after the contents of the dinner pail were consumed, Cousin Sam drifted away by himself. He had business on hand that evening—momentous business—which would require his presence in that vicinity indefinitely.

An hour or so later—that is, about 7:30—Louis, the stocky gardener, left the garage, in the second story of which he had his lodging, and struck off into the woods, not following any road or path. After he had walked some distance he noticed among the trees not far ahead a slope-shouldered, long-necked figure in a suit of yellow plaid, topped by a stiff straw hat set at a rakish angle, a bamboo stick in its hand. Louis recognized the figure, for it was well enough known to everybody about the place, but he thought nothing in particular about it. In a moment Cousin Sam saw him, too, and greeted him airily:

"Well, Louis, how you obsquatulatin' this evening?"

This Citizen Thorp had a great number of strange words, such as no other English-speaking person seemed to use, the meaning of which was quite obscure to Louis. But the gardener realized that his own command of English was limited; also that Citizen Thorp's intentions were always very sociable. So he smiled amiably, replied "All right," and kept on his way, Citizen Thorp dropping out of his mind almost as soon as the visible image dropped out of his eye.

But it was not so with Sam Thorp. Knowing all the gossip of the servants' quarters, he had something particular in his mind about Louis which caused him to grin. He grinned rather easily, anyway, his mouth being of the loose sort, as though it were continually coming unbuttoned. Grinning and making sure that Louis was moving on among the trees out of sight, he continued his slow stroll.

The sun was setting now, its rich light beautifully flooding the undulating woods. As the light began slowly to mellow and die Sam edged toward Overlook House. When it was dusk, so that a moving figure could not be seen at a distance, he slipped into the avenue of evergreens that led through the formal garden at the west of the house and at the outer side of the garden sat down on a bench under a flowering bush, where he could see the west elevation of the big house very well and—probably—not be seen. There he waited.

Meanwhile, Louis, in the rich sunset light, had taken up a position beside a big tree, from which he could watch the bridle path that led from the house and at the same time slip out of sight among the trees in case anybody came along whom he didn't wish to have see him. His present status in the household was a bit uncertain. Amid the affluence of Overlook House Judge Crane innocently retained some democratic ideals of his early Western days. For one thing, he didn't like "flunkies." Any male person in livery was a flunky; but this same male person, performing the same menial offices without a livery, was merely a servant, and so not at all repugnant to the Judge's democratic faith. Therefore, there were no flunkies, properly speaking. Since the wheeled chair was often in use, Louis was quite as apt to be employed around the house as on the grounds, but he was still nominally a gardener.

His status in another respect was more unsettled. Such passages and declamations as commonly lead to matrimony had occurred between himself and Lena, the muscular maid. Louis himself had considered that affair as good as settled. Then came a witch—of Polish extraction, it was said—with lissom body as graceful as a cat's, dancing blue eyes, bowed red lips and an amazing lack of any sense of responsibility. So Louis was now certain of only one thing—that there was something in his heart that made him drunk and stung him; and that, except when that heady intoxication rolled over him like a wave, he was mostly miserable.

He was now waiting for Katey; but he had chosen such a position that, while not missing Katey, he could discreetly withdraw out of vengeful Lena's sight in case Lena should be looking for him. Katey had promised to meet him there, and he had in his pocket two tickets—at a dollar and a half apiece—for the extraordinary theatrical performance at Windham, by which he had bribed her to promise. Louis was 32—not a young man, but at a time of life when one's status ought to be getting settled. Not a handsome man, either, and undeniably bandy-legged, as many a square-built person of great bodily strength is. He had an obscure idea that what attracted Katey was his strength, or perhaps the big yellow mustache that barred his square face straight across. And sometimes he was tormented by the idea that what attracted Katey was just taking him away from Lena. But he couldn't help it; he couldn't help anything any more.

His heart beat sensibly and his eyes burned along the path as he waited for her to come gliding into view. The light that flooded the woods grew mellower and presently began to die. Louis waited until it was quite dark and the extraordinary theatrical performance at Windham had been going on for some time. And Lena was amply revenged, if she had but known it, for the night that gathered in Louis' heart was deeper than that which mysteriously drowned the woods under a moonless sky. At length he plodded heavily away—mercifully hidden by the night from all unbearable sight—out of the woods and down to the sea.

Instinct led him to the right spot down there. Somewhat to the south of Overlook House a long tongue of water ran right into the land, as though a huge wedge had been driven into the rock shore at the sharpest angle, leaving a great granite splinter 30 rods long on the seaward side. That long tongue of water, confined between precipitous granite walls and fretted by many great bowlders in its bed, behaved very rudely at high tide, especially if the wind was in the south. Toward its upper end broken rock and drifted shingle formed a bar which was only a foot or so under water at low tide. Above that bar the basin was deeper and more strictly confined by sheer rock walls. Into that basin at high tide—especially when driven by a south wind—the waves piled and couldn't well get out, so they tore and roared and seethed and boiled in there most forbiddingly, tumbling and eddying in every direction, but still with a main circular drift round and round.

Long ago the spot had been named the Devil's Coffee Pot, but at Overlook House it was commonly known just as "the pot." It was a source of some little annoyance to Judge Crane. As the pot was a locally famous natural wonder, he didn't quite like to fence it off and forbid access to it, so the path along the shore through his grounds was undefiled by signs of warning against trespass. But sometimes tourists who had satisfied their curiosity regarding the pot proceeded to satisfy it regarding other parts of his estate, and even regarding the aspects of his house as seen through the windows. He compromised by putting up a sign, "Please keep to the path."

The pot was a source of speculative fascination to must be getting into his dotage, he reflected, or else the idea of a $5,000,000 job had him rattled. Of course, Sir Thomas would not use his title.

At the rear desk he had his card blown up through the tube to "Mr. T. Drummond," and a few moments later was invited to take the elevator.

Arriving at the sixth floor, he needed no page to guide him; boots pointed his way to the apartment of the distinguished visitor as a lettered signboard; boots of all descriptions—hunting boots, riding boots, street shoes, low shoes, pumps, sandals—black ones and tan ones—all in a row outside the door. It was a typically English display. Evidently Sir Thomas Drummond was a personage of the most extreme importance and traveled in befitting style, Mr. Wylie told himself. Nothing was missing from the collection, unless, perhaps, a pair of rubber hip boots.

A stoop-shouldered old man, with a marked accent and a port-wine nose, showed Mr. Wylie into a parlor, where the first object upon which his active eyes alighted was a mass of blueprints. He knew these drawings; he had figured on them himself. He likewise noted a hat box and a great, shapeless English bag, both plastered crazily with hotel and steamship labels hailing from every quarter of the world. It was plain to be seen that Sir Thomas was a globe trotter.

"Mr. Drummond begs you to be seated," the valet announced with what seemed an unnecessary accent on the "mister," then moved silently out.

Mr. Wylie remarked to himself upon the value of discreet servants. They were very valuable; very hard to get in America. This must be some lifelong servitor in his lordship's family.

There was no occasion to inquire the identity of the tall, florid Englishman in tweeds who entered a moment later, a bundle of estimates in his hand. "Sir Thomas Drummond, chairman of the Royal Barrata Bridge Commission," was written all over him in large type.

His lordship did not go to the trouble of welcoming his visitor, but scanned him frigidly through his glasses.

"You are Mr. Wylie Jackson Sr.?" he demanded abruptly.

"That is my name."

"President of the Atlantic Bridge Co. of Newark, N. J.?"

"The same."

"You received a cablegram from your son in London?"

"Yes, your lordship."

Sir Thomas made a gesture as if to forego the title. "Let me see it, please."

Mr. Wylie produced the cablegram, and Drummond scanned it sharply. Evidently the identification was complete.

"Does anyone besides your son and yourself know the contents of this message?"

"Not a soul."

"You have not told anyone of my coming?"

"No, sir."

"Very well." Sir Thomas appeared to breathe easier; he deliberately tore the cablegram into small bits, then tossed the fragments into a wastepaper basket before waving his caller to a chair. He still remained very cold, very forceful, although his stiff formality had vanished.

"Do you understand all about this bridge?" he inquired.

Wylie senior took the cue of brusqueness and nodded shortly.

"Can you build it in the time specified?"

"With ease."

"Have you submitted your bid?"

"Not yet. I"——

"What is the amount of your proposal?"

The president of the Atlantic Bridge Co. gasped. This was the boldest, the coldest, work he had ever experienced. Many times he had witnessed public officials like Sir Thomas Drummond approach this delicate point, but never with such composure, such matter-of-fact certainty and lack of moral scruple. Evidently, however, this Englishman had come to trade and wanted a direct answer. There was no false pose, no romance here. But Jackson Wylie Sr. was too shrewd a business man to name a rock-bottom price to begin with. The training of a lifetime would not permit him to deny himself a liberal leeway for hedging. Therefore he replied, cautiously:

"My figures will be approximately 1,400,000 pounds sterling." It was his longest speech thus far.

For what seemed an hour to the bridge builder Sir Thomas Drummond gazed at him with a cold, hard eye, then he folded his papers, rolled up his blueprints, placed them in the big traveling bag and carefully locked it. When he had finished he flung out this question suddenly:

"Does that include the commissioners?"

Up to this point Mr. Jackson Wylie had spoken mainly in monosyllables; now he quit talking altogether; it was no longer necessary. He merely shook his head in negation. He was smiling slightly.

"Then I shall ask you to add 200,000 pounds sterling to your price," his lordship calmly announced. "Make your bid 1,600,000 pounds sterling, and mail it in time for Wednesday's boat. I sail on the same ship. Proposals will be opened on the twenty-fifth. Arrange for an English indemnity bond for 10 per cent of your proposition. Do not communicate in any manner whatsoever with your son, except to forward the sealed bid to him. He is not to know of our arrangement. You will meet me in London later; we will take care of that 200,000 pounds sterling out of the last 40 per cent of the contract price, which is payable 30 days after completion, inspection and acceptance of the bridge. You will not consult your associates upon leaving here. Do I make myself clear? Very well, sir. The figures are easy to remember—1,600,000 pounds sterling; 1,400,000 pounds sterling to you. I am pleased with the facilities your plant offers for doing the work. I am confident you can complete the bridge on time, and I beg leave to wish you a very pleasant good day."

Jackson Wylie Sr. did not really come to until he had reached the street; even then he did not know whether he had come down the elevator or through the mail chute. Of one thing only was he certain; he was due to retire in favor of his son. He told himself that he needed a trip through the Holy Land with a guardian and a nursing bottle; then he paused on the curb and stamped on his corn for a second time.

"Oh, what an idiot I am!" he cried, savagely. "I could have gotten 1,600,000 pounds sterling to start with, but—by gad, Sir Thomas is the coldest-blooded thing I ever went against! I—I can't help but admire him."

Having shown a deplorable lack of foresight, Mr. Wylie determined to make up for it by an ample display of hindsight. If the profits on the job were not to be so large as they might have been, he would at least make certain of them by obeying instructions to the letter. In accordance with this determination, he made out the bid himself, and he mailed it with his own hand that very afternoon. He put three blue stamps on the envelope, although it required but two. Then he called up an automobile agency and ordered a foreign town car his wife had admired. He decided that she and the girls might go to Paris for the fall shopping—he might even go with them, in view of that morning's episode.

For 10 days he stood the pressure, then on the morning of the twenty-fourth he called his confreres into the directors' room, that same room in which young Hanford had made his talk a number of years before. Inasmuch as it was too late now for a disclosure to affect the opening of the bids in London, he felt absolved from his promise to Sir Thomas.

"Gentlemen, I have the honor to inform you," he began, pompously, "that the Barrata bridge is ours! We have the greatest structural steel job of the decade." His chest swelled with justifiable pride.

"How? When? What do you mean?" they cried.

He told them of his mysterious but fruitful interview at the Waldorf 10 days previously, enjoying their expressions of amazement to the full; then he explained in considerable detail the difficulties he had surmounted in securing such liberal figures from Sir Thomas.

"We were ready to take the contract for 1,300,000 pounds sterling, as you will remember, but by the exercise of some diplomacy"—he coughed modestly—"I may say by the display of some firmness and independence, I succeeded in securing a clean profit of $500,000 over what we had expected." He accepted, with becoming diffidence, the congratulations which were showered upon him. Of course, the news created a sensation, but it was as nothing to the sensation that followed upon the receipt of a cablegram the next day which read:

"Atwylie, Newark, N. J.: Terrible mistake somewhere. We lost. Am coming home today."

Mr. Jackson Wylie Sr. also went home that day—by carriage, for, after raving wildly of treachery, after cursing the name of some English nobleman, unknown to most of the office force, he collapsed, throwing his employes into much confusion. There were rumors of an apoplectic stroke; someone telephoned for a physician; but the president of the Atlantic Bridge Co. only howled at the latter when he arrived.

What hit the old man the hardest was the fact that he could not explain to his associates—that he could not even explain to himself, for that matter. He could make neither head nor tail of the affair; his son was on the high seas and could not be reached; the mystery of the whole transaction threatened to unseat his reason. Even when his sorrowing heir arrived, a week after the shock, his father could gather nothing at first except the bare details.

All he could learn was that the Royal Barrata Bridge Commission had met on the twenty-fifth day of May, for the second time in its history, with Sir Thomas Drummond in the chair. In the midst of an ultra-British solemnity the bids had been opened and read—nine of them—two Belgian, one German, two French, one English, one Scottish and two American.

The only proposals that conformed to the specifications in every respect were the last named. They were perfect. The Atlantic Bridge Co. of Newark, N. J., offered to do the work as specified for 1,600,000 pounds sterling. The Patterson Bridge Co., through its authorized agent, Mr. Henry Hanford, named a price of 1,550,000 pounds sterling. The rest was but a matter of detail.

Having concluded this bald recital, Jackson Wylie, the second, spread his hands in a gesture of despair. "I can't understand it," he said, dolefully. "I thought I had it cinched all the time."

"You had it cinched!" bellowed his father. "You! Why, you ruined it all! Why in hell did you send him over here?"

"I? Send who? What are you talking about?"

"That man with the boots! That lying, thieving scoundrel, Sir Thomas Drummond, of course."

The younger Wylie's face showed blank, uncomprehending amazement. "Sir Thomas Drummond was in London all the time I was there. I saw him daily," said he.

Not until this very moment did the president of the Atlantic Bridge Co. comprehend the trap he had walked into, but now the whole hideous business became apparent. He had been fooled, swindled, and in a way to render recourse impossible; nay, in a manner to blacken his reputation if the story became public. He felt actually ill from the passion of his rage and not even a long rest from the worries of business completely cured him. The bitter taste of defeat would not down. He might never have understood the matter thoroughly had it not been for a missive he received one day through the mail. It was a bill from a London shoe store, for 12 pairs of boots, of varying styles, made out to Henry Hanford, and marked "paid."

Mr Jackson Wylie Sr. noted with unspeakable chagrin that the last word was heavily underscored in ink, as if by another hand. Hanford's bill was indeed paid, and with interest to date.

by Capt. Climson, who was in charge. This fort was situated on the south side of the Missouri River, a short distance from where the town of Sibley now stands in Jackson County. On Saturday, June 6, they reached the present site of Kansas City. This was opposite the "Cansas River," as Luttig spells it: Near this point the Kansas Indians had the headquarters of their tribe. Maj. Sibley, a writer of the time, who visited the village, describes it as a place of 128 lodges, each about 60 feet long and 25 feet wide. They were constructed of stout poles and saplings arranged in the form of an arbor, covered with skins, barks and mats. The fireplace was simply a hole in the ground beneath a hole in the roof, and there were as many fireplaces as there were families in the lodge. The lodges were arranged without any order as to streets and were placed so close together a man could hardly walk between them.

As the voyage proceeded up the Missouri, Luttig continued his painstaking enumeration of the points visited. The Sioux, or Dacotahs, were visited in South Dakota and the various Indian tribes along the route are mentioned. Indian chiefs of the day who drew comment from Luttig are Black Buffalo, a Teton Sioux, who died at St. Charles, Mo., in 1815, while attending a conference, and who evidently made the long journey down the river in a flatboat; Big Horse, an Ogala chief visited near the Platte River; Crooked Hand, whose tribe hailed from what is now Minnesota and who visited Gen. Pike in 1805; Le Borgne, the great chief of the Minnetarees; Grey Eyes of the Arikaras and Big White of the Mandans.

In this trip along the Dakota region, the party secured 36 packs of furs in one deal. In view of the enormous prices now realized for pelts of all kinds, it is interesting to note that a "pack" contained 10 buffalo robes, 14 bear skins, 60 otter, 80 beaver, 80 raccoon, 120 fox skins and 600 muskrat skins. To get 36 such collections in a single deal shows the plenitude of fur in those days. The headquarters of the Mandans, who roamed about the Dakota region, was near what is now Bismarck. An old stockaded village in which survivors of the tribe lived existed until about 1888. Then they scattered and it is estimated about 250 persons are living out of this once powerful tribe.

Through this region, the party had no trouble in supplying itself with buffalo, notes showing that as many as nine were killed on a single day. Trouble with the Indians arose at times, due to the tribes having been urged to attack by agents of the British, and Le Compté, a member of the party, was killed while out with Chabonneau.

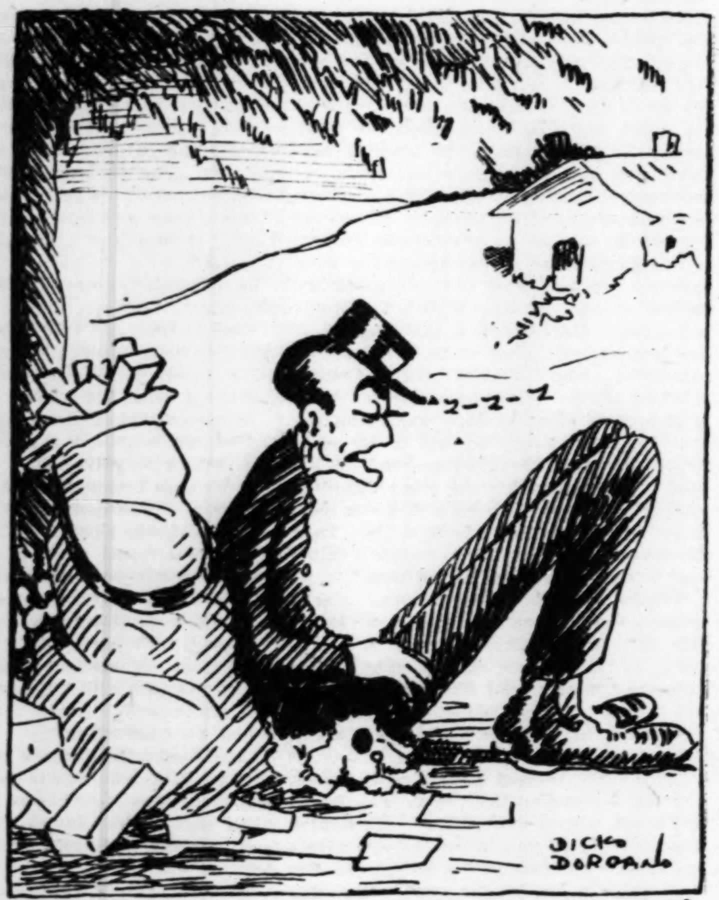
Stamps Should Show What's Inside a Letter

By RING W. LARDNER.



"I once served as substitute mail carrier in Niles, Mich."

MR. WARREN G. HARDING, Marion, O.

Dear W. G.: About 2 wks. ago I wrote you a letter applying for the position as secy. of state in your cabinet and haven't recd. no reply to same but from what I been reading in the papers it looks like you had made it up in your mind to give this position to either Chas. Hughes or Eli H. Root. Well, W. G., I haven't nothing to say vs. neither one of these men and believe they would both make you a good man as Eli has held the position before wile Chas. mind should ought to travel right along with yours as he was president himself a whole night.

Speaking about Chas. he reminds me something like a busher on a baseball club. Washington drafted him from the N. Y. State League and all he done was set on the bench till the Senators needed a run and he run for Sweeney and got called out on a close decision and in the mean wile they had signed up another bench warmer and it was back to the bushes for Chas. and when I say bushes I am not makeing no vulgar reference to his disguise.

But laying all jokes to 1 side, what I am getting at is that I wanted a portfolio in your cabinet though I have all ready got a portfolio that I use it to bring my play manuscripts back home in, but no jokeing Gamaliel, wile I said I would prefer secy. of state, why if you have got a man in mind for that position why I would just as leaf take one of the other places like for inst. post master gen.

Now Gam, I know that some of my enemys will probably tell you that I am not eligible for this portfolio as I once served a turn as substitute mail carrier in Niles, Mich., and know something about how the mail service should be ran, but between you and I, Gam I don't recall nothing about the ins and outs of the business and as far as technical knowledge is conserned I would enter the new birth with that blank mind so nessary to a cabinet member.

But I have got some idears in regards to the improvement of the P. O. dept. and while I think the present incumbrants has made a start in the right direction, still I don't feel like he has grasped all the possibilitys. Like for inst., if another war come up in France and our boys was sent over there and their wifes and mothers mailed xmas presents to them, why instead of dumping all these packages on a ship bound for Honolulu I would open them up at Hoboken and have a rumage sale and sent a certain per cent of the receipts back to the wifes and mothers to keep them going till the war dept. got around to sending them part of their last April's allotment.

But the thing I would get after is our stamp system which it looks to me like it was one of the silliest things connected with the govt. As soon as you promised me the portfolio I would go right to work and get up some stamps with some sense to them. Like for inst. instead of a picture of a boy rideing a bicycle on the special delivery stamps, I would have a picture of the Shamrock 3 or a Ford with a wheel off.

It is my idear that the stamps that is used the most oftenest like the 1 and 2 cent stamps should ought to have a picture on them that will give the person to who the letter is addressed some sort of a hint as to what the letter is about, so as if they are not interested they don't half to open the letter. Of course, if you write to somebody to inform them of the demice of some relative or friend its O.K. to use one of the present stamps with Washington's picture or some other party that's dead.

But the most of the stamps would half to be brand new, with photos on them to fit all the different kinds of letters. For inst. I would fix it so that when you wrote a letter that you thought was comical you could buy a stamp with Charley Chaplin's picture.

When you sent a person the monthly statement of what they owed you, the stamp for it would have a picture of some famous man named Bill, like Bryan or Hart or Sunday or the Kaiser.

If you wrote a letter enclosing some money the stamp would be a picture of some notorous Jack, say Dempsey or Pershing or Barrymore or Jill's husband.

A invitation to a party would be stamped with a picture of the Haig boys or Mr. Volstead, according to the party.

The regrets would carry a photo of Cox or Ludendorf or a group picture of the Yale football squad.

A invitation to a wedding would have on it a design of a minister holding a $20 tip in his mitt.

Also, I would make it compulsory for people that wrote and asked you to dinner to buy one or two styles of stamps, either with a picture of a man in a dress suit or a picture of a man in his own clothes, then they wouldn't be no argument about what you was suppose to wear.

Love letters would be stamped with a photo of Lillian Gish or Theda Bara, according to how much you dast say in them.

After I had ran the dept. a wile and they was a big surplus on hand, I would go a step further than the above and introduce a stamp system which I have always thought it would be ideal, namely to have every letter stamped with the picture of the party who the letter was for, and also the picture of the party that wrote it. In this way you wouldn't half to open practically none of your mail. And suppose you met the mail man on the st. and he recognized you from your picture, why he could say:

Wait a minute, I have got a letter for you and save the trouble of going to your house. As for the picture of the sender, I would have it made a criminal offence for say a concern like the gas Co. to get you to read their mail by stamping it with a picture of Dorothy Dalton.

In the case I found it impossible to carry out my idears in regards to stamps for a wile, I would put in effect a temporary scheme that would be a trouble saver, namely I would have the clerks in the P. O. open up all your mail and if they thought they was anything in it you might like to know they could call you up or wait till you dropped in the P. O. some time and tell you about it.

I would also abolish the dead letters office though they tell me it never done such a business as lately, but I can't see no reason for haveing it. My idear is that if the person who a letter is addressed to can't be located, why, send it to some poor family that don't get many letters.

Another thing I would do is stop people like congressmen whose names is Harry and Thos. from putting a Frank in their mail. Of coarse the mail ain't worth 2 cts. when you get it, but if they are going to gum up the mail box with their speeches and packages of prune seeds they should ought to pay for it.

I would also try and make jobs in my dept. so attractive that the best kind of people of both sexes would want them. I would give my employes some kind of social life like for inst. a party once a wk. where we would play some games they would be interested in like post office. And I would insist on all post offices everywheres staying open all day Sunday so as when the next amendment goes in effect they will be some place for the public to hang out between church.

I wished you would give me a whirl at this portfolio, W. G., as the more I think of it I like it even better than secy. of state because stepping into some men's shoes is like following Nora Bayes on a vaudeville bill, but this will be like going on after Geo. Devine the Juggler, but any way if I don't hear from you one way or the other in a few days I will think they must be something wrong with the postal service.

Diary of Fur Trader More Than 100 Years Ago

is mentioned. They were so numerous, writes Luttig, as to deprive the Indians of their "daily walks." Hunters of the party on one occasion killed 19 buffalo and nine elk, but lost the meat of seven of the animals from raids by the wolves. A man sent out with a cart was attacked by five of the animals. He managed to get back to the party.

Casual mention is made that some Cree Indians arrived with some furs and a girl which they wished to trade. The girl wanted to be the wife of one of the party, but the deal fell through.

On Dec. 20, while in the Cheyenne and Arapahoe country, Sacajawea, the Indian girl, died. Luttig writes that she was the best woman at the fort at the time. She was the one who had accompanied Lewis and Clark on their expedition.

In this country, near the mouth of what is now the Minnesota River, the cold was intense. The life of the voyageurs, huddled together as they must have been, whether on the boat or in native villages, must have been trying in the extreme. Luttig comments bitterly on the fact that savages, urged by the British, were allowed to spread hostility to the Americans and criticises the Government for not establishing a fort in that region. This was done later. In 1820, the United States Government sent Col. Leavenworth with the Fifth Infantry to establish a fort there and it remains under the name of Fort Snelling.

The diary stops abruptly on March 3, 1813, and accounts published later in the Missouri Gazette tell of the return to St. Louis of members of the Lisa party, who lost 15 men in an attack by the Mandan Indians. Whether they were able to bring all the survivors of the party and their hard-earned furs with them is not known.

The book itself, written as it is in informal style, is interesting as showing the matter-of-fact way in which the dangers of the route were accepted. Even if this expedition was disastrous, it did not deter Manual Lisa, for he is known to have sent out other parties at almost the same time, up the river and into the Southwest.

The equipment to clerks and boatmen on a trip of this sort, as drawn from the old records, consisted of a blanket, valued at $4; one and one-half yards of blue cloth, valued at $2.66; one calico shirt, valued at 72 cents; one cotton handkerchief, valued at 16 cents; one knife, valued at 17 cents, and three pounds of tobacco, valued at 18 cents. Even though money was much more valuable in those days and had several times the purchasing power of today, this seems a flimsy equipment for men who were expected to furnish their own arms, ammunition and clothing and to risk their lives in the wilds. The monthly pay of $25 was considered exceptionally high for the time.

Names mentioned in the diary and appendix, which may be recalled by many St. Louisans, include Michael E. Immell, Amos Richardson, Col. Eli B. Richardson, Francois Robidou, Louis Bissonet, Charles Sanguinet, Reuben Lewis, Maj. John Dougherty, Jean Baptiste Point du Sable, Auguste Derocher and Antoine Citoleux.

Appended to the volume in its present form is also a list of employes of the Missouri Fur Co. in 1812 and 1813, from which the names of many who went on the particular voyage of which Luttig wrote can be recognized.

Included in the book, as assembled by the Historical Society, is a map used by Maximilian, Prince of Wied, during his travels in America in 1833 and 1834. This map was prepared largely on the evidence of men such as Luttig, who had made a close study of the country as they traveled through it. And the minute attention they paid to particulars is evidenced in this chart, which, in proportion and accuracy, is remarkable for its time. It is a tribute to the general reliability of diaries such as Luttig's.

OVERLOOK HOUSE --

Ted Pennell, who had spent a good deal of supposedly valuable time tossing pieces of wood into it, studying the currents and wondering, adventurously, whether a man who jumped into it in a bathing suit, at high tide, would get out alive. He had a sort of feeling that he could never be satisfied until he found out. As though the satanic designer had wished to enjoy his pot in privacy, a long heap of tumbled rock had been thrown up near it as a sort of rude screen. Round that screen Louis walked, the tumult within him drawn to the tumult of water. But it was low tide now; the pot only murmured and tossed a bit in its slumber. So Louis sat down on the rock screen and stared out to sea—a dusk of immensity which pulsed in long, noiseless heartbeats and murmured at the crags. His woe was even more immense than that.

And on the following day, Friday, he learned that Katey had left the house for good. She hadn't been discharged, but had left abruptly of her own accord and would not return. That terse statement, emanating indisputably from Benjamin, the butler, himself, had circulated through the servants' quarters until it reached Louis.

That Friday evening Lester Hilton left New York to spend the week-end at Overlook House, as he had promised his wife. Danforth Crane, the Judge's son, came up on the same train with him. Not that either of them particularly cared to travel with the other; but trains are free to anybody. Danforth Crane regarded Lester Hilton—in so far as he bothered to regard him at all—with a mild and cool toleration. Lester Hilton was well enough aware of it and secretly hated him for it. Outwardly, of course, he could afford no such ruinous extravagance as would be involved in any display of that sentiment toward the man who, with his father, was making the fortunes of Pennell, Hilton & Co. Outwardly, as a matter of course, he made every display of esteem and friendship.

Saturday morning, by chance, the two men left Overlook House at almost the same time for a walk and a mouthful of the fresh sea air. But since they could easily escape each other, and that was what both of them wanted to do, they turned in opposite directions.

The sharp north wind of the Thursday before had turned gentle and southerly, bringing genial weather—expansive and bland as one strolled across the luxuriant grounds looking off at the shining sea. But there was nothing bland in Lester Hilton's mind. The brutal luck down in Wall street still held, and he'd had a half-hour's talk with his wife—inconclusive, but somber enough, too. His mind was gloomy, and deep down in him his heart quaked. Could it, after all, come to utter smash with him? His lean and over-eager face puckered as he asked himself that fateful question of the sea, and he felt a brutality in the sea's bland indifference.

As he walked toward the water a sound arose upon his ear—a long roar. Remembering the pot then, he thought the tide must be high—worth looking at, anyway, for one who had nothing else to do. He went round the screen of tumbled rock, stepped down through a little crevice in the granite and came out on the rim of the pot.

The tide was high and the pot boiled finely—a wild tumult of prisoned water, seething and whirling in every part, now churned into milk, and the next instant showing faint streaks of green as the waves rolled in and couldn't get out. The whole surface rose and fell in long, spasmodic pants, boiling up and down, but every part of the surface was in its own motion. Hilton looked down at it a couple of minutes and an idea occurred to him—or hardly an idea; more like a thing that pushed itself into his mind. The meaning of it was that if one stepped forward some 20 inches all his trouble would be over forever.

He turned hastily, scrambled up the little crevice, and strode away almost as though the putative designer of the pot had reached a physical hand for him. He went back toward the house, circled its north end and approached the west door. So approaching, he glanced mechanically downward into the little cement-paved artificial valley with a screen of shrubbery at either side, by which one gained the service doors of the basement. Two figures stood in the depression by a laundry window and the extraordinary action of one of them arrested Hilton's attention. He identified that figure as the square-built chap with a ridiculous mustache who pushed Mrs. Crane's wheeled chair. The chap seemed to be in a paroxysm of some sort—snatching the cap from his head, hurling it furiously to the ground, clutching a hand in his tow head, confronting the other figure as though about to fall upon him—or perhaps he was about to have a fit. Then the second figure saw the guest and called out: "Good morning, Mr. Hilton."

Whereupon the first figure glared around, snatched up his cap and ran away. The remaining figure was clad in an absurd, ill-fitting plaid suit of light yellow color and wore a stiff straw hat at a rakish angle. Hilton immediately remembered him as someone he had seen about the place.

All Friday Samuel Thorp, so to speak, carried a cannon firecracker around in his mind, with a lighted fuse. He wanted that cracker to go off, yet he was afraid it would while still in his possession. For just once in his life he knew something that he didn't tell about. Indeed, he was rather helpless and half paralyzed about it, for it was a thing that his imagination could hardly embroider. The truth itself exceeded any lie he could think of and so, with a sort of helplessness, he kept still.

Friday and Saturday morning he haunted Overlook House more closely than ever—considerably to the annoyance of plodding Cousin Jim, who felt that the haunting might be prejudicial to his good job; but one's relatives were the will of Providence, no doubt, like boils. Saturday forenoon, sauntering out once more through the storeroom to the little cement valley, Cousin Sam saw Louis, the gardener, who looked downcast and was walking by on the ground level. The temptation was excessive.

"How you segashiatin' this morning, Louis?" Cousin Sam called out, genially, giving his own joke the tribute of a broad smile, and starting up the cement incline.

Any friendly voice subtly warmed the gardener's forlorn heart. He paused, smiling rather wanly, and replied, "All right."

Cousin Sam joined him on the ground level, yearning to cast a line and see what fish he could catch, yet a bit dubious.

"This is what your Uncle Abner would call something like," said Sam, meaning the fine weather. "It does sure start the sap to perambulatin' in a man. I'm thinkin', if this holds, I must get me a fish pole and a jug of corn juice and mingle with old Mother Nature for a spell." He favored the gardener with a wide, loose-mouthed grin, looking tremendously experienced out of his pale eyes as he added: "I ain't been spificated right since New Year's. I believe it would do me a world of good."

Louis smiled, somewhat wanly, at this pleasantry.

"Guess, from all the signs and tokens that I've been observin' round here, some other people have had more luck," Sam continued, with his worldly wise grin.

"Somebody been drinking?" Louis inquired, not with any interest in the subject, but to be polite.

Sam's grin broadened and he rallied the gardener: "You don't know nothin' about it yourself, eh, Louis?"—his manner implying that Louis knew all about it and was discreetly concealing the fact.

"Me?" said the innocent Louis. "No, I don't know anything about any drinking."

"You wasn't participatin' in that little celebration Thursday afternoon?" Mr. Thorp pursued with an incredulous air.

"Celebration?" Louis repeated. "No. I had no celebration."

"No?" said the furnace man. "I reckoned probably you was takin' a hand in it. Somebody was sure havin' a right merry little party Thursday, by all the signs and tokens—and gettin' spificated for fair, or I'm a fish."

"Around here?" the gardener asked.

"Sure!" the furnace man replied, with a depth of sage conviction. "Katey, that Polish girl, was stewed to the gills."

Louis' eyes winced as though he had received a stab; and the look of mere incidental interest on his face was succeeded by something tense and wounded. "Katey?" he repeated, and choked a little over the word.

"Sure!" Mr. Thorp declared again. "I saw her myself—laid out to dry off."

It was a moment before Louis could manage his voice to ask breathlessly: "Where?"

"Right there in that identical laundry," said Samuel Thorp, with the air of producing incontrovertible proof, pointing to the glazed window. "Pretty generally I come out through the storeroom and laundry, you see. Thursday afternoon—about 5 o'clock or some after—I started along that trail. But the laundry door was locked. Thinks I, 'That's kind of queer; this door was not locked a while ago; it ain't never been locked far's I remember.'"

As Samuel Thorp began speaking Louis had started mechanically down the short descent and Sam walked down with him, still speaking.

"Thinks I, 'That's kind of queer,'" he repeated. Looking around at Louis, he cackled and went on: "Bein' as I'm naturally of an inquirin' turn of mind, I thought I'd do a little prognosticatin'—just to be sociable. So I got the stepladder and climbed up to the transom and scratched a little hole in it and peeked through and there—sure's you're a foot high!—was Katey layin' over there on a pile of dirty clothes. I saw her plain's I'm seein' you."

"What time—what time was that?" Louis managed to ask.

"'Long about 5 o'clock or some after," Samuel Thorp replied, an uncertain look on his face as he watched the effect of his disclosure.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure, without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 695g Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Rheumatism
Left Him As If By Magic!

Had Suffered Over 50 Years!

Now 83 Years, Yet a Big Surprise To Friends

Regains Strength Goes Out Fishing Back to Business Laughs at "URIC ACID"

How the "Inner Mysteries" Reveals Startling Facts Overlooked By Doctors and Scientists For Centuries

"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army over fifty years ago," writes J. B. Ashelman. "Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called 'cures', and I have read about 'Uric Acid' continuously. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain; my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now, as if by magic, I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all-day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change."

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Mr. Ashelman is only one of thousands who suffered for years, owing to the general belief in the old false theory that "Uric Acid" causes rheumatism. This erroneous belief induced him and legions of unfortunate men and women to take wrong treatments. You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as to try and get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and like complaints, by taking treatments supposed to drive Uric Acid out of your blood and body. Many physicians and scientists now know that Uric Acid never did, never can and never will cause rheumatism; that it is a natural and necessary consituent of the blood; that it is found in every new-born babe; and that without it we could not live!

These statements may seem strange to some folks, who have all along been led to believe in the old "Uric Acid" humbug. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out this truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, other disorders, and recover his strength from "The Inner Mysteries," a remarkable book now being distributed free by an authority who devoted over twenty years to the scientific study of this particular trouble.

NOTE: If any reader of the Post-Dispatch wishes the book that reveals these facts regarding the true cause and cure of rheumatism, facts that were overlooked by doctors and scientists for centuries past, simply send a post card or letter to H. P. Clearwater, No. 20-D Street, Hallowell, Maine, and it will be sent free by return mail without any charge whatever. Cut out this notice lest you forget! If you are not a sufferer yourself hand this good news to some affiliated friend.

"TRUE" GHOST STORY

him the 'Christian charity' he had spoken about.

"'By giving me something,' he replied, 'and being sorry for me when you give it.'

"'I am sorry for you,' I said. 'Isn't that enough?'

"'No,' he answered, 'that isn't enough. You might have done it if you had bought the soap from me the other day.'

"'So it is money you want?' I asked.

"'Yes,' he said, 'money will do, or anything else that you value.'

"'Will you stay where you are until I can get some?' I asked, and he said, yes, he would stay where he was.

"So I went into my room and took some money from my purse, and went back and showed it to him. There was a half-crown, a shilling and some coppers. I showed him the money and asked him if that would do, and he said it would.

"Then I said: 'I am not going to open this door. How can I give these coins to you?'

"'You don't need to open it,' he answered. 'There is a hat rack there behind you, with a marble shelf in it—put them on that shelf.'

"I stepped back to the hat rack and put the money on the shelf, watching him all the time. I glanced at the coins an instant as I laid them down, and when I looked at the door again there was nobody there. I instantly turned to the hat rack again, but the shelf was bare—the coins had disappeared, too!

"I rushed to the door to unlock it and run into the street, for I thought Deeming had got into the house. But just as I had my hand on the key I heard his voice in front of me.

"'Don't be afraid,' the voice said. 'I haven't moved.'

"'But how did you get the money?' I asked.

"'You wouldn't understand if I should tell you,' replied the voice.

"'But I can't see you!' I exclaimed.

"'No,' said the voice, 'and you never will again. I have gone on.'

"'But you are not going away with my money, are you?' I asked. 'Do you need it now?'

"'No,' the voice replied, 'I do not need it. You gave it to me because you pitied me. I have no more use for it.'

"'Can you give it back to me?' I asked.

"'I have given it back,' said the voice. 'Look on the hat rack.'

"I heard something jingle behind me, and as I turned around I saw the coins all lying on the shelf again."

Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson and a middle-aged Scotchman who was a good friend, lived for a year at Melbourne in what the author, "for want of a better expression," calls a haunted house. The general run of the supernatural performances the author characterizes as "absurd and impish," such as the dish of stuffed tomatoes, piping hot, which was put into an oven to stay warm, but had vanished when it was time to serve them, and which reappeared just as mysteriously on the floor in front of the oven, after the meal was over.

There was also the pan of milk which rose to the ceiling of the pantry, hung there motionless for several minutes and then slowly and steadily descended until Mr. Dickinson seized it by the handles on both sides and tried to make it move faster, when the pan remained motionless in midair, despite his utmost efforts to move it.

"The effect was not at all as if I were pulling against a physical force like my own," says the author. "The pan was as immovable and inert as though it were a component part of the masonry of the chamber about it. I stood aside, therefore; whereupon it began to float down again, and shortly settled in its former place on the floor, touching it so lightly that the contact did not cause even a ripple upon the surface of the milk."

Then there were things heard a great many times by all the three occupants of the house, such as footfalls; the rustling of ghostly skirts; the groans (sometimes loud and ghastly); the occasional banging of all the doors in the house in rapid succession, when no wind was blowing; and the crooning song, always the same, followed by a little laugh, which the ghost of a girl-child used to sing to her dolly, as she sat in a corner of the room where the family spent the evening together.

Perhaps the most amusing trick of the "house goblins" was played in the parlor of the house, which had been rented furnished from the owner. The Dickinsons had put some of their own belongings on the mantel and walls of this room, but seldom used it.

"Now and then would break out in that room a racket as though a dozen devils were dancing the tarantelle, accompanied by a sound as of a maelstrom of wind whirling in it. We never had courage to enter while the disturbance was in progress—in fact, we had no time to do so, as it always ended within a few minutes; but when we opened the door after the noise had subsided, we invariably found the same condition of affairs—every article in the room that belonged to us piled in a heap on the floor, and all the possessions of the absent family standing or hanging undisturbed in their usual places.

"We were disposed to regard this demonstration as a gentle hint that our continuation in the house was not desired, and that the 'spooks,' as we came familiarly to call them, had, in furtherance of this idea, gathered together such of our belongings as they could reach in order to facilitate our packing up for departure."

During the latter part of their occupancy of the house the character of the influence which had so long possessed it seemed to undergo a change which the author describes by saying that it took the form of "an ominous acquiescence." "The elfish entities whose cantrips had served more to amuse and mystify than to annoy us, seemed suddenly to have abandoned the premises, as if retiring before some superior approach."

The three people in the house were filled with apprehension, and twice, in the final weeks of their stay in the house, Mrs. Dickinson was seized by invisible demons who tried to strangle her, and with such effect as to leave the marks of fingers on her throat. Each time (this happened in the evening) Mr. Dickinson and his Scotch friend tore the gasping woman from the grasp of the unseen forces and carried her outdoors, where the influences seemed to pass. Both times the trio then spent the remainder of the night walking up and down the street in front of the house.

The author states his opinion that "anyone who devotes himself to the study of what, for want of a better word, we call 'supernatural,' will inevitably and at last find himself landed in an impasse. The first steps in the pursuit are easy, and seductively promise final arrival at the goal—but in every case of which I, at least, have knowledge, the course abruptly ends (sometimes sooner, sometimes later) against a wall so high as to be unscalable, not to be broken through, extending to infinity on either hand.

"That disembodied spirits can at least make their existence known to us appears to me as a well-approved fact; that they are 'forbid to tell the secrets of their prison house' is my equally firm conviction."

Sunny Climes Headquarters for Confidence Men

stretched hand, but admits he is puzzled as to the identity of the stranger.

"Well, that's a good one, too!" booms the newcomer cordially. "Why, I'm Sam Davidson. Remember the Davidsons, don't you? Dad used to take me to your elevator many a time and my first deposit was in your bank. You were the president and Sam Trimbler was the cashier. I'm the kid that ran away from home."

Baker thaws a trifle.

"Yes," he admits, "I remember one of the boys did run away. He favored you a bit, too. So you seem to have made along pretty well, eh?"

"Oh, yes," replies the other noncommittally, "I was back in Bakersville a couple of times and chummed around a bit with Felix Strong and Dan Bowser, but didn't want to intrude on you. You see, I hadn't done extra well at the time. But I'm sure glad to meet you now."

Then the story comes out. Davidson is there as detective for one of the great agencies of the country—a name familiar with everyone since a member of its office guarded Lincoln during the Civil War. Davidson is in the South on an important mission.

This mission is not disclosed at once. It takes considerable time, after they have swapped reminiscences of Bakersville, before he parts with his secret. He is there to catch a lot of "wire tappers" who swindle the unsuspecting by inducing them to believe that they are getting false information on horse races.

These swindlers, Davidson informs Baker, get a dupe to believe they have "tapped" the wires to a poolroom where bets are accepted on races. The dupe agrees to put up their money for them, including all he has of his own. They send in a false return on a horse race. When he wins—as he always does—the sharpers place his money and his winnings in a valise and give it to him to hold. They warn him of the law against wire tapping and agree to meet him later. When he opens the valise or package he finds some waste paper and a few $1 bills.

"They switch the money on him at the last minute," remarks Davidson, "and the average man dreads publicity so much, and realizes to such an extent he has been tryng to break the law, that he never makes a complaint to the authorities. And the crooks keep on getting away with it."

Baker and Davidson mutually shake their heads over the matter. As time passes, they get closer friends. Finally, Davidson grows confidential. "I've located that bunch and they're looking for a sucker," he informs his friend. "Baker, can't you help me out in this?"

Then the plan is revealed. Baker can take any amount of money—$10,000 or preferably $20,000—and put himself in the way of the sharpers Davidson will indicate. Every bill is to be previously marked in the presence of Davidson and other "operatives" from the home office. Baker will accept the advances of the gang and put up his money in the poolroom specified. In the meantime the detectives will surround the alleged poolroom. Baker will accept the package handed to him after he wins and will leave the place to avoid the shooting which may follow. Then Davidson and the others will swoop down and catch the swindlers with the marked bills in their possession.

This will enable the detectives to "send up" the swindlers and get the $10,000 reward—of which Baker will get half for his services. Moreover, he will prove to Bakersville that he knows his way about. This last item cuts more figure with Baker than the reward.

The system is explained to Baker minutely. Poolrooms, which have to operate in defiance of the law, naturally keep their nature secret. They exist only in out-of-the-way places. The initiated among the gambling fraternity alone know their whereabouts.

Swindlers take advantage of this. They pretend to have a poolroom in an isolated place sized up for plundering. The sharpers will claim that they intend to "tap" the wires—that is, break the connection and intercept any message that may arrive—and send in the name of a horse as winner that will be known to the victim in advance.

Davidson carefully asserts that all this will be carried out in full, to avert suspicion.

"The confederates in the poolroom will make believe to pay you the money, too," he said, "but it will be a 'phony' roll. That is why we want your own marked money to be left in their hands so that we can swear to it. We will surround the place when you go to it. Take your money as if you suspected nothing and leave the place.

"Then we will swoop down and nail them. This means a lot to me, Mr. Baker. I have been working for a reputation for a long time. We will get your money back for you and we can split the reward. You run no danger whatever.

"Of course, it will be no real poolroom you visit at all. It will be a place framed up for the occasion. The only thing the sharpers care about is getting your money. And the detectives will see every bill is properly marked. You will get it all back. There's a very capable lawyer known to us here, who can transact business confidentially for our agency. And he will arrange a bond for you, to insure the return of your money, if you wish it."

By this time, however, Baker is so carried away with the scheme and the prospect of adventure that he spurns the idea of his friend giving a bond. Of course, the "lawyer" would have bonded him for any amount had Davidson deemed that necessary.

The deal is carried out. Baker duly meets some plausible gentlemen who, after due preliminaries, admit they have a scheme to rob poolrooms. Baker watches sharply and notices that other visitors are approached besides himself and that one or two others "fall" for the scheme. He suggests to Davidson they ought to be warned. "We will save their money for them," says Davidson. "Don't do anything to scare these birds off. We will capture the crooks red-handed."

The deal is carried off as per schedule. Baker is taken to an isolated house, fitted with all the paraphernalia of a poolroom, and duly places his bet. The horse named by Davidson comes over the wire as a winner. The other "victims" are on hand. Baker does not realize they are confederates of the sharpers.

He leaves the place with his satchel of presumed winnings, chuckling over the surprise that is going to be visited on the swindlers.

And that is all there is to the yarn, except that he is still waiting for Davidson.

These are but two of the many "deals" reported from Southern climes in the last winter and indications are that many persons have been victimized to smaller degrees and have never reported their losses. Of course, the alleged bootlegger is rampant. He is making more money than the real bootlegger, for he makes no pretense of giving any value received for money passed to him for liquor. He simply disappears and the victims have no recourse.

In entering into a deal for liquor, the person accepting the money has even been known to remain and brazen out the case, knowing that the complaining witness will never dare to take the matter to the police.

Yes, New York has passed as the Mecca of the confidence man, these days. The Sunny South is having its inning.

THE WELCOME DOLLARS I MAKE IN PLEASANT HOURS AT HOME

Susan Mitchell "Never Had Anything to Wear"—Until Her Fairy Godmother Put a New Wardrobe in the Closet

By Anne Elizabeth Fletcher

Illustrated by F. M. McAnelly

SUSAN Mitchell—generally such a cheerful woman—sat down heavily in my living room one morning in the late Winter of last year and exclaimed bitterly:

"I don't know how it is with you, Anne, but if there is one thing I can always be sure of it is that some unexpected expense will spoil all my most cherished plans and hopes."

"Why, Susan, what has gone wrong?" I enquired.

"You really want to hear the tale of woe?" she asked doubtfully. I saw that she needed to tell somebody her troubles—it always seems to do a woman good—so I said that of course I did.

"Well," Susan said, "I neglected a tooth a while ago until it ached, and then the dentist found several cavities to fix—and now his bill has taken all the money I had saved up for a new Georgette dress and a hat for Spring. And that's only the beginning. It is simply one thing after another that conspires to deprive me of the new clothes I need! I call myself 'Nothing-to-Wear Susan.' Really, nobody knows, except the one who handles the money, what it costs to run a family nowadays. My boy John's shoes cost twice what they used to, and Sunday he caught one of his best ones on a nail and tore the leather so he can't wear it for dress any more. It means a new pair for Sundays.

"I plan my expenses so carefully, and it's just sickening to have some unlooked-for necessity upset everything. For instance, it cost $9.00 last week to have a little accident to the bath-room plumbing repaired. My worst worry is about the money-leaks that I can't plan for in advance. Yesterday Helen came rushing in from school to tell me breathlessly that she had been selected to play the part of 'The Rose' in the school pageant. Of course I was delighted for the child, but it means a pair of white slippers and material to make her a pretty costume.

"You see it's always something that costs money and meanwhile I am still 'Nothing-to-Wear Susan'—with Spring almost in sight."

"I know," I sympathized, "It's the same with me. Unexpected expenses seem just possessed to empty my pocketbook of money I count on for something new to wear. I can't tell you how many times I have seen real bargains in clothes advertised in the paper—but I always had to miss the chance to get something good at a saving because some pesky emergency had taken all the ready money."

Well, Susan and I were sorry for ourselves for a while longer and then she went home. After that we moved to another part of town where we could get a little cheaper rent and I didn't see her for nearly three months. When I did meet her down town, one morning in June, I hardly recognized her. She had on the new Georgette dress she had wanted, wore a smart little hat I had seen and coveted in a milliner's window, and was walking smilingly along in dainty, freshly-bought pumps! She hailed me happily.

"Don't you speak to your old friends any more, Anne?" she asked. "You passed me on the street last week and didn't see me at all."

"You're to blame yourself, my dear," I said. "I looked twice at you just now before I was sure it was you, in all these glad clothes! Has Frank been made Manager—or have you been left money by a rich old relative—or what? You look like a million dollars, at least."

Susan laughed happily. "I feel like a million dollars," she said, "But nothing like that has happened. I'm a business woman now, that's all."

"Not—stenography?" I exclaimed.

"No, no, of course not," she said, "I don't have to leave my home and children at all. I have my own business. I just sit quietly in my own living room and make a regular weekly income. Walk along home with me and I'll tell you about my 'dollar mill', as Frank calls it."

"Your husband is right," I cried. "It is a 'dollar mill.' I'm going to begin making money at home, too."

I was so anxious to hear the cause of the startling change in Susan that I said I would. It seemed like magic.

On the way to her house I learned what had been the matter with both of us when we were sitting together in my home in February, pitying ourselves for a condition that we could easily remedy! We had been asleep to our opportunities. But Susan had found the way out—the way to beat the old High Cost of Clothes—and I was at once enthusiastic and anxious to begin making money at home, too. When I asked her how to go about it, she said:

"Just write to Buffalo the way I did. Then the Auto Knitter Hosiery Company will send you all the particulars—about how they will make a contract with you to pay you a fixed, guaranteed price for all the wool socks you can make on the Auto Knitter—the wonderful little machine I will show you when we get to my house. With a little practice you can make a pair of fine, seamless wool socks on the Auto Knitter in remarkably quick time, and the company gives you a signed guarantee to take all the socks you send them, whenever you care to make them a shipment. You can work as much or as little as you want, or not at all—but when you do work you get your pay-check for your work at once."

"But you have to buy the yarn, don't you?" I asked.

"Not after the first lot," she assured me. "The plan works this way. When you get your pay check for your first shipment of socks you will also receive back the full amount of yarn you used in making them, and the company keeps on replacing free the yarn you use in knitting socks for them. You don't really have to buy any yarn at all to start Auto Knitting, for they send several pounds of it free with the machine, but I bought some additional yarn, because the company pays the transportation charges when I send them 10 dozen pairs or more at one time. In this way the profits from my Auto Knitter are all clear."

By this time we had arrived at Susan's home, and she took the light, portable little machine out of the closet, quickly clamped it to a table, and gave me a lesson in using it. I was astonished when I saw how rapidily and smoothly it made the stitches, and how easy it was to run. Under Susan's direction I made a sock in about 15 minutes.

"Your husband is right," I cried. "It is a 'dollar mill,' I'm going to write the Auto Knitter Company right away and begin making money at home too."

I stayed with Susan just long enough to admire the pretty new Summer things she took from her clothes closet to show me—all purchased with her Auto Knitter earnings—and then I went home and wrote to Buffalo for all of the particulars.

The company's letter and prospectus confirmed everything Susan had told me, and I learned how their wide business connections give them an enormous market for the good, honest, old-time wool socks that their thousands of well-paid, contented workers turn out on their Auto Knitters—right in their own homes.

Well, I lost no time in sending for my Auto Knitter—and now my spare hours bring me extra money too. I had the machine only a few weeks when my earnings amounted to a substantial sum, which looked pretty good, considering that it took no more time than I used to devote to "fancy work" which never brought me a cent.

After some of my husband's friends saw what fine warm hosiery the Auto Knitter makes, I developed quite a little private trade too, and got even better prices than the company paid. You see, you are perfectly free to dispose of the output of your machine as you choose. The company requires no stated amount of work from you, but is always bound to take and pay for all you want to send them.

Susan named the AUTO KNITTER her "Fairy Godmother" because it brought her a new outfit of clothes—just as Cinderella's did—and that is really what the machine has been to thousands of women the country over. It has enabled them to make extra money for all sorts of needs and wants. No woman needs to be told how to use a little extra money—but hundreds do need to be told how to make it—without leaving their homes or neglecting their families. That is why I am writing my experience—and Susan's.

The Auto Knitter Hosiery Company has solved the "extra money problem" for home women because it offers steady, regular, well-paid employment without "going to work". There is no expense for materials after the first. There are no strings tied to the Wage Agreement; it is a straight, out-and-out offer at a fixed wage, on a piece-work basis—a good pay for your services alone.

If you can use extra money—and what woman can't?—you will want to know all about the machine that has meant so much to Susan and me and thousands of others like us—all over America, Canada, and even England. Send right away for the company's prospectus and read the experiences of some of the workers. Find out about the pleasant and profitable money-making occupation waiting for you—Auto Knitting. Find out what substantial amounts even a small number of your spare hours will earn for you.

Remember, that experience is unnecessary; that you do not need to know how to knit. The Auto Knitter does the work.

Send your name and address now and find out all the good things that are in store for you. The Auto Knitter Hosiery Co., Inc., Dept. 321-K, 821 Jefferson St., Buffalo, N. Y.

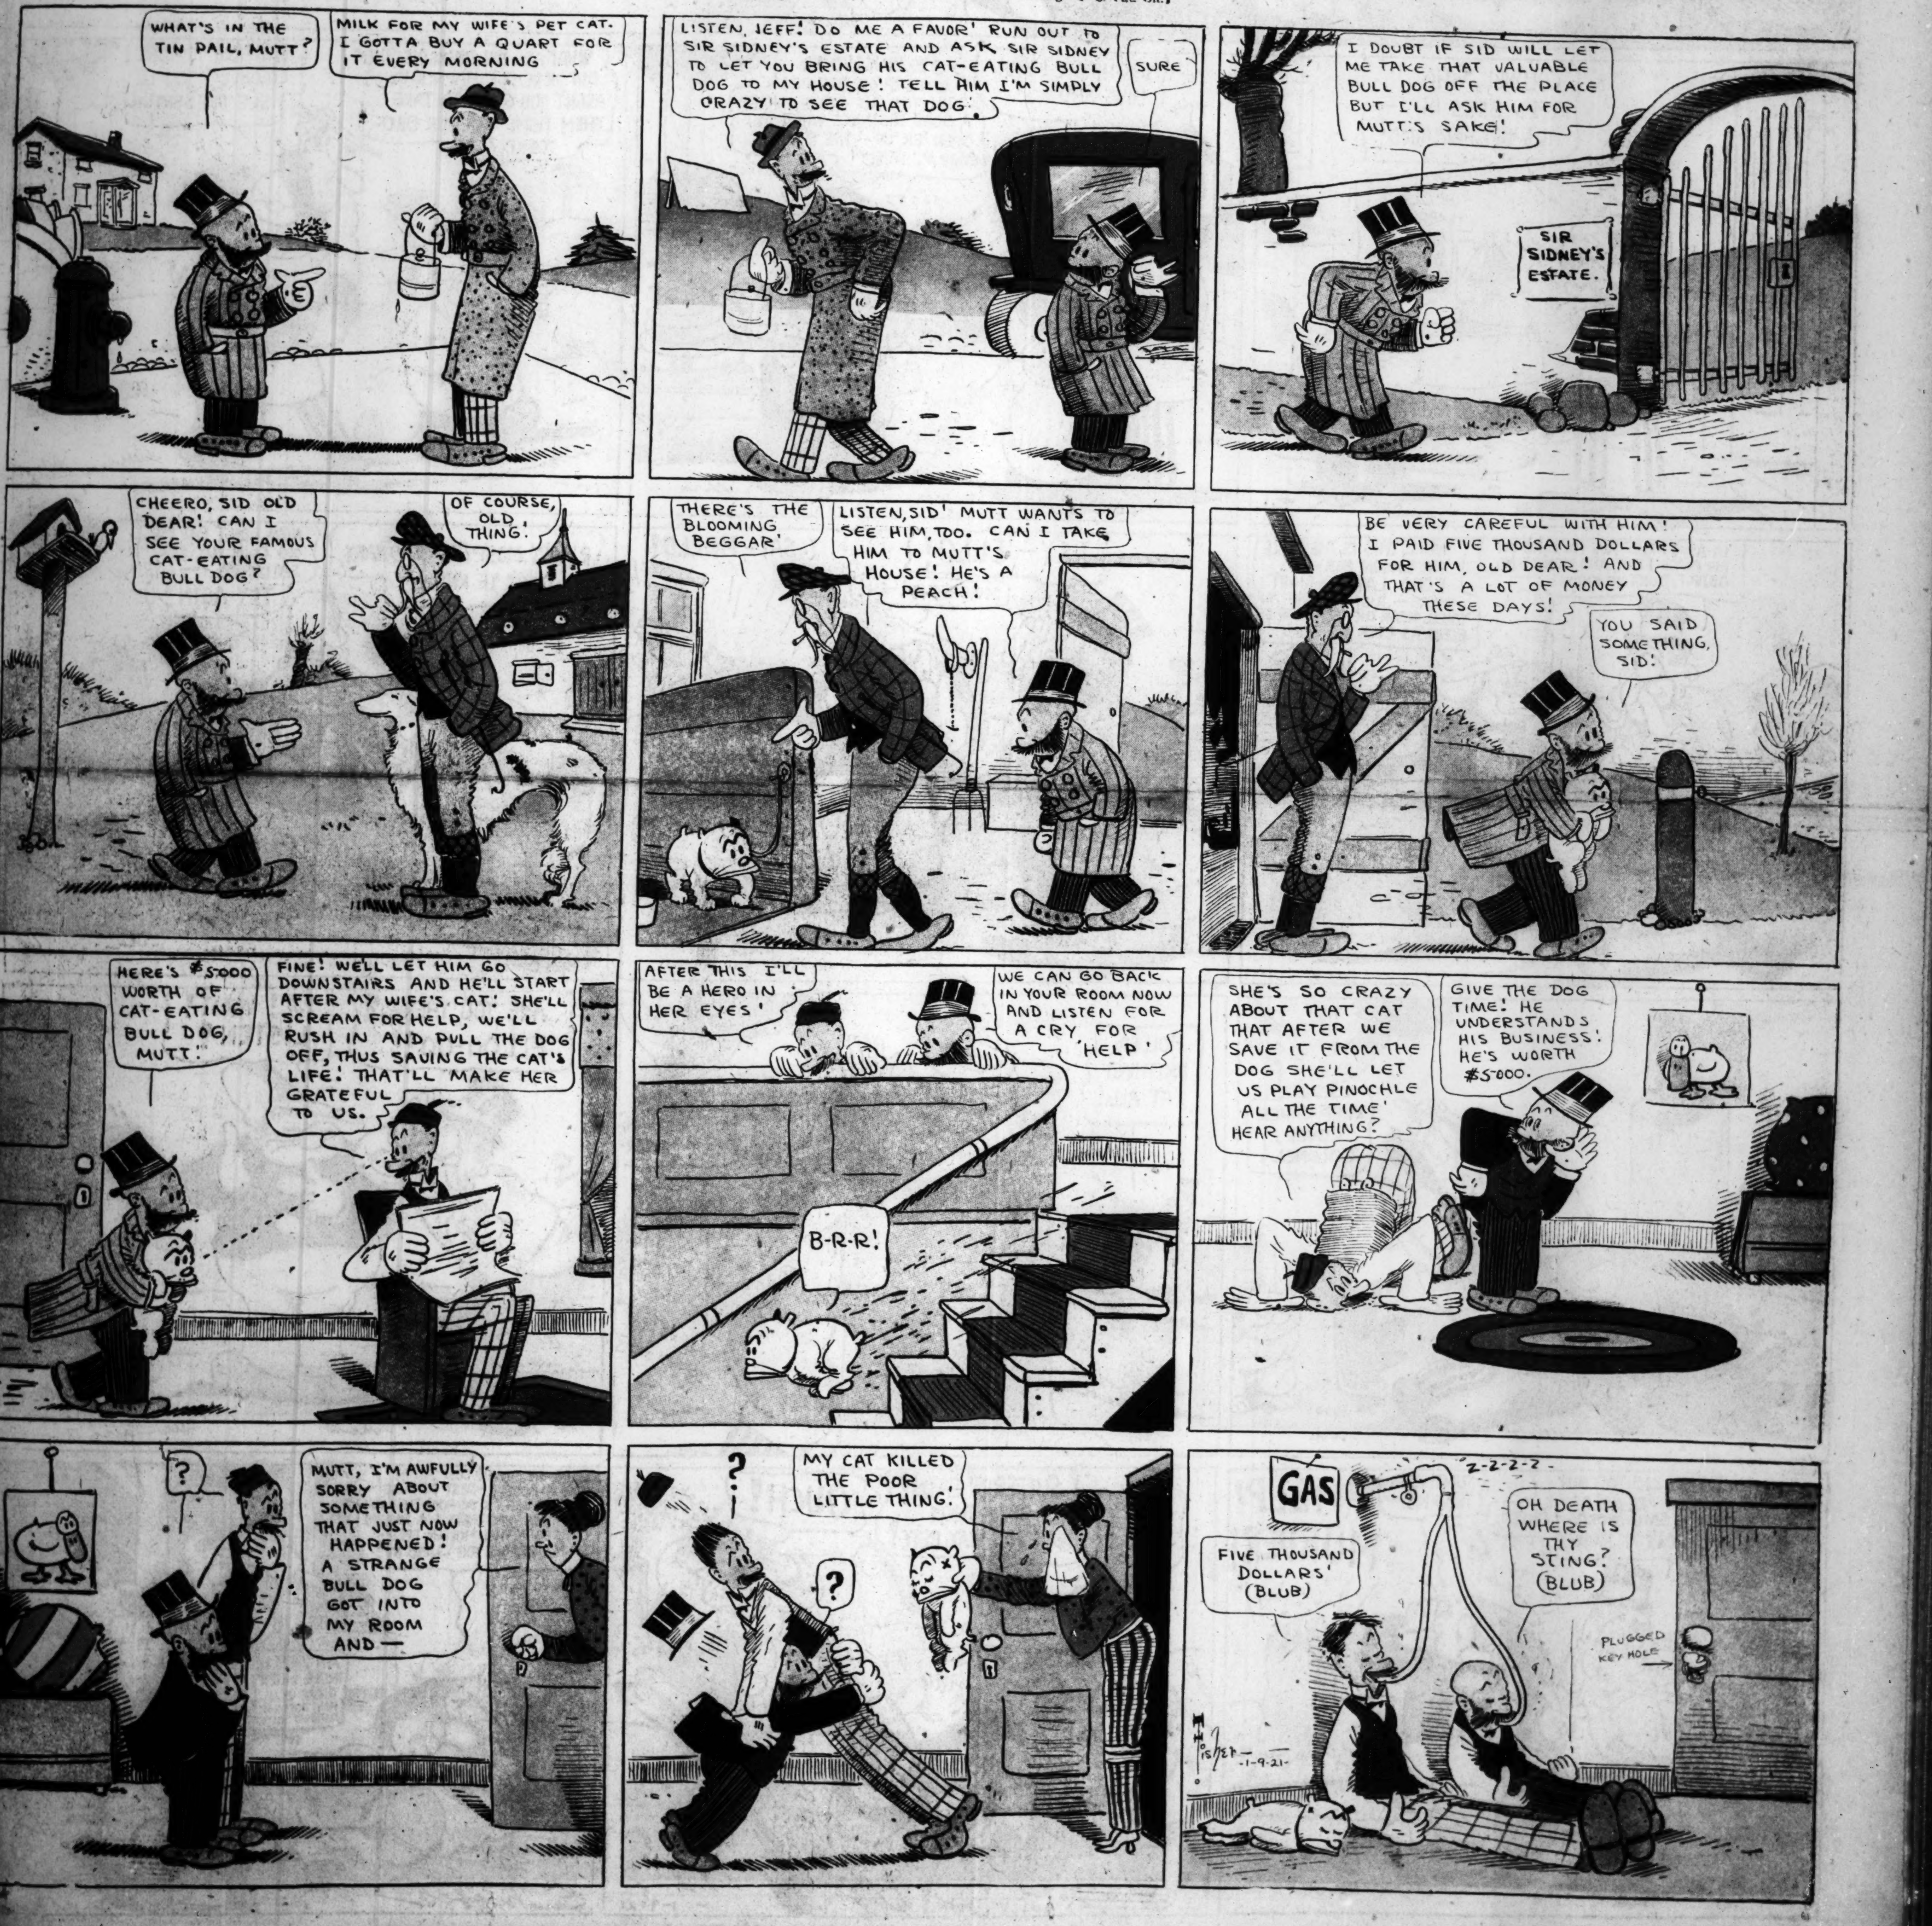
MUTT AND JEFF ◎ Some Dog! Yes; and Some Cat! ◎ By BUD FISHER

(Copyright, 1921, by H C Fisher Trade Mark Reg U S. Pat. Off.)



WHAT'S IN THE TIN PAIL, MUTT?
MILK FOR MY WIFE'S PET CAT. I GOTTA BUY A QUART FOR IT EVERY MORNING
LISTEN, JEFF! DO ME A FAVOR! RUN OUT TO SIR SIDNEY'S ESTATE AND ASK SIR SIDNEY TO LET YOU BRING HIS CAT-EATING BULL DOG TO MY HOUSE! TELL HIM I'M SIMPLY CRAZY TO SEE THAT DOG.
SURE
I DOUBT IF SID WILL LET ME TAKE THAT VALUABLE BULL DOG OFF THE PLACE BUT I'LL ASK HIM FOR MUTT'S SAKE!
SIR SIDNEY'S ESTATE.
CHEERO, SID OLD DEAR! CAN I SEE YOUR FAMOUS CAT-EATING BULL DOG?
OF COURSE, OLD THING!
THERE'S THE BLOOMING BEGGAR!
LISTEN, SID! MUTT WANTS TO SEE HIM, TOO. CAN I TAKE HIM TO MUTT'S HOUSE! HE'S A PEACH!
BE VERY CAREFUL WITH HIM! I PAID FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR HIM, OLD DEAR! AND THAT'S A LOT OF MONEY THESE DAYS!
YOU SAID SOMETHING, SID!
HERE'S $5000 WORTH OF CAT-EATING BULL DOG, MUTT!
FINE! WE'LL LET HIM GO DOWNSTAIRS AND HE'LL START AFTER MY WIFE'S CAT! SHE'LL SCREAM FOR HELP, WE'LL RUSH IN AND PULL THE DOG OFF, THUS SAVING THE CAT'S LIFE! THAT'LL MAKE HER GRATEFUL TO US.
AFTER THIS I'LL BE A HERO IN HER EYES!
WE CAN GO BACK IN YOUR ROOM NOW AND LISTEN FOR A CRY FOR 'HELP'
B-R-R!
SHE'S SO CRAZY ABOUT THAT CAT THAT AFTER WE SAVE IT FROM THE DOG SHE'LL LET US PLAY PINOCHLE ALL THE TIME! HEAR ANYTHING?
GIVE THE DOG TIME! HE UNDERSTANDS HIS BUSINESS! HE'S WORTH $5000.
MUTT, I'M AWFULLY SORRY ABOUT SOMETHING THAT JUST NOW HAPPENED! A STRANGE BULL DOG GOT INTO MY ROOM AND—
MY CAT KILLED THE POOR LITTLE THING!

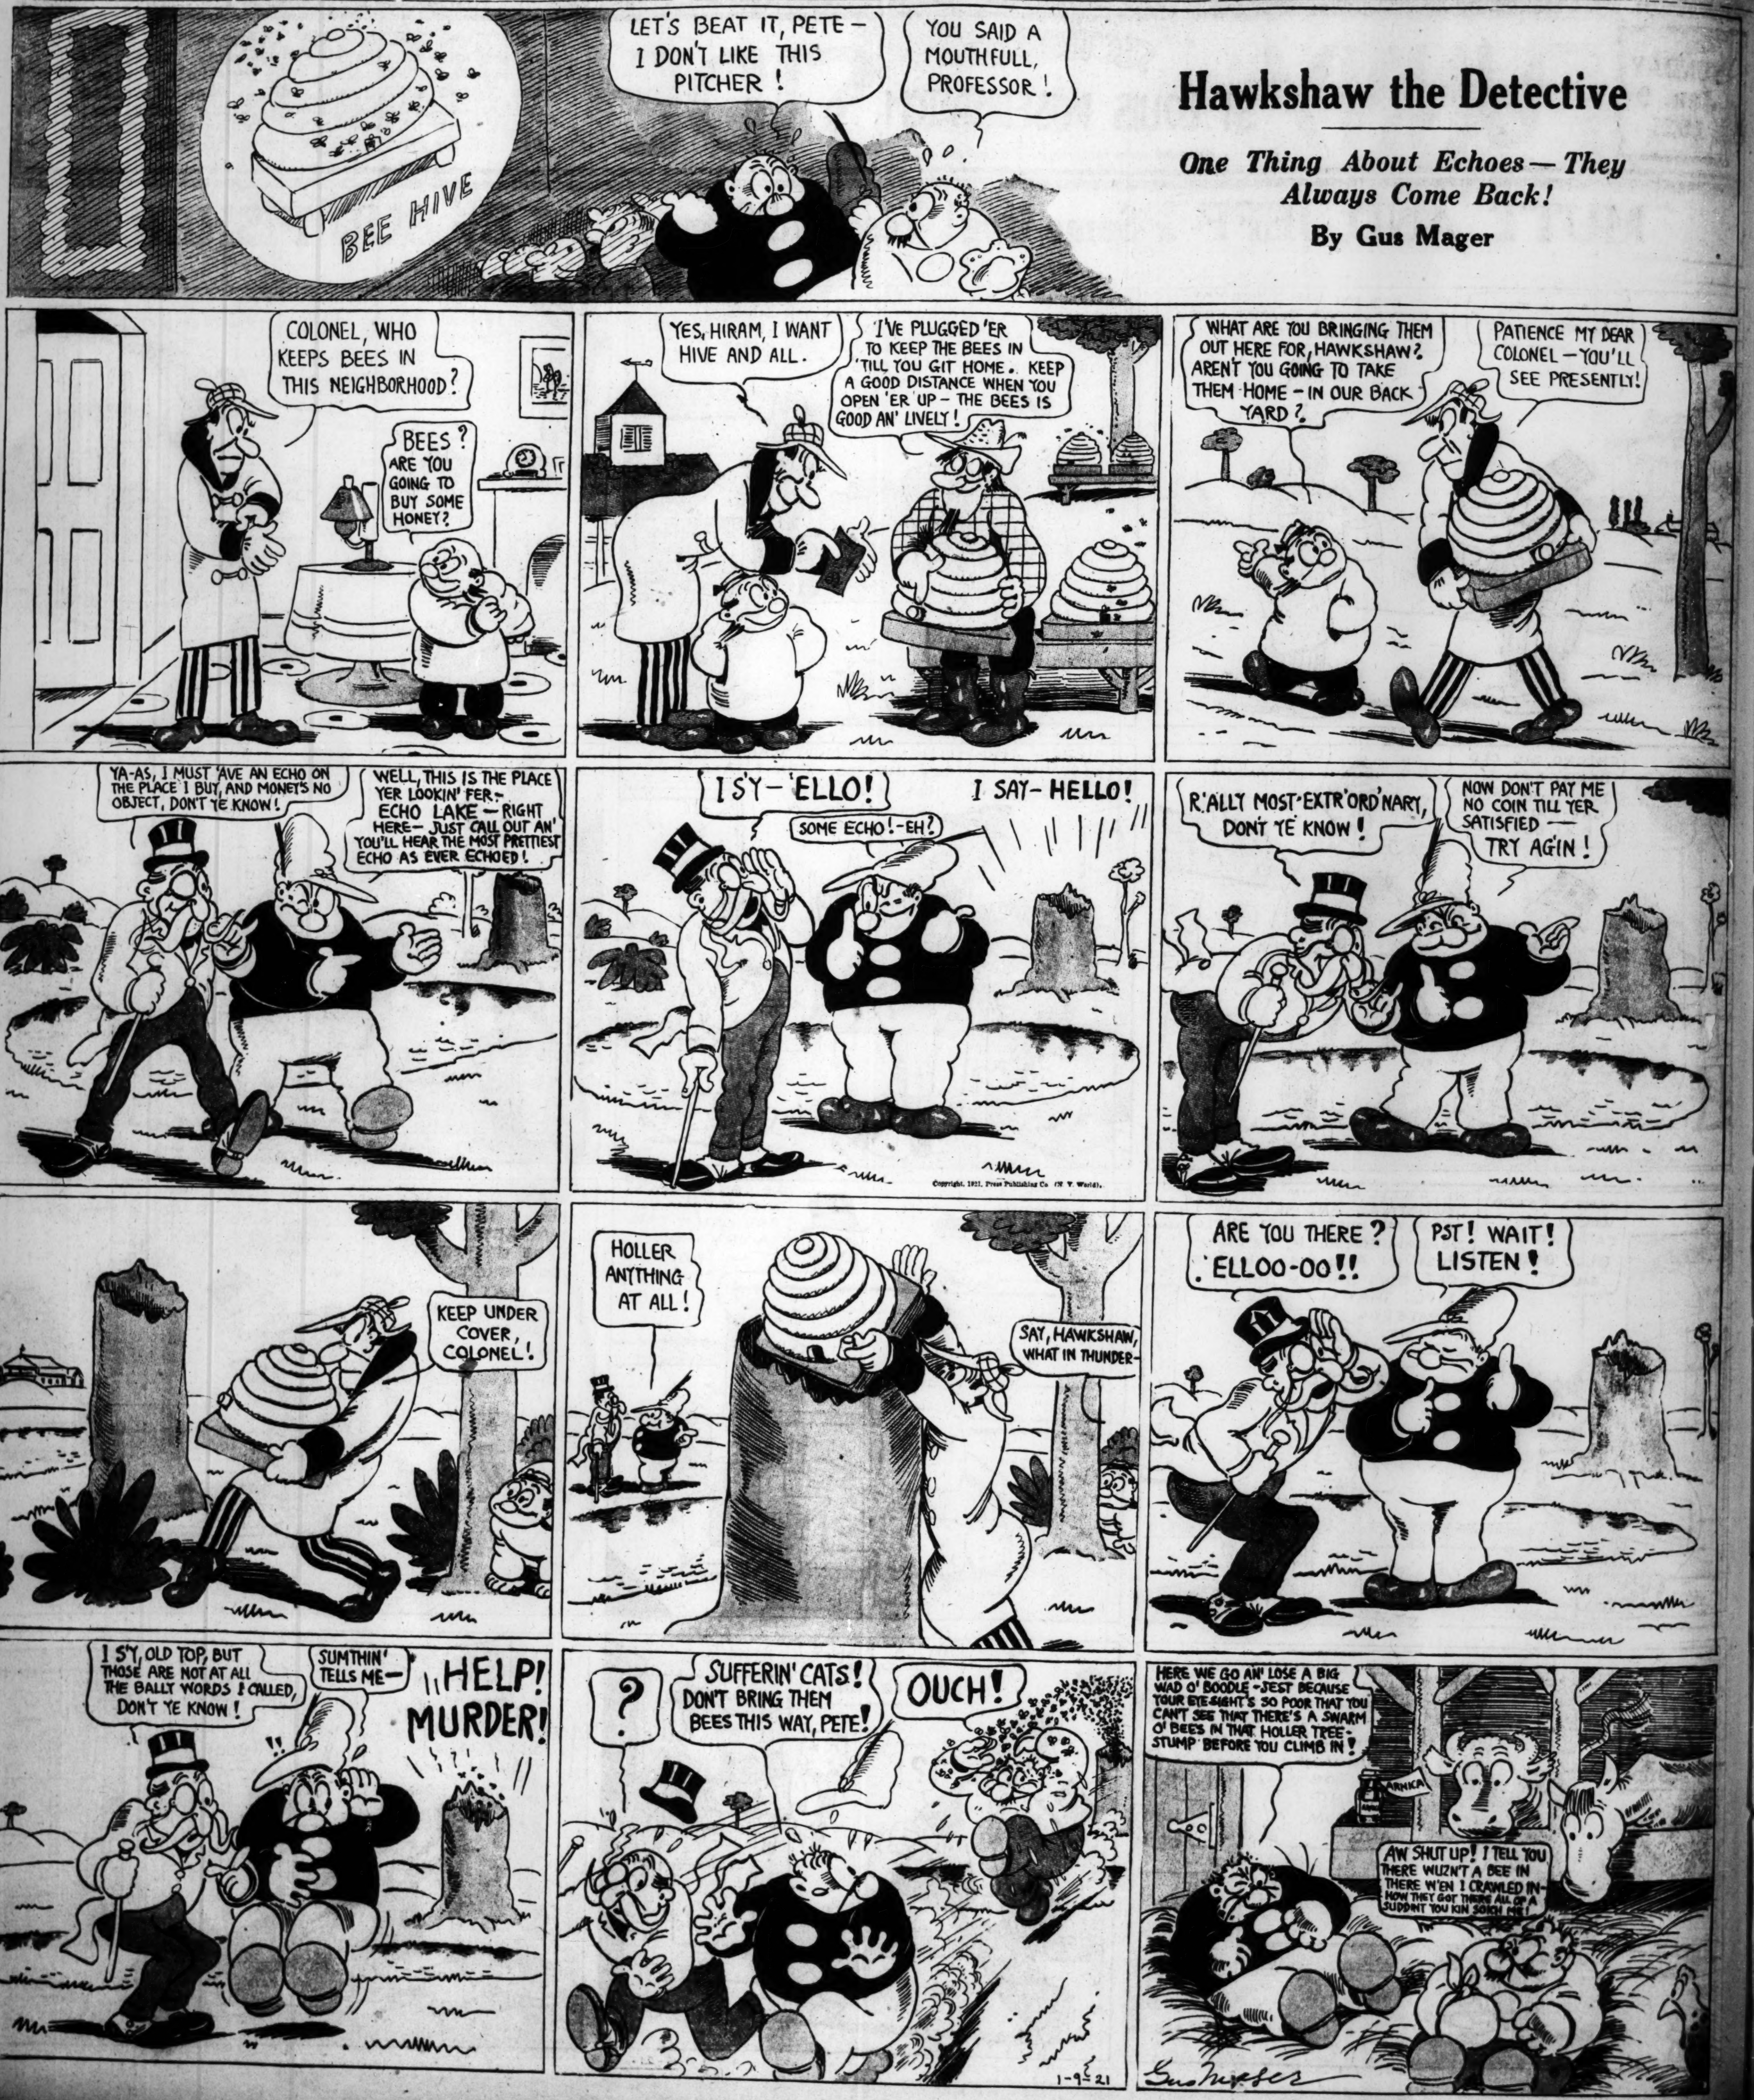
One Thing About Echoes—They Always Come Back!

By Gus Mager



LET'S BEAT IT, PETE— I DON'T LIKE THIS PITCHER!
YOU SAID A MOUTHFULL, PROFESSOR!
BEE HIVE
COLONEL, WHO KEEPS BEES IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD?
BEES? ARE YOU GOING TO BUY SOME HONEY?
YES, HIRAM, I WANT HIVE AND ALL.
I'VE PLUGGED 'ER TO KEEP THE BEES IN 'TILL YOU GIT HOME. KEEP A GOOD DISTANCE WHEN YOU OPEN 'ER UP—THE BEES IS GOOD AN' LIVELY!
WHAT ARE YOU BRINGING THEM OUT HERE FOR, HAWKSHAW? AREN'T YOU GOING TO TAKE THEM HOME—IN OUR BACK YARD?
PATIENCE MY DEAR COLONEL—YOU'LL SEE PRESENTLY!
YA-AS, I MUST 'AVE AN ECHO ON THE PLACE I BUY, AND MONEY'S NO OBJECT, DON'T YE KNOW!
WELL, THIS IS THE PLACE YER LOOKIN' FER— ECHO LAKE—RIGHT HERE—JUST CALL OUT AN' YOU'LL HEAR THE MOST PRETTIEST ECHO AS EVER ECHOED!
I S'Y—'ELLO!
I SAY—HELLO!
SOME ECHO!—EH?
R'ALLY MOST EXTR'ORD'NARY, DON'T YE KNOW!
NOW DON'T PAY ME NO COIN TILL YER SATISFIED — TRY AGIN!
KEEP UNDER COVER, COLONEL!
HOLLER ANYTHING AT ALL!
SAY, HAWKSHAW, WHAT IN THUNDER—
ARE YOU THERE? 'ELLOO-OO!!

A New Departure—Electrical Equipment

Our new model, which we are bringing out this season, is regularly furnished with Electric Equipment. This means that if you have electricity in your home, all you have to do is to attach this machine to any lamp socket, and is an improvement over any of our previous models. We also furnish the machine with a safety carbide generator, in case you don't have electricity in your home. Again remember that this machine is more than a toy. It is a solidly constructed and perfect machine. The mechanism is very simple and is readily operated by the most inexperienced, thus any boy or girl, no matter of what age, can easily operate the machine. The pictures shown by this marvelous moving picture machine are not the common, crude and lifeless magic lantern variety, but produces life-like reproductions of actual places and people and never tire your audience.

A Box of Film With Your Machine

Make Money. Description of this New Model Moving Picture Machine

The Moving Picture Machine, which I want to send you, is a real Moving Picture Machine, built in a handy size, and produces in your own home, clear and life-like moving pictures. Our Moving Picture Machine is so simple that you can run it yourself, just like the boy in the picture. You set it on a table, hang your screen on the opposite wall, put in the film, turn the crank and you are all ready for a motion picture performance. This complete machine will be given as a premium to every boy or girl in this land who wants to write for an outfit. Read my offer in the next column, which shows you how you can get this truly wonderful machine.

The films are produced in exactly the same manner as those used by the regular Moving Picture Houses. I will ship you a fine machine, all complete and ready to give a Moving Picture show the minute you receive it. Remember there will be no delay.

Real Moving Picture Show in Your Own Home

Please bear in mind this is a real Moving Picture Machine and the pictures thrown on the screen are exact reproductions of a subject taken by the camera. The Moving Picture Machine is finely constructed and carefully put together by skilled workmen. It is made of strong material and operated by a simple, yet perfectly working mechanism. The focusing lenses are adjustable so that the picture can be carefully and properly focused on the screen.

READ THESE LETTERS FROM HAPPY BOYS

Wish Every Boy Had One

Received the Moving Picture Machine. I wouldn't sell it for $10.00. I wish every boy had one. The first night I had it I entertained my family highly by it. When I showed it to my friends they would say, "Oh! what a beauty." I am going to have a show soon. I showed the pictures so plainly that my little sister cried out: "Oh! see the man diving," and when I wanted to put it away she cried and said, "I want to see more pictures," and I had it going for an hour. (Signed) Ernest Banks, 107 Main St., Medford, Mass.

Would Not Take $25.00 For It

I guess you think I was slow in writing but I have just returned from the West. To my great delight I found my machine awaiting me as soon as I returned. I found your machine to be what it is recommended. How delightful it is to own your own machine. We have had barrels of fun with it and it shows large, clear pictures. I wish every boy had one. I would not take $25.00 for it. I thank you a thousand times for it. (Signed) Benjamin Dozier, 2491 East Thirty-seventh street, Cleveland, Ohio.

Received Machine in Excellent Order

I have received your machine in excellent order. It is a wonderful machine, and I give you as many thanks as there are rain drops in a thousand centuries. (Signed) Leroy Hickson, 2312 Jefferson street, Kansas City, Mo.

A Real Education

I received my machine the day I expected and I want to tell every boy in the U. S. of America that he ought to have one of your machines in his home. It is a real education to any and every boy. I have made lots of real money with my machine. Wouldn't take $25.00 for it. (Signed) Lawrence Stancil, 401 No. 24 st., Smithfield, N. C.

Clear Moving Pictures

I just received one of your wonderful Moving Picture Machines. It is a fine Moving Picture Machine. I wouldn't take $20.00 for it. It will show clear moving pictures. I have told all my friends about it and I have shown all my friends the machine. (Signed) Irwin [illegible], 126 Remington Ave., Thomasville, Georgia.
